Michigan All-Americans

Harry Kipke | 1924

Richard Doyle | 1926

Bennie Oosterbaan | 1927 & 1928

Ernest McCoy | 1929

Joseph Truskowski | 1929

John Townsend | 1937 & 1938

Pete Elliott | 1948

Ron Kramer | 1957

Harry Kipke | 1924

Harry Kipke earned All-America honors from the Helms Foundation during the 1923-24 season under head coach E.J. Mather and helped the Wolverines post a 10-7 overall record. While a native of Lansing, Mich., Kipke helped the Wolverines secure winning records in all three seasons donning the Maize & Blue.

Richard Doyle | 1926

Richard Doyle earned an All-America distinction for his play in the 1925-26 basketball season, captaining E.J. Mather's 1925-26 team which posted a 12-5 overall record (8-4 in conference play). Along with future All-American, Bennie Oosterbaan, Doyle led the Wolverines to a share of the Western Conference title that year, the second conference basketball championship in school history.

Bennie Oosterbaan | 1927 & 1928

One of the greatest athletes to ever attend Michigan, Bennie Oosterbaan earned All-America recognition five times; twice in basketball (1927 and 1928) and three times in football (1925, 1926 and 1927). On the basketball court, Oosterbaan helped solidify Michigan's first great teams, playing a key role on E.J. Mather's consecutive Western Conference basketball championship teams in 1925-26 and 1926-27. In 1928, Oosterbaan led the Western Conference in scoring on his way to earning an All-American recognition for the second straight year. A true student-athlete, Oosterbaan was awarded the Western Conference Medal of Honor for proficiency in scholarship and athletics. He earned a total of nine varsity letters during his time at Michigan, before later going on to coach the Michigan basketball and football teams.

Ernie McCoy | 1929

As captain of Michigan's 1928-29 basketball team, Ernie McCoy led the Wolverines to their fourth Western Conference championship while also earning All-American honors. In that season, George Veenker's Wolverines went 13-3 (10-2 in conference play) and shared the conference title with Wisconsin. McCoy also played on E.J. Mather's 1926-27 squad that won the Western Conference title after posting a 14-3 record (10-2 in the conference). McCoy graduated from the University of Michigan in the class of 1929 and was awarded the Western Conference Medal of Honor for scholarship and athletics. He later became athletic director at Penn State University.

Joe Truskowski | 1929

Joe Truskowski earned All-American recognition during the 1928-29 season while helping U-M earn its fourth Western Conference championship. Truskowski and the Wolverines went 13-3 (10-2 in conference play) while sharing the conference crown with Wisconsin. Truskowski, a native of Detroit, was a basketball letter winner at Michigan in 1927, '29 and '30.

John Townsend | 1938

John Townsend became an All-American following the 1937-38 basketball season after captaining coach Frank Cappon's Wolverine squad to a 12-8 overall record and a 6-6 mark in Western Conference play. Known as one of the best playmakers of his era, Townsend lettered and earned all-conference honors in each of his three seasons as a Michigan varsity basketball player (1935-38). In addition to representing Michigan on the hardwood, Townsend served the university as a member of its Board in Control of Intercollegiate Athletics during the 1937-38 school year.

Pete Elliott | 1948

Pete Elliott earned All-American honors after helping Michigan earn its first NCAA Tournament appearance and winning the Big Ten championship in 1947-48. Elliott and the Wolverines posted a 16-6 overall record (10-2 in conference play) in the third season of his four-year career at Michigan. A native of Bloomington, Ind., Elliott helped guide the Wolverines to a perfect 9-0 home record during the 1947-48 season.

Ron Kramer | 1957

Ron Kramer earned All-American honors from the National Association of Basketball Coaches during the 1956-57 season while averaging 14.5 points per game for the Maize and Blue. Kramer was a three-time All-Big Ten selection and was also named Michigan's Most Valuable Player three times during his U-M career. A native of Detroit, Kramer helped lead the Wolverines to a 13-9 record during the 1956-57 season.

Bill Buntin | 1964 & 1965

An All-American in 1964 and '65, Bill Buntin, a talented 6-foot-7 center from Detroit, led Michigan to the Big Ten championship and a second-place finish in the NCAA Tournament during the 1965 season. A three-time All-Big Ten selection, Buntin was known as a ferocious rebounder, leading the conference in boards as a sophomore with 15.7 per game. During his career as a Wolverine, Buntin scored 1,725 points, ninth best in Michigan history; averaged 21.8 points per game, fourth best in Wolverine history; hauled in 1,037 rebounds, second most on Michigan's all-time list; and averaged 13.1 rebounds per game, second in Michigan history. In honor of Bill Buntin's contributions to the resurgence of the Wolverine basketball program, each year the Michigan team honors its best player(s) with the Bill Buntin Most Valuable Player Award.

Cazzie Russell | 1964, 1965 & 1966

A three time All-American, Cazzie Russell is a legend whose name is synonymous with Michigan basketball. To any true fan, Michigan basketball is defined as BC (Before Cazzie) and AC (After Cazzie). Before his time at Michigan, which included three straight Big Ten championships, 65 victories, and seven victories in 10 NCAA Tournament games, fans had become accustomed to empty seats in Yost Fieldhouse and last-place finishes in the Big Ten. Cazzie turned Michigan Basketball around during his three year career, capturing virtually every offensive statistical record at Michigan, including a 27 point per game average. Through his outside shooting, miraculous driving layups, and fierce rebounding, Cazzie dominated the court on both ends. His tough, physical, and elite style of play led to All-American recognitions each of his three years as a Wolverine, and allowed him to be selected first overall in the 1966 NBA draft. Russell's career is still forever marked by the time he spent in Ann Arbor, with fans and media packing Yost Fieldhouse to watch his greatness, as he cemented himself as the defining figure of Michigan Basketball in the 1960s, '70s, '80s, and into the '90s.

Rudy Tomjanovich | 1970

Rudy Tomjanovich used an outstanding jump shot and a knack for grabbing rebounds to average 30 points and 15 boards per game, earning All-America honors in 1970. Tomjanovich's accomplishments in Crisler Arena's first three seasons (1967-70) made him one of Michigan's basketball immortals. Over the course of three seasons, the 6-foot-7 forward corralled 1,039 rebounds, the highest career total in Michigan history, and led the Big Ten in rebounding twice (1968-69 and 1969-70). Additionally, he led the team in scoring in each of his three seasons, scoring 1,808 points in his career, seventh best on Michigan's career list. Tomjanovich still holds Crisler Arena records for single-game scoring and field goals (48 points and 21 field goals vs. Indiana on 1-7-69) and single-game rebounding (27 in Michigan's first game in Crisler Arena vs. Kentucky on 12-2-67). On Feb. 8, 2003, Tomjanovich's No. 45 jersey became just the second to hang from the Crisler Arena rafters, joining U-M legend Cazzie Russell.

