

Dr. George "Rinso" Marquette

Dr. George "Rinso" Marquette was an inspirational administrator and legendary coach at the Valley for 38 years, and was a mentor to thousands of young men and women during his career and in retirement until his passing in November 2008.

Marquette came to Lebanon Valley as a freshman in 1942 with plans to become a music teacher after graduation. After serving in the Air Force for three years, Marquette received his degree from LVC in 1948 and embarked on a career as a high school history teacher. He also played minor league baseball in the Canadian-American League.

In 1951, Marquette earned a master's degree from Columbia University. A year later, he returned to Lebanon Valley College as chair of the physical education department and head baseball and men's basketball coach. In his very first season as head coach of men's basketball, he led his squad to the "Sweet 16" of the NCAA Tournament, along with high-powered programs such as Kansas, Indiana, and Louisiana State. To this day, Lebanon Valley is the smallest school to ever advance that far in the NCAA Tournament.

Marquette was named dean of men in 1956 and earned his doctorate from Temple University in 1967. In 1984, he was named vice president for student affairs and remained in that position until his retirement in 1990.

On Oct. 16, 1999, LVC honored Marquette and his wife, Rufina '51, by dedicating a residence hall in their honor.

Since the establishment of the tournament in 1992, Lebanon Valley's men's team has won 12 of the 19 Rinso Marquette Tournaments and has appeared in the championship game 18 times. Last year, LVC beat Wesley for its second straight title.

In 2003-04, for the first time, a women's tournament was held in addition to the men's tournament. Lebanon Valley captured the inaugural women's tournament and have five more since then, and have advanced to the final every time.
