Table of Contents

Thanks to the efforts of College Archivist Joseph Taylor in digitizing The Knox Student from the first issue in 1878 a project like this is possible. Coverage of baseball in that varied from year-to-year from excellent to non-existent. There are consequently many gaps in coverage. This is the preliminary attempt to document the extensive history of baseball at Knox. There are many gaps as there were years the Student and Galesburg Register-Mail didn't report on all contests. Single-game records prior to 2013 were only recently discovered, so game records will have to wait for compilations. Consequently, this record book is a work in progress that will be expanded and updated periodically. We welcome comments, corrections, and especially new statistics! Please provide them to Rick Bender, Assistant Director of Athletics for Communications and Marketing, rbender@knox.edu or athletic historian, Tom Crabtree, tc@empnet.com.

From the 1933 Gale: "The 1931 season was the last of baseball at Knox. There was a lack of interest in the games among the student body, and when the college cut down on athletic appropriations they cut down entirely on baseball."

NOTE: The 1879 game with Illinois College is the first documented Knox baseball game. Monmouth's record book lists a game from Sept. 15, 1872, but it does not appear in any known publications. There are a pair of 1877 games also with Monmouth, but a write-up refers to the team as "The Knox Alerts," which could represent a club team. Since The Knox Student and the Gale didn't commence publication until 1878 verifying possible early games is difficult at best.

The spring 1898 team was a controversial one, It played some games as Knox College and some as an independent team. The reason for this was that the Independent team used inelligible players that were, according to some sources, "professionals." The college refused to admit the players in question and the actual Knox players decided to cancel the remaining college season and play on the independent team, which had a record of 6-1, while the actual Knox team was 0-1.