Henry Wilmore | 1971 & 1972

Henry Wilmore employed tremendous work ethic and dedication to earn All-America honors at forward in 1971 and 1972. In his first season with the Wolverines, Wilmore scored 650 points, averaging a team high 25.0 per game. He also averaged 9.8 rebounds per contest, second best on the team that season. In addition to All-America recognition in 1970-71, he was selected to play for the United States in the Pan-American Games. In 1971-72, Wilmore continued to excel on the court, leading the team in scoring with 24.0 points and grabbing 8.6 rebounds per game, once again earning All-Big Ten and All-America kudos. He ranks third at Michigan in career free throws made (460), second in single season free throws made (182), third in career scoring average (23.6 ppg), and 10th all-time in scoring (1,652 points).

Campy Russell | 1974

Campy Russell came to Michigan touted as the best prep basketball player in the nation, and lived up to that reputation in his two seasons on the Michigan varsity squad (1972-74). A consensus All-America forward and Michigan co-captain in 1974, Russell was a complete basketball player, as evidenced by his ability to fill the lane, trigger a fast break, advance the ball up court, and play tight defense. In his first season at Michigan, Russell led the team in rebounding (9.6 rpg) and was second in scoring (18.4 ppg). In the 1973-74 season, his second and final as a Wolverine, Russell scored 640 points (23.7 ppg) to lead Michigan and the Big Ten in scoring. He was also second in the conference in rebounding, averaging 11.1 per game.

C.J. Kupec | 1975

C.J. Kupec continued Michigan's trend of workhorse big men as he finished his Michigan career with 967 points and 609 rebounds in 76 games. He was a two-time All-Big Ten second team selection in 1974 and 1975, as well as Michigan's MVP in 1975. He earned All-America honors in 1975 and later was a fourth-round selection of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Phil Hubbard | 1977

Phil Hubbard scored 1,455 points and grabbed 979 rebounds in his Michigan career and it could have been more if not for a knee injury that sidelined him for the entire 1978 season. In 1977, he earned All-America honors, All-Big Ten first team accolades and U-M's MVP and Most Improved Player awards. Finishing his career in 1979, Hubbard went on to play 10 years in the NBA for the Detroit Pistons and the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Rickey Green | 1977

Rickey Green came to Michigan in 1975 after two junior college All-America seasons. One of the most exciting players to play for Michigan, Green terrorized opponents defensively, often making a big steal and leading the fast break. He led Michigan to the 1976 NCAA Final Four as a junior and the 1977 Big Ten championship as a senior. In his two years at Michigan, Green scored 1,184 points, the most by a Michigan player in a two-year career at that time. Twice selected to the NCAA All-Tournament team, Green was a consensus All-Big Ten selection each of his two years at Michigan. He was honorable mention All-America in 1976 and a consensus first team selection in 1977. He was the runner-up for the nation's collegiate player of the year that season.

Mike McGee | 1981

A scoring machine, Mike McGee quickly made his mark the first time he stepped on the court. One of only five Wolverines to surpass 2,000 career points, McGee finished his career with 2,439 points and still holds the U-M mark for career field goals with 1,010. He scored in double figures in 108 of 114 career games. He was an All-Big Ten first team member in 1978 and second team member in 1980. McGee was named an Associated Press All-America honorable mention in 1981.

Eric Turner | 1981

Eric Turner made the most of his three years in Maize and Blue as he helped Michigan establish itself as one of the dominant teams of the 1980s. The three-time All-Big Ten second team selection started 82 of 85 career games and scored 1,251 career points for a 14.7 per game average. He also dished out 421 career assists, which is fifth in school history. In 1981, Turner was named an All-America honorable mention by The Sporting News.

Roy Tarpley | 1985 & 1986

Considered a gamble by most colleges, Roy Tarpley became one of the elite centers in all of college basketball during his four years at Michigan. In 1985, Tarpley was named the Big Ten Player of the Year and earned All-America second team honors. He was an All-Big Ten first team member in 1985 and 1986 and was named Michigan's MVP three straight years. Tarpley finished his career with 1,601 points and 953 rebounds. He is U-M's all-time leader in blocks with 251 and holds the record for most blocks in a season with 97.

Gary Grant | 1987 & 1988

Gary Grant came to Michigan in 1984 and made an immediate impact on Wolverine Basketball. Excelling defensively, he was named Big Ten Freshman of the Year in 1985, ushering Michigan to the Big Ten Conference championship and a 26-4 record. He later developed the offensive skills that made him the best two-way guard in college basketball, as he was the first Big Ten player to score 1,000 points, record 600 assists and collect 200 steals in a career. He earned numerous accolades during his time as a Wolverine, including consensus All-America honors in 1988, AP and UPI Big Ten Player of the Year in 1988 and All-Big Ten honors in 1987 and 1988. Grant is Michigan's all-time leading assist man with 731 for his career, 234 of which came in the 1987-88 season. He also ranks fourth at Michigan in career scoring (2,222 points) and third career field goals (896). Grant also holds school career records for steals (300) and steal average (2.33 spg). In the season record book, he holds records for assists (234 in 1987-88), assist average (6.88 apg in 1987-88), steals (86 in 1986-87) and steal average (2.69 spg in 1986-87).

Glen Rice | 1988 & 1989

The most prolific scorer in Michigan history, All-American Glen Rice left Michigan after leading the Wolverines to the 1989 NCAA championship. He set an NCAA Tournament record with 184 points in six games while leading the Wolverines to the title and being named the tournament's Most Outstanding Player. Rice won Big Ten Conference scoring titles and all-conference accolades in 1988 and 1989. Rice ranks second all-time in the Big Ten for field goals made in a season (363, 1988-89). He is also third all-time in the conference for career scoring (2,442), career field goals made (1,002) and career three-point field goal percentage (.480, 135-281). Rice currently holds Michigan records for career scoring (2,442 points), single-season scoring (949 points), single-season field goals made (363 in 1988-89) and attempted (629 in 1988-89), single-season three-point field goal percentage (.5156, 1988-89) and scoring in an NCAA Tournament game (39 vs. Florida in 1988). Rice also holds the single-game record for both Michigan and the Big Ten in three-point field goal percentage, going a perfect 7-for-7 against Wisconsin on Feb. 25, 1989.

