Phil Wessels - 1905-10

30-11 in five seasons
Phil Wessels was a chemist at the college when he became the school's first coach. Judging from the record, he knew something about team chemistry as well. His teams were 30-11, the No. 2 winning percentage in school history (.732), tops among coaches serving longer than a year. He lost only one home game, and his first squad remains the school's only unbeaten team. Wessels gave up coaching when he left the college in 1910. He returned three years later, then took a job on Long Island in 1922.

George Cobb - 1910-13

13-9 in three seasons
Cobb took over the football and baseball teams when he arrived in 1909 to teach both horticulture and physical education. Cobb added basketball a year later and went 13-9 over three seasons (10-0 at home, 3-9 on the road). Cobb turned out winning records every year, running the college's string to eight straight. But the team failed to attract enough players to compete from 1913 to '15. Under Cobb, the football team went 23-19-5 but lost 12 of its last 16 games.

Jim Baldwin - 1915-18

12-14 in three seasons

As the college neared its 25th birthday, Jim Baldwin came aboard as its first "physical director" (athletic director), taking on the duties of all-purpose coach. Baldwin, a 1909 Dartmouth graduate, played on the football team that beat powerful Harvard 34-0 and became a successful high school football coach in Brockton, Mass., and Passaic, N.J. His teams went 12-14 in basketball, 6-9-1 in football and 8-6 in baseball before he left in 1918 to direct a YMCA program for U.S. troops fighting in France.

Fred Walker - 1918-19

7-1 in one season

Fred Walker, a former player with the Cubs and Cardinals, turned in a 7-1 mark in his only season. He was also the first coach to beat Brown. Walker served as AD and coach for less than a year before leaving when the college declined to increase his $3,000 salary. A petition signed the college's students could not budge the Board of Managers.

Fred Murray - 1919-20

3-8 in one season

Fred Murray, the third in a series of short-term athletic directors, struggled to keep the program together after America's involvement in World War I. Most able-bodied upperclassmen had left school for military service or agricultural work, leaving a skeleton crew for sports. Murray's only basketball team went 3-8, with two of its wins against the Newport YMCA. His football squad scored just 31 points in a 0-7-1 season, salvaging some pride by tying archrival Connecticut 7-7 in the season finale.

Frank Keaney - 1920-48

401-124 in 28 seasons

Frank Keaney, an exalted figure in URI history, stunned the sports world by introducing "racehorse basketball," later known as the fast break. His impact was so profound that he entered the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1960, just its second year of existence. With a 401-124 record in 28 years, Keaney is the winningest Ram coach. His 1928-29 squad (15-1) was the first "point-a-minute" team, averaging 41 a game. His 1945-46 club (21-3) lost to Kentucky 46-45 in the NIT final, then considered the national title game.

Bob "Red" Haire - 1948-52

57-42 in four seasons
Bob "Red" Haire, a former team captain and assistant coach under Frank Keaney, took on the daunting task of replacing the legend and lasted just four years. His teams compiled a 57-42 record (.576) but two winning seasons gave way to two losing ones, the team's first in 29 years. Haire played at URI from 1924-28 and returned as Keaney's assistant in 1946. Two years later he began his reign with three straight losses, the team's longest losing string since his sophomore season 23 years before.

Jack Guy - 1952-57

60-57 in five seasons
Jack Guy, a successful head coach at Bucknell, was brought in to return Rhode Island to the glory days of Frank Keaney. His 60-57 record included two winning years, two losing ones and a final .500 season. Guy's best team went 17-9 in 1954-55 and carried on Keaney's racehorse style, scoring 100 or more points seven times. But his next two squads opened up 1-10 and 1-7. After resigning as head coach, Guy remained at URI as an assistant football coach and spent the rest of his life in Kingston.

Tom Carmody - 1968-73

58-71 in five seasons
Tom Carmody made the Final Four with Duke in his first year on a college coaching staff (1965-66) and spent three years with the Blue Devils before coming to Rhode Island. The 1951 Slippery Rock graduate was head coach at Bethel Park (Pa.) High from 1956-65. As a rookie head coach, Carmody endured the first losing season at URI in nine years, but he rebounded to win the Yankee Conference title in 1971-72. The Rams fell to 7-18 a year later, however, and Carmody finished with a 58-71 career record.

Jack Kraft - 1973-80

103-88 in seven seasons

From the untested Tom Carmody, URI turned to battle-tested Jack Kraft to revive the program. In 12 years at Villanova (1961-73), the Philadelphia native had a 243-95 record with six NCAA bids and a near-upset (68-62) of UCLA in the 1971 title game. It took five years to rebuild, but in 1977-78 the Rams (24-7) earned their first NCAA berth in 12 seasons and their best record since '46. A year later they went 20-8 and earned an NIT bid, but failing health forced Kraft to step down after the 1980-81 opener.

