Six years after their first season, the Redhawks posted an historic 2001-02 campaign, as it captured the program's first-ever national title after years of knocking on the door.

With one of the deepest teams since their inception, head coach Craig Mallery, the lineup topped the national field with 487 points, surpassing runner-up California Baptist by 43 points and 48 ahead of defending champ and archival, Simon Fraser. National champions included Elliott Kolbe in the 200 breaststroke, while the quartet of Jonathan Bartsch, Sean Seaver, Zach Mueller and Kolbe won the 800 free relay. The Redhawks saw a total of nine individuals and five relays garner NAIA All-American accolades.

It was a perfect ending for a near perfect season, which saw the lineup dominate often as they registered an 8-2 record in dual meet competition.