Rumeal Robinson | 1990

An All-America guard for the 1989-90 season, Rumeal Robinson is remembered by most as the man who secured Michigan's 1989 NCAA basketball championship. Robinson sank two free throws with three seconds remaining in overtime to seal Michigan's victory over Seton Hall in the championship game. The 6-foot-2 guard's outstanding play throughout the 1989 NCAA Tournament earned him a spot on the all-tournament team. A three-year starter in the Michigan backcourt, Robinson was a consensus 1990 All-Big Ten selection, a finalist for the 1990 Pete Maravich and John Wooden awards, and an All-American. Robinson finished his career ranked 12th on Michigan's all-time scoring list (1,446 points), second in career assists (575), seventh in career free throws made (331), and fourth in career three-point field goals (85).

Loy Vaught | 1990

Averaging 15.5 points per game, Loy Vaught earned All-America honors during the 1989-90 season. The senior from Grand Rapids, Mich., helped the Maize and Blue to a 23-8 overall record (12-6 in conference play), just one season after helping the Wolverines with the 1989 National Championship. Vaught was an All-Big Ten Second Team selection in 1990, after earning All-Big Ten Third Team honors in 1989. Vaught ranks third all-time in rebounds in Michigan history and the annual U-M rebounding award is named in his honor.

Terry Mills | 1990

Terry Mills averaged 18.1 points per game and earned All-America recognition during the 1989-90 season. A native of Romulus, Mich., Mills finished his three-year career at U-M as a Second Team All-Big Ten honoree and was also named Michigan's Co-Most Valuable Player, along with Rumeal Robinson. A key member of Michigan's run to the National Championship in 1989, Mills went on to play 11 seasons in the NBA.

Chris Webber | 1992 & 1993

In just two years with the Wolverines, Chris Webber won countless accolades and was a nominee for virtually every award given to college basketball players. As the consensus number one high school prospect coming into college, Webber entered Michigan amid much fanfare. His freshman season did not disappoint, as he became the only freshman in history to lead the Big Ten in rebounding, topped the conference in steals, and was tabbed as the Big Ten Freshman of the Year. He started every game in his Michigan career and ranks second in career blocks at the school with 175. Webber also found his way to the top of several other statistical categories at Michigan, including field goal percentage (third), rebounding average (sixth), steals (10th), scoring average (10th), and rebounds (12th). Webber remains the only player to earn a spot on the NCAA All-Tournament team in both his freshman and sophomore seasons. An honorable mention All-American in his inaugural season, Webber led the Wolverines to the NCAA Tournament's final game, where they fell to defending national champion Duke 71-51. As a sophomore, the 6-foot-9 forward and consensus All-

American found himself and the Wolverines at the brink of a national title yet again, losing to North Carolina in the NCAA tournament final. Webber's time in Ann Arbor was so impressive that he was selected with the top overall pick in the 1993 NBA draft, joining Cazzie Russell as the only two Wolverines to be chosen with the No. 1 overall selection in an NBA draft.

Jalen Rose | 1992 & 1994

Relentlessly pursued by major college programs out of Detroit's Southwestern High School, Jalen Rose put his signature on the Michigan basketball program in a number of ways. Named an All-American by numerous publications in both his freshman and junior seasons, Rose garnered All-Big Ten honors in each of his three years as a Wolverine. Starting all but one of his 102 career games, Rose had ample opportunity to mount an assault on the Michigan record books, as the 6-foot-8 guard became just the second player in school history, along with Gary Grant, to record over 1,500 points, 400 rebounds, 300 assists and 100 steals in his career. Rose ranks near the top in many career categories at Michigan, including three-point field goals attempted (second), three-point field goals made (third), free throws made (fourth), field goals made (sixth), scoring (sixth), assists (sixth) and steals (eighth). In Rose's 102 games as a Wolverine, he scored in double figures an astounding 98 times and is one of only six Michigan players to record three 500-point seasons. An integral part of the "Fab Five," Rose put on some of his best performances under the national spotlight of the NCAA Tournament, being named Most Outstanding Player of the 1992 NCAA Southeast Regional, as well as to the All-Tournament team the same year. In addition, he was selected to the 1993 NCAA West Regional All-Tournament squad.

Juwon Howard | 1994

Juwon Howard was the first member of the famed "Fab Five" recruiting class to commit to Michigan. Named an All-Big Ten honoree in each of his three seasons as a Wolverine, Howard was also recognized as an All-American twice in the same season. As co-captain his junior year, Howard is one of only six Wolverines in history to score 1,500 points and grab 700 rebounds in his career. Howard's name appears among the leaders on numerous Michigan career lists, including rebounding (11th), field goals (12th), field goal attempts (12th), scoring (14th), games started (15th) and NCAA Tournament scoring (second). In fact, the 6-foot-9 forward saved his best play for the NCAA Tournament, being named to the All-Tournament teams at the 1993 NCAA West Regional and the 1994 NCAA Midwest Regional. His 280 points in NCAA Tournament action rank him ninth in the history of the championship. Howard was chosen fifth overall in the 1994 NBA Draft by the Washington Bullets (Wizards) and later went on to coach the Michigan Basketball program after his time in the league.

Louis Bullock | 1998

Louis Bullock averaged 17.1 points per game during the 1997-98 season while helping the Wolverines to a 25-9 overall record (11-5 in conference play) and the inaugural Big Ten Tournament championship. In four seasons as a Wolverine, the Temple Hills, Md., native made 339 3-point field goals, a program record. Bullock was a four-time All-Big Ten honoree, earning honorable mention recognition as a freshman before garnering second team honors in each of his next three seasons as a Wolverine.

Robert Traylor | 1998

Robert Traylor earned All-America honors during the 1997-98 season while helping to guide the Wolverines to the inaugural Big Ten Tournament championship. Traylor averaged 16.2 points and 10.1 rebounds per game as the Wolverines posted a 25-9 record (11-5 in conference play). Traylor was a First Team All-Big Ten selection and also earned Most Valuable Player honors at the Big Ten Tournament. A native of Detroit, Traylor recorded 29 double-doubles during his U-M career, ninth-most in school history.

