In the summer of 2020, David Castillo took over the reins of the Louisiana College men's soccer team.

Castillo came to LC following a very successful stint as an assistant coach on the Southeastern (Fla.) University women's soccer team, where he helped guide the Fire to the semifinals of the NAIA National Championship Tournament during his lone season at SEU in 2019. That team boasted five NAIA All-Americans, including the NAIA's National Player of the Year, and finished the season #4 in the NAIA Coaches' Top 25 following the postseason.

He got his coaching start at his alma mater, Florida College, where he served on the coaching staffs of both the Falcons' men's & women's teams, including a two-year stint as the women's head coach. During his time leading the FC women, the Falcons earned a trip to the USCAA National Championship Tournament, earned a number one ranking in the USCAA poll, set up the program's first ever soccer ID camp to assist in recruiting, and aided FC's transition into the NAIA & Southern States Athletic Conference. Under his guidance, the Falcons earned a berth in the SSAC postseason tournament in its first season in the conference.

During his playing days at Florida College, Castillo started all four seasons and earned the captain's arm band. He also went on to play and coach on the semi-professional level. Castillo is a native of Riverview, Fla. and received his Bachelor's Degree from Florida College in elementary education.

About Louisiana Christian University

Louisiana Christian University was founded as Louisiana College on October 3, 1906, in Pineville, across the Red River from the larger city of Alexandria. The college began in tents with four professors and nineteen students. Since 2006, LCU has reported an enrollment growth of 50 percent.

Baptist clergyman and educator Edwin O. Ware, Sr., is considered to have been the principal founder of the institution. From 1906 to 1907 Ware was the college financial agent, and its first president from 1908 to 1909. LCU is the successor to two earlier Louisiana Baptist schools, Mount Lebanon College, sometimes called Mount Lebanon University, and Keatchie Female College. The first, a men's school founded in 1852 by the North Louisiana Baptist Convention, was located in the community of Mount Lebanon in Bienville Parish. The women's college, founded in 1857 by the Grand Cane Association of Baptist Churches, was located in the community of Keatchie in De Soto Parish south of Shreveport.

After a history beset with financial difficulties, both schools came under the control of the Louisiana Baptist Convention in 1899. An Education Commission was selected by the state convention to administer the schools, with the understanding that both would be succeeded by a more centrally located institution as soon as a suitable campus could be selected. When Louisiana College was opened in 1906, Mount Lebanon College closed, followed by Keatchie a few years later. Since the first class of nineteen students in 1906, more than ten thousand students have graduated from the institution.

Until 1921, Louisiana College was administered by the Education Commission. The new charter established a board of trustees. The first administrative head of Louisiana College was W. F. Taylor, whose title was chairman of the faculty.

In 2012, the Louisiana Baptist Convention granted approval to Louisiana College to seek $12 million in donations from member churches within the state as part of the institution's $50 million capital improvements program. The $12 million had been intended to be used for improvements to on-campus housing. Although the campaign has since been abandoned, many residence halls were renovated shortly after the inauguration of Rick Brewer as a part of his "Campus Beautification" campaign. LC ended its fiscal year on July 31, 2012, with a $1.3 million deficit; the institution spent $30.5 million during that time but collected only $29.2 million in revenues.

In December 2013, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) reaffirmed LC's regional accreditation after two years of warning status. Less than three months later, SACS announced that it would investigate after LC officials were accused of having submitted documents that contain forged signatures and other inconsistencies in its official reports to the agency. Three months later, SACS placed the university on probation because of an "'integrity issue,' as well as its failure to comply with the accreditor's standards regarding 'external influence,' personnel appointments, administrative staff evaluations, control of finances, and its administration of federal student aid funds." Some students called for a strike against Aguillard on March 24, 2014, at LC's Guinn Auditorium. Three days later, LC trustees asked Aguillard to resign and the following day ten LC trustees released a public letter critical of his leadership.

On April 15, 2014, the trustees removed Aguillard as president and named Argile Smith, the associate dean of Christian ministry of the Caskey School of Divinity, as the interim leader, and began the search for a permanent successor.

The college was granted an exception to Title IX in 2015 which allows it to legally discriminate against LGBT students for religious reasons.

In 2020, the college was admitted into the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, giving student-athletes greater opportunity for positive national coverage.

About Louisiana Christian University

On September 24, 2020, President Rick Brewer announced that the college would be undergoing an organizational restructuring. Part of this restructuring included naming a Provost, a first for the historic institution. Dr. Cheryl Clark, who had previously served as Vice President of Academic Affairs, was named provost.

At the start of the fall semester in 2021, the college welcomed its largest freshman class ever, with 350 students showing up for the opening day of Wildcat Welcome Weekend: the largest freshman class in the school's 115-year history.

Louisiana College in Pineville formally announced its new name Louisiana Christian University on November 16, 2021, during a meeting of the Louisiana Baptist Convention, according to a Wednesday news release, although in November 2022 it was brought to the attention of the Louisiana Baptist Convention that the school had failed to legally change its name with the state of Louisiana. A motion was brought before the convention to refer to LCU by its legal name (Louisiana College) until such a time as the school's legal name had changed but the motion was denied.