Claude English - 1980-84

45-66 in four seasons
Claude English, an all-Yankee Conference forward at Rhode Island (1968-70), spent a year with the Trail Blazers before rejoining the Rams as an aide to Tom Carmody and then Jack Kraft. After eight years he moved up when Kraft fell ill following the 1980-81 opener. English led the Rams to a 21-8 mark, the Eastern 8 regular-season crown and an NIT bid, sharing league Head coach of the Year honors and taking third in voting for Eastern Head coach of the Year. Each of his next three teams posted losing records.

ALL-TIME RESULTS

Brendan Malone - 1984-86

17-39 in two seasons
Brendan Malone earned his reputation by winning three New York City titles in 10 years at Power Memorial High (1966-76).

After brief stints as an assistant at Fordham and Yale, he spent six years as Jim Boeheim's top aide at Syracuse (1978-84), where he helped the Orange remain perennial Top 20 contenders. After showing improvement in his first two years at the helm, Malone resigned abruptly in late September 1986 to become a New York Knicks assistant. He later served as head coach of the NBA's Toronto Raptors.

Tom Penders - 1986-88

48-17 in two seasons
When he arrived at Rhode Island, Tom Penders was already considered one of the top young coaches in the nation, based on a 125-114 mark at unheralded Fordham, capped by five straight NIT trips. Despite taking over on Oct. 3, less than two weeks before practice began, he smoothly turned a 9-19 team into a 20-10 NIT club. In his second and final season, Penders led the Rams to a school-record 28 wins and their first NCAA berth in 10 years. After posting at 48-17 mark at URI, he moved on to coach at Texas.

Al Skinner - 1988-97

138-126 in nine seasons
Al Skinner, a Massachusetts All-American in 1974, spent two years in the ABA with the then New York Nets, helping Julius Erving win the last ABA title in 1976.

He also played a year each with the Nets, Pistons, and 76ers. Skinner turned to coaching and became the top assistant at Rhode Island in both the Malone and Penders regimes (1984-88). Taking over for Penders in 1988, he led the Rams to two NCAA berths and two NIT bids. In 1997, he accepted the head coaching position at Boston College.

Jim Harrick - 1997-99

45-22 in two seasons
Jim Harrick arrived with a resume that included a national championship and eight NCAA berths in eight years at UCLA (1988-96), where he went 358-160 before being fired. Prior to that, he led Pepperdine to four NCAA and two NIT appearances, with an overall 167-97 mark. Harrick's 1997-98 squad won its first A-10 title and reached the Elite Eight, coming very close to a spot in the Final Four. He left in 1999 for Georgia, where he stayed until his dismissal in 2003.

12-48 in two seasons
Jerry DeGregorio, ace recruiter for Jim Harrick, inherited the job after two years of college experience.

Dan Hurley - 2012-2018

113-82 in six seasons
Dan Hurley led the Rams to the second Atlantic 10 title in program history in his fifth season. Rhode Island made the second round of the NCAA Championship, upsetting Creighton in the opening round. Widely recognized as the top college basketball hire of the 2012 offseason by CBSSports.com and ESPN.com. Hurley arrived in Rhode Island after two seasons at Wagner College in Staten Island. While there, Hurley orchestrated a complete turnaround of the Seahawks program. Inheriting a program that had won just five games in 2009-10, he guided Wagner to 13 victories in his first season at the helm and a school-record 25 victories in 2011-12. Prior to becoming an NCAA Division I head coach, Hurley was a highly successful head coach at St. Benedict's Prep in Newark, N.J. During his nine-year tenure at St. Benedict's (2001-2010), he compiled a 223-21 record, developed four McDonald's All-Americans, and coached the Grey Bees to four top five finishes in the national rankings.

David Cox - 2018-22

64-55 in four seasons

David Cox was named the 20th head coach in Rhode Island men's basketball history on Wednesday, April 4. The appointment came after Cox spent four seasons as an assistant coach on Dan Hurley's staff with the Rams. In his first season, he was one of 12 national finalists for the 2019 Joe B. Hall Award, which is presented annually to the top first-year coach in Division I. In his second season, Cox notched his first 20-win season, going 21-9 and having the Rams in position for a postseason bid before the COVID-19 pandemic ended the college basketball season prematurely. He was one of 20 coaches on HeroSports.com's National Coach of the Year award.