Trey Burke | 2012 & 2013

Trey Burke earned All-America recognition as an honorable mention following his freshman season at Michigan after helping guide the Wolverines to their first Big Ten regular season title in 26 seasons. Burke averaged 14.8 points per contest and dished out 156 assists, breaking a 27-year old record for assists by a Michigan freshman. Burke was named Co-Big Ten Freshman of the Year and was a Second Team All-Big Ten selection during the 2011-12 season. As a sophomore in 2012-13, Burke won the John R. Wooden, Naismith, Oscar Robertson, Associated Press, NABC and Sports Illustrated National Player of the Year awards, becoming only the second Wolverine in program history to earn National Player of the Year honors, joining Cazzie Russell (1966). Burke earned Consensus All-America honors, having been recognized by the John R. Wood All-America Team, the Associated Press, the NABC, the USBWA, Sporting News, Sports Illustrated, Basketball Times, CBSSports.com and the Luke Olson All-America team. Burke also became Michigan's first winner of the Bob Cousy Award as the nation's Top Collegiate Point Guard and was named Big Ten Player of the Year by both the conference coaches and media. Burke helped U-M reach its first Final Four in 20 seasons, earning All-Tournament honors, as the Maize and Blue tied a school record for wins with a 31-8 record. Burke scored 727 points (18.6 ppg), the fifth-best single-season total in U-M history, dished out a school single-season record 260 assists (6.67 apg), 12th-most in the nation, and registered a 3.02 assist-to-turnover ratio, the fifth-best mark in the country. Burke scored 1,231 points and recorded 416 assists during his remarkable two-year career in Ann Arbor.

Franz Wagner | 2021

Nik Stauskas | 2014

The Big Ten Player of the Year in 2014, Nik Stauskas was named to seven All-America teams following his sophomore season in Ann Arbor. The Mississauga, Ontario, native earned first team honors from the National Association of Basketball Coach (NABC), second team recognition from the Associated Press and Sporting News and third team accolades from USA Today and Basketball Times, as well as spots on the John R. Wooden and Lute Olson All-America Teams. Stauskas averaged 17.5 points, 3.3 assists and 2.9 rebounds per game during the 2013-14 season, leading U-M to a 28-9 overall record, an outright Big Ten championship and to the Elite Eight in the NCAA Tournament. Stauskas was the seventh player in school history to earn Big Ten Player of the Year honors, and the second consecutive, following Trey Burke in 2013; he was the only unanimous selection to the All-Big Ten First Team by both the coaches and media. Stauskas was also named the United States Basketball Writers Association's (USBWA) District V Player of the Year. One of the best pure shooters in the nation, Stauskas shot 44.1 percent from three-point range (92-of-208), the 10th-best single-season in program history and 13th nationally in 2013-14. His 92 triples and 208 attempts are both fourth-most in school history. His 630 points made Stauskas just the 21st Wolverine to score 600-plus points in a season and he was just the eighth sophomore in school history to reach 1,000 career points (1,060).

Ignas Brazdeikis | 2019

Ignas Brazdeikis earned Associated Press Honorable Mention All-American recognition following his freshman season at U-M. Named the Big Ten's Freshman of the Year, All-Big Ten second team and to the Big Ten's All-Freshman team, Brazdeikis led U-M in scoring with 14.8 points per game -- the first freshman since 2012 to do so. He added 5.4 rebounds per game. Brazdeikis was a four-time Big Ten Freshman of the Week and helped the Wolverines reach the championship game of the conference tournament for the third straight year. He was instrumental in U-M reaching the NCAA Sweet 16 for the third straight year before losing to national runner-up Texas Tech. With his play, he helped U-M to its second straight 30 win season posting a 30-7 season record.

Isaiah Livers | 2021

Captaining the squad during a pandemic senior year, Isaiah Livers experienced lots of success during his four years in the Maize and Blue. While a Wolverine, Livers helped U-M advance to three straight NCAA Sweet 16s (2018, '19, '21), two NCAA Elite Eight (2018, '21) and one Final Four (2018) appearance. Livers game behind the line was unrivaled. During his senior year he shot a U-M best 43.1 percent from long range and led the squad with 50 3-pointers, this third straight season with 30+ triples. His performance on the court and leadership skills helped U-M win the 2021 Big Ten regular season title, the first under Coach Juwan Howard. Livers added a number of recognitions to his resume including being named to the All-Big Ten second team, the Associated Press' All-Big Ten second team and a finalist for the Basketball

Hall of Fame, Julius Erving Award for Top Small Forward (2021).

Franz Wagner | 2021

After only two seasons at Michigan, one of which was cut short due to the coronavirus pandemic, Franz Wagner started 55 consecutive games and helped the Wolverines clinch their first Big Ten regular season title under Coach Juwan Howard. During his sophomore season, Wagner started all 28 games, led the Wolverines in steals (35), shot 83.5 percent from the free throw line, recorded 29 blocks, and helped U-M advance to its fourth straight NCAA Sweet 16 and another NCAA Elite Eight appearance. Off the court, Wagner excelled in the classroom; he was named Academic All-Big Ten (2021), Big Ten Distinguished Scholar (2021) and CoSIDA Academic All-America (2021). As a freshman, Wagner was awarded the U-M Athletic Academic Achievement award (2020) and was named U-M Academic Success Program Rookie of the Year (2020; male athlete). Wagner was drafted No. 8 to the Orlando Magic in the 2021 NBA draft, where he was reunited with older brother and Michigan Alumni, Moe Wagner.

Hunter Dickinson | 2021

Following a breakout freshman season, Hunter Dickinson was named Big Ten Freshman of the Year, the Associated Press's Big Ten Newcomer of the Year and Associated Press All-America, second team. In addition to being named Big Ten Freshman of the Week seven times, tying Trey Burke for most honors in a single season, Dickinson was named to the All-Big Ten, first team and Big Ten All-Freshman Team. During his first year in the Maize and Blue, Dickinson played in all 28 games off the 2020-21 season and led the Wolverines in points (14.1 ppg), the first freshman to lead in scoring since Ignas Brazdeikis. Dickinson dominated the glass; averaging 7.4 rpg, he led the team with 61 offensive rebounds, nearly double the next Wolverine. Commanding both ends of the floor, the freshman played a major role in helping Michigan claim the Big Ten regular season title, advance to the NCAA Sweet 16, its fourth straight since 2017, and add another NCAA Elite Eight appearance.

The Honored Five | Cazzie Russell (#33; U-M's Only Retired Jersey)

When you look through the history of college basketball, there are certain names that become synonymous with different colleges. When you think about Cincinnati, you think of Oscar Robinson. Hearing Indiana State and the University of San Francisco, Larry Bird and Bill Russell come to mind.

The same can be said for the University of Michigan.

As you walk into Crisler Arena and look to the rafters, there it is - No. 33. That number belongs to the great Cazzie Russell, arguably the greatest Michigan player ever to step foot on the Michigan campus.

From 1964-66, the 6'5", 220-pound Russell dazzled the Wolverine fans, attracting turnouts so large the university built Crisler Arena to hold the crowds Yost Fieldhouse could no longer contain.

Russell led Michigan to three consecutive Big Ten titles, to the NCAA finals his junior year and to the semifinals his sophomore year. In his senior year, he averaged 30.8 points per game and was honored as the National Player of the Year. After his great career at Michigan, he went on to become the New York Knicks' No. 1 pick in the 1966 NBA draft, decided by the flip of a coin.

With the freshmen eligibility rules, Russell did not step onto the court at Yost Fieldhouse until his sophomore season in 1963. That year, the sensational guard from Chicago Carver High School led the Wolverines to their most successful basketball season in its history, going 23-5 and taking third-place in the NCAA Championship in Kansas City. The Wolverines turned in an 11-3 performance to share the Big Ten crown with Ohio State, the first time since 1948 that the Wolverines reached that mark. In defeating Loyola and Ohio University, it was the first time Michigan had won its regional.

Russell carried the load for the Wolverines, setting a new Michigan single season scoring mark of 670 points and averaging 24.8 points a contest. Russell was named to the Coaches All-American team by season's end. He was also chosen for the Olympic tryout the following summer but an ankle injury handicapped in his bid.

In his junior season, Russell took the Wolverines further into the national spotlight. Completing their Big Ten season at 13-1, the Wolverines defended their Big Ten title with success. They went on to finish the season 24-4, including a tough loss to UCLA in the NCAA championship finals in Portland, OR. The All-American Russell eclipsed his own Michigan single season scoring mark with 692 points, averaging 25.6 points a game, and was named the Big Ten's Most Valuable Player.

Russell's senior year was filled with accomplishments and accolades. For the third straight year, the Wolverines took the Big Ten title going 11-3 in conference. Overall, the team went 18-8, making it to the NCAA Elite Eight. As he ended his collegiate career against Kentucky in the NCAA regional at Iowa City, he scored his 800th point of the season to run his three year career record to 2,164 points in 80 games for a career average of 27.05 points per game.

In three years, Russell set the Michigan single season scoring mark each year, capped off by his 30.8 average his senior year. The three-time All-American was named the winner of the Big Ten's Most Valuable Player award for the second straight year. In winning the Silver Basketball award given annually by the Chicago Tribune, Russell became the first Michigan player to win the award since it was established in 1946.

Russell also averaged 13 field goals per game in Big Ten competition to lead the league with a 33.2 point average. His 13 goals per game were a new record, surpassing the 12.4 mark set by Gary Bradds of Ohio State in 1964. Russell set a new Michigan single-game scoring mark as he poured in 48 points against Northwestern, a total that also broke the all-time individual scoring mark set at Yost Fieldhouse by John Tidwell (43) in 1961. Against San Francisco early in the season, he set a Chicago Stadium mark of 45 points. He also became the sixth player in history to score more than 1,000 points in Big Ten games as he passed this mark against Iowa in Yost Fieldhouse on February 19, 1966.

During his three years at Michigan, the Wolverines won 65 games and lost 17 overall, and with Russell and captain Oliver Darden playing, they won 31 games and lost just two at Yost Fieldhouse.

In his 12-year career in the NBA, Russell played for the New York Knicks, Golden State Warriors, Los Angeles Lakers, and ended his career in his hometown with the Chicago Bulls in 1978. Russell was named to the NBA All-Star team once, but said his most memorable moment came during the 1969-70 season while he was a key contributor in the New York Knicks' NBA Championship run.

After his playing days were over, Russell began his Continental Basketball Association coaching career in 1981, by leading the Lancaster (Pa.) Lightning to the league championship. Staying in the CBA for eight years, Russell guided the Wyoming Wildcatters to the CBA finals in 1988, and then was hired as an assistant coach by the Atlanta Hawks. Russell went back to the CBA in 1990 when he was named the head coach of the Grand Rapids Hoops. Today, you can find Russell coaching at the Savannah College of Art and Design, a Division III school. One of the most memorable moments in Russell's basketball career came on December 11, 1993 in front of a sold out Crisler Arena. Standing at center court, Russell became the first Wolverine basketball player to have his uniform retired. A banner bearing his No. 33, his name, and the years he played at Michigan - 1964, 1965, 1966 - was raised to hang from the rafters of Crisler Arena, which has long been known as "The House That Cazzie Built."

Russell single handedly lifted the University of Michigan's Basketball program to national recognition. For that he will always be considered one of the best to ever put on a Michigan jersey.

The Honored Five | Bill Buntin (#22)

"We had no idea just how good he really was," said former Michigan freshman basketball coach Tom Jorgensen.

Perhaps even decades later, we will never be able to comprehend the greatness that Bill Buntin displayed on a basketball court. Less than three years after reaching the height of his college career, Buntin collapsed and died of a heart ailment during a pick-up game at Detroit Cathedral High in 1968. He was only 26.

Buntin did not live long enough to relish a long list of awards and accolades, yet the mark he established and the records he set at Michigan speak strongly for his character and what he had accomplished on and off the court.

The 6'7" center was considered undersized and too weak to excel in the rigorous Big Ten Conference, known nationally for tough play under the basket. But that was just the way Buntin liked it. Always looking to prove his critics wrong, Buntin countered a lack of height with an astonishing 50-inch-plus vertical leap and a toughness that allowed him to play 79 out of 80 career games. He also had an elusive scoring style that helped him to score over 1,700 career points.

Before heading to Ann Arbor, Buntin starred at Detroit Northern High School and was recruited by several schools all over the country. But after suffering a broken leg early in his senior year, several schools lost interest in recruiting Buntin. He instead enrolled at the Brewster Center in Detroit, a former talent bed of freestyle inner city players.

Playing at Brewster brought out Buntin's real capabilities as a player. He developed a rough-and-tumble rebounding style to go along with a soft hook shot on offense.

"You take your lumps at Brewster," said Buntin as a sophomore. "It's kill or be killed under the basket there."

As college coaches began hearing of Buntin's game they flocked from all over to make a sales pitch to the rising star. Buntin took notice when he was introduced to Michigan coach Dave Strack and Northern High's principal Don Murray, son, Charley Murray, was a former Michigan Basketball captain. The meeting turned out to be beneficial for all parties as Strack and Murray played crucial roles in influencing Buntin to attend Michigan and continue his basketball career on the collegiate level.

Buntin burst onto the college basketball scene in 1962, averaging 22.2 points and 15.7 rebounds a game while playing with a heavily wrapped leg, still suffering from his high school injury. "Big Bill" led the Big Ten with 216 total rebounds in 14 games, while his 534 points that season set a new Michigan individual season scoring record, surpassing John Tidwell's 1959-60 record of 520 points. Buntin was recognized for his efforts when he was named to the All-Big Ten first team and Michigan's Most Valuable Player.

Buntin followed a terrific sophomore season with an even more outstanding junior year. Raising his field goal percentage from .429 to .495, Buntin averaged 23.2 points and 12.5 rebounds en route to being named an All-Big Ten first team selection and an NCAA All-American. He carried the Wolverines to their first conference championship in 16 seasons and to the NCAA Final Four.

During that 1963-64 season, Buntin paired with sophomore All-American forward Cazzie Russell, who averaged 24.8 points per game, to form one of the best basketball duos in Michigan history.

The duo of Buntin and Russell helped lead the Wolverines to the Final Four in Michigan's second-ever trip to the NCAA Tournament. The Wolverines ran up against national powerhouse Duke in the semifinal game. The experience of the Blue Devils, who had been in the Final Four the season before, proved too much for Michigan as Duke prevailed, 91-80. The Wolverines struck with a vengeance in the consolation game, however, and defeated Kansas State 100-90 to capture third place in the NCAA Tournament.

After Michigan's first Final Four appearance, Buntin entered his senior year with high hopes of repeated success. Buntin did not disappoint, guiding the 1964-65 Wolverines to their second straight Big Ten title and first trip to the NCAA Championship game.

Buntin, who averaged 20.1 points and 11.5 rebounds, led the team in field goal percentage (.487) and earned All-Big Ten first team honors for the third straight season. After making their second straight run to the Final Four, the Wolverines came up short in their quest for a national championship, falling 91-80 to John Wooden's UCLA Bruins.

Despite it all, an "undersized" Buntin used his experiences from the Detroit hardwood to dominate the college boards throughout his career. He is one of just two players in Michigan history to collect over 1,000 career rebounds as he finished with 1,037 in just three seasons, which ranks second all-time in Michigan history. He also finished with 1,724 career points, which is ninth all-time on the Michigan career list.

With a career average of 21.8 points and 13.1 rebounds a game, Buntin proved he was a giant when it came to college basketball. In fact, his 58 double-doubles in 79 career games is the most of any player in Wolverine history.

After his three outstanding seasons with the Wolverines, Buntin was drafted with the No. 2 pick by the Detroit Pistons in the 1965 NBA territorial draft. He played one season in the NBA, averaging 7.7 points and 6.0 rebounds in 42 games during the 1965-66 season.

In addition to his brief stint in the NBA, Buntin also played with the American Basketball Association's Indiana Pacers before switching sports and leagues, signing a deal to play with the National Football League's Detroit Lions. He never saw any game action with the Lions, as he ended his professional career in 1967 to go back to school.

At the young age of 26, Buntin decided to return to Michigan to complete his final semester and earn a degree in education. He had always loved working with children and was a student teacher at Slauson Junior High School in Ann Arbor before his untimely death in May of 1968.

Buntin, along with Russell, helped to bring Michigan basketball back to the top of the national scene, a position it stays at even today. We may never know how much Buntin could have accomplished, but he continues to be honored at the end of each season as the Michigan Most Valuable Player Award was established in his honor following his passing.

Buntin always proved hard work would pay off. There were no limits to what a person could do. He proved that in just three seasons on the college hardwood.

The Honored Five | Phil Hubbard (#35)

Over 400 players have earned letters playing for the Maize and Blue over the years, yet only five have reached 1,400 points and 900 rebounds in their careers. Rudy Tomjanovich leads this elite group with 1,808 points and 1,039 rebounds, followed by Bill Buntin (1,725 points and 1,037 rebounds), Loy Vaught (1,451 points and 993 rebounds) and Roy Tarpley (1,601 points and 953 rebounds). The list is rounded out by Phil Hubbard, a dominant post player for three years, scoring 1,455 points and hauling in 979 rebounds.

Hubbard came to Michigan in 1975 as a 6'8", 200-pound, prep All-American out of Canton, Ohio, where he was named the Ohio Player of the Year. Once in Ann Arbor, he immediately made an impact, cracking the starting lineup as a freshman. He helped lead U-M to a school-record 25 wins and a 14-4 mark in Big Ten Conference play, good enough for second place. In the NCAA Tournament, the Wolverines defeated Wichita State, Notre Dame and Missouri on their way to the NCAA Final Four, where Michigan defeated Rutgers before falling to Indiana in the championship contest. It marked only the second time the Wolverines had reached the championship game.

That season, Hubbard set the Michigan freshman record with a team-leading 352 rebounds. He also finished second on the team in scoring with 15.1 points per game to average a double-double for the season. For his efforts, Hubbard was awarded All-Big Ten honorable mention recognition.

After Hubbard's successful entrance into collegiate basketball, he was chosen to represent the United States at the 1976 Montreal Olympics. There, he averaged 4.7 points and 3.8 rebounds per game as the U.S. won the Olympic gold medal.

In Hubbard's sophomore season, the Wolverines posted a 26-4 record and earned a second straight berth to the NCAA Tournament. Michigan defeated Holy Cross and Detroit early in the tournament before falling to NC-Charlotte in the Elite Eight, finishing the season just one game shy of its second consecutive trip to the NCAA Final Four. The Maize and Blue did, however, win the Big Ten Championship outright in 1977 with a 16-2 record in conference play. It was the first time since 1965-66 that the Wolverines were the sole owners of the conference crown.

A large part of the Wolverines' success in 1976-77 was due to Hubbard, who led the Wolverines in both points and rebounds. He averaged 19.5 points per game as a sophomore and set a school record that still stands with 389 rebounds, posting a double-double average for the second straight season. Hubbard's performance earned him All-America honors, and once again, he was chosen to represent the United States. This time, Hubbard traveled to Sofia, Bulgaria, for the World University Games.

Although, Hubbard helped the U.S. team win the gold medal, he injured his knee in a contest against the Soviet Union. The injury forced Hubbard to miss his junior year, but he nonetheless captained the Wolverines to a 16-11 mark and a fourth place finish in the Big Ten.

Hubbard returned for the 1978-79 season as a senior captain. That year, U-M finished 15-12 overall and 8-10 in the conference for sixth place. Hubbard had another solid season in the post, leading the team for the third time with 238 rebounds. He also finished second on the team in points with a 14.8 points per game average. In his final season with the Wolverines, Hubbard earned All-Big Ten Conference honorable mention distinction.

In his three years on the court for the Wolverines, Hubbard averaged 16.5 points per game and 11.1 rebounds per game. He totaled 1,455 points and 979 rebounds, which currently rank 14th and fourth, all time at Michigan respectively. Forgoing his final year of eligibility, Hubbard entered the 1979 NBA draft where he was selected 15th overall by the Detroit Pistons.

Hubbard spent his first two full seasons in Detroit before being traded, along with Paul Mokeski and draft picks, to Cleveland for Bill Laimbeer and Kenny Carr in 1982. In his two years with the Pistons, Hubbard averaged 12.1 points per game and 6.3 rebounds in just over 24 minutes of action per game.

Hubbard spent the remainder of his 10-year NBA career with the Cavs, helping Cleveland reach the playoffs twice. His best season statistically was 1984-85, when he averaged 15.8 points and 6.3 rebounds in 76 games. On Dec. 4 of that season, Hubbard set a Cleveland Cavaliers record with 15 consecutive field goals on his way to a career-high 37 points against the Lakers. He retired after the 1988-89 season, having averaged 10.9 points per game and 5.3 rebounds throughout his NBA career.

In 1993, Hubbard returned to the NBA, working in the New York Knicks' front office for five years. Prior to the 1997-98 season, Hubbard began his coaching career as an assistant with the Atlanta Hawks under Lenny Wilkins. After three seasons, Hubbard moved to California to serve as an assistant with the Golden State Warriors for three seasons. Hubbard currently is an assistant coach with the Washington Wizards, a position he has held since July 2003.

Now, the latest chapter of Hubbard's basketball career is being written with the retirement of his No. 35 Michigan jersey. Hubbard joins former Wolverine greats Cazzie Russell and Rudy Tomjanovich as the only Michigan players to have their jerseys retired. Remembered as one of Michigan's best big men, Hubbard's jersey – along with Cazzie's and Rudy T's – serves as a constant reminder of the tradition and dignity of Michigan basketball.

The Honored Five | Glen Rice (#41)

April 3, 1989.

That date will go down in history as the greatest day in Michigan basketball history. That day, the Wolverines completed their improbable run through the NCAA Tournament and brought home Michigan's only basketball national championship with an 80-79 victory over Seton Hall. Senior captain Glen Rice led the way to the crown, scoring 31 points in the championship game, setting an NCAA Tournament record with 184 points in the tournament's six games, and taking home Most Outstanding Player honors.

Rice's phenomenal tournament performance capped one of the best individual seasons on Michigan record. Rice scored 949 points during the 1989 season to shatter the old record of 800 set in 1966 by the great Cazzie Russell. Rice also shot 51.6 percent from beyond the three-point arc that year to become the only Wolverine to shoot better than 50 percent from the three-point line over the course of a season. That season, Rice earned All-America honors as well as being named the Big Ten Player of the Year and the Big Ten-Jesse Owens Men's Athlete of the Year.

Rice came to Michigan in 1985 as a 6'7", 175 lb. freshman out of Flint Northwestern High School. Rice played in 32 games of the 1985-86 season, as the Wolverines finished 28-5 overall and won the conference championship with a 14-4 mark in the Big Ten. In the NCAA Tournament, Rice helped lead U-M to a first-round 70-64 victory over Akron, as he poured in a team-high 14 points.

As a freshman, Rice twice led the team in single-game scoring, averaging 7.0 points per game for the season. He also pulled down 97 rebounds and was second on the team in field goal percentage at 55.0 percent.

By the time Rice's sophomore year rolled around, he was a regular starter. During the 1986-87 season, Rice started 31 of the Wolverine's 32 games, helping Michigan to a 20-12 record. U-M finished fifth in the conference that year with a 10-8 Big Ten record, but the Wolverines did manage to make it to the second round of the NCAA Tournament, defeating Navy 97-

82 in the opening game.

Rice flourished his sophomore season scoring 16.9 points per game, good for second on the team. Rice also excelled on the glass, leading the team with 9.2 rebounds per game, including 13 games with at least 10 rebounds. For his efforts, Rice was named to the All-Big Ten second team by the UPI.

Rice took control of the team in 1988 when he led Michigan in both scoring and rebounding. The Wolverines finished the year with a 26-8 overall record and a 13-5 mark in conference play, good for second place. In the postseason, Rice helped U-M advance to the Sweet Sixteen with a Michigan NCAA Tournament record 39 points against Florida in the second round.

As a junior, Rice averaged 22.1 points per game and 7.2 rebounds. He scored over 25 points in 11 games and over 30 in five games. Rice poured in a career-high 40 points vs. Minnesota on Jan. 9, 1988 that also qualified for the third highest total ever at Crisler Arena. He also scored 39 points vs. Florida in the NCAA Tournament, 35 points against Iowa, 33 points against Michigan State and 30 points against Wisconsin. Rice's 728 total points earned him the Big Ten scoring title, becoming only the fourth Wolverine to do so. Rice was a first-team All Big Ten selection by both the AP and the UPI and was an All-American honorable mention as voted by the UPI.

After Rice's record setting senior season, he was selected fourth overall in the 1989 NBA draft by the Miami Heat. In addition to setting the single-season points (949), field goal attempts (629), field goals made (363) and three-point percentage (51.56%) records, Rice set a number of career records at Michigan. Rice set and still holds the career marks for games played (134) and points scored (2,442). He also set the records for three-point field goals made (135) and three-point field goals attempted (281) that have since been broken.

Despite all the records, Rice's greatest achievement while at Michigan was helping the Wolverines win the 1989 national championship. During Rice's tenure at U-M, the Wolverines posted a 104-32 overall record and a 49-23 record in the Big Ten. The Wolverines also won the 1986 Big Ten Championship, the last time Michigan claimed the conference crown.

Rice played with the Miami Heat for six year, averaging just under 20 points per game in his first six seasons in the NBA. Rice was named to the NBA All-Rookie Second Team after averaging 13.6 points in his first season with the Heat. In his final year with the Heat, Rice scored a career-high 56 points vs. the Orlando Magic on April 15, 1995. Prior to the 1995-96 season, Rice was traded to the Charlotte Hornets and had his most successful professional years. In 1997, Rice averaged 26.8 points, 4.0 rebounds and 2.0 assists. Rice was named to the NBA All-Star team each of his three seasons with the Hornets, earning the All-Star MVP award in 1997. During that game, Rice scored 26 total points and set All-Star game records with 20 points in the third quarter and 24 points in the second half.

Midway through the 1998-99 season, Rice was traded again, this time to the Los Angeles Lakers. Rice stayed with the Lakers through the 1999-2000 season in which he won an NBA Championship. He played the next season with the New York Knicks before moving on to the Houston Rockets where he still plays. Over his 14-year NBA career, Rice has averaged 18.6 points and 4.4 rebounds. He ranks 10th among active players and 48th all-time with 18,270 career points and is still the Miami Heat's all-time leading scorer with 9,248 points and the Charlotte Hornet's all-time leader in scoring average with 23.5 points per game. Rice also ranks third with 1,554 three-pointers made, fifth with 3,868 three-pointers attempted, and is tied for 14th with a three-point percentage of .402.

Rice was instrumental in bringing Michigan its only NCAA Championship in basketball and along the way he set the Wolverine's career scoring record with 2,242 points. He will always be considered one of the best to ever don the Maize and Blue.

The Honored Five | Rudy Tomjanovich (#45)

Some young players become stars overnight with their pure athletic ability. Others have less natural talent, but through hard work and dedication, become overachievers. It is through thousands of hours of practice that a player can take the skills he or she was given and develop into someone special – someone that has not settled for being average, but instead put everything they had into a game, not knowing what the outcome would be. In this case, the game was basketball, and the results of those efforts have put this player among the elite at the University of Michigan and in the international basketball landscape.

From 1968-70, Rudy Tomjanovich used the newly built Crisler Arena as his playground to rewrite the record books and make himself one of Michigan's basketball immortals. The forward was a true inside-outside player, as he combined a smooth outside jump shot with a rebounding ability that has been unmatched by any other player in U-M history. During his senior campaign, Tomjanovich was the NCAA's seventh leading scorer and 13th leading rebounder, averaging 30.1 points and 15.7 rebounds per game. After his career at Michigan, the San Diego Rockets drafted Tomjanovich with the No. 2 overall pick in the 1971 NBA Draft. He would go on to spend his entire 11-season playing career with the Rockets. After his playing days were over, Tomjanovich remained with the team and has become the most accomplished coach in the history of the franchise.

Tomjanovich was not able to play for the Wolverines until his sophomore season (1967-68) due to the freshman eligibility rules. His sophomore year was the inaugural season for Crisler Arena. During that year, he led the team with 19.5 points and 13.5 rebounds per game. The talented forward registered four games of 30 points or more and set the current Crisler Arena rebounding record in the first game of the season and of his career by pulling down 27 boards against Kentucky. He was later named to the All-Big Ten second team.

Tomjanovich started his junior year off with a bang, scoring 20 or more points in 11 straight games. He would go on to again lead the team with 25.7 points and 14.2 rebounds during a record-breaking year. Tomjanovich would score 40-plus points twice during the season, including tying the current single-game scoring record by lighting up the scoreboard for 48 points against Indiana. Tomjanovich set the current U-M single-game rebounding record as well that year, breaking his previous record of 27 by collecting 30 rebounds against Loyola.

With his 617 points, Tomjanovich became only the third player in school history to score over 600 points in a single season and put his two-year point total over the 1,000-point mark at 1,086. He was a unanimous All-Big Ten selection, as well as a Sporting News, Basketball Weekly, Basketball News and Helms Foundation All-American.

During his senior campaign, Tomjanovich was again a dominating force for the Wolverines. He scored 42 points against Utah and 30-plus points 13 times on his way to averaging 30.1 points per contest. Tomjanovich was an All-Big Ten selection, a first-team All-American by the National Basketball Association coaches, and a UPI second-team All-American. He would go on to be selected with the No. 2 overall pick in the NBA draft by the San Diego Rockets.

For his career, Tomjanovich pulled down 1,039 rebounds, which remains the school record. He was the team's season-leading rebounder all three years and led the team in rebounding for 30 straight games, a streak that lasted through his junior and senior seasons. In addition, Tomjanovich led the team in scoring each of his three seasons, and his 1,808 career points rank sixth on Michigan's career list.

Every player ahead of him on the career list has played more games than he has, with the top four playing a minimum of 114 games compared to his 72. Tomjanovich still holds Crisler Arena single-game records for points (48), field goals made (21) and rebounds (27). He also holds U-M single-game records with 21 field goals made and 30 rebounds. The three-time All-Big Ten selection and two-time All-American steadily increased his offensive and defensive numbers throughout his career, and because of that, the U-M Most Improved Player award has been named in his honor since 1974.

In his first year in the NBA, 1970-71, Tomjanovich played with the San Diego Rockets. The franchise then moved to Houston, where he played his final 10 seasons. Tomjanovich was a fan favorite because of his loyalty to his team, and he did not disappoint them with his performances on the court. Picking up where he left off in college, Tomjanovich continued to be one of the Rockets' top scorers and rebounders. He played in 768 career games and made 631 starts, while seeing nearly 26,000 minutes of action during those games. In four different seasons, Tomjanovich averaged 20 points or more and finished his career by totaling 13,383 points, which ranks third on the Rockets' all-time list. He was the team's leading scorer on the 1976-77 division championship team (21.6 ppg). Tomjanovich was a relentless rebounder in those years as well and used his overall hustle and desire for the basketball to pull down 6,198 career rebounds. That total is the fourth-best in franchise history. He was rewarded for his hard work by being named an NBA All-Star five times. Tomjanovich's playing days ended when he retired on October 2, 1981. His jersey No. 45 was retired on January 28, 1982, becoming only the fourth Rocket to receive this outstanding honor.

But this man of Houston was only scratching the surface of his professional career, as he would stay involved with the Rockets organization for over three decades and eventually become one of the premiere NBA coaches. He was named interim head coach in February of 1992, and after leading the team to the best start of any coach in Rocket history, 11-4, Tomjanovich was given the permanent head coaching position. He became the only NBA coach to take his team from being in the draft lottery to winning the division title during his first full season. Tomjanovich would go on to guide the Rockets to back-to-back NBA titles in 1994 and 1995, putting him in the upper echelon of coaches. He gained international success as the 1998 head coach of the USA Basketball senior national team and the head coach of the undefeated gold-medal winning United States team at the 2000 Summer Olympic Games.

Tomjanovich has defined the word "winner" in every fathomable way. A true role model, Tomjanovich's jersey will now be a permanent reminder to everyone of his constant drive to be the best, as it will perpetually hang from the rafters of Crisler Arena.

Michigan Team Awards & Honors

Bill Buntin Most Valuable Player

Established in 1941, the Michigan MVP award became the "Bill Buntin MVP Award" following his three impressive seasons as a center for the Wolverines from 1963 to 1965. In addition to being named a consensus All-American for both the 1964 and 1965 seasons, Buntin was named All-Big Ten center for three straight seasons, averaging 21.8 points and 13.1 rebounds over his career.

Rudy Tomjanovich Most Improved Player

Established in 1974, this honor is given each year to the Michigan basketball player who shows the greatest marked improvement on and off the basketball court. Rudy Tomjanovich got the most out of his ability on the way to rewriting the record books before he graduated in 1970. He steadily increased his offensive and defensive outputs as he ranks as one the top Michigan players in the program's history. He still holds Michigan's all-time rebounding record with 1,039 rebounds.

Wayman Britt Outstanding Defensive Player

Established in 1976, this award is given to the Michigan basketball player who exhibits the greatest effort on the defensive end of the court. Britt was the first recipient of the award in 1976, when he served as team captain of a U-M team that was the national runner-up. Britt became notorious for his ability to shut down the opposing team's big scorers, despite the fact that at 6-2, he was one of the shortest men to ever play forward for the Wolverines in the modern era.
