LUIS NICOLAO

HEAD COACH | EIGHTH SEASON AT NAVY

Luis Nicolao was named the head water polo coach at the U.S. Naval Academy in January of 2018. A member of the Class of 1992, Nicolao was a standout for the Midshipmen as an athlete, earning All-America and All-East selection honors, graduating as the all-time leading scorer in Academy history.

In 27 years as a head coach at Princeton (1998-17) and Navy (2018-present), Nicolao has amassed a 514-235 (.686) overall record with a 112-72 (.609) mark at Navy in seven seasons.

With a win against Concordia in 2024, Nicolao recorded his 500th victory as a men's head coach, becoming the eighth coach to reach that mark to join Ted Newland, former Navy head coach Mike Schofield, Denny Harper, Jovan Vavic, Terry Schroeder, Dante Dettamanti, and Pete Cutino with 500 or more wins. One day later, Nicolao reached another milestone, recording his 100th victory as the Navy head coach with a win over Cal Lutheran.

Under Nicolao, Navy Midshipmen have received numerous accolades.

Kiefer Black (2024) and Caden Capobianco (2023) were named to the Peter J. Cutino Award Watch List, which recognizes the best player in men's and women's college water polo. The Cutino Award, named in honor of the late Hall of Fame coach, was created in 2022 in an effort to help promote the college game, awareness of the honor, and the excellent play of athletes around the country.

Nicolao has helped three Midshipmen – Kiefer Black (2023, '24), Caden Capobianco (2021, '23), and Isaac Salinas (2019, '20, '21) – to seven All-American Honors.

At the conference level, Nicolao has had 10 athletes collect 18 total All-Mid-Atlantic Water Polo Conference (MAWPC) honors, including eight first-team accolades. Additionally, Kiefer Black (2023) and Isaac Salinas (2018) were named MAWPC Rookie of the Year.

Nicolao has led Navy to the MAWPC Tournament championship three times (2021, '23, '24), while nine Midshipmen have combined for 14 All-Tournament Team awards, including seven first-team honors. Kiefer Black (2023) and Ryan Munch (2024) were named Rookie of the Tournament for their efforts.

In the classroom, Nicolao has had a pair of student-athletes – Peter Hillen (1st Team – 2023; 3rd Team – 2022) and Graham Lindner (2nd Team – 2023) – earn College Sports Communicators (CSC) Academic All-American distinction. Hillen finished first in his class of over 1,000 midshipmen and was the U.S. Naval Academy Class of 2023 valedictorian.

Additionally, Nicolao has led Navy to a 4-2 (.667) record against Air Force in Freedom Vase games (2018, '19, '23, '24).

No stranger to tough competition, Navy has played 92 games (entering 2025) under Nicolao against teams that are ranked or receiving votes in the CWPA National Poll, including 24 contests against teams in the top 10. Navy has played 11 games against teams ranked in the top 5 under Nicolao, including a pair of games against the #1 team in the country (Cal – 2022, '23).

2018 Season Recap

In his first season at the helm, Nicolao directed the team to a 15-14 overall record, including a 6-6 mark in the MAWPC – East Division. It was the first time the Midshipmen finished the year with a winning record since 2015. For his efforts, Nicolao was tabbed MAWPC – East Coach of the Year.

Personal

Success in the pool runs in Nicolao's family. His mother, Lee Davis, was a world-record holder in the distance freestyle while his father, Luis, was a world-record holder in the 100-butterfly. Nicolao followed suit as a two-time high school All-America in water polo, leading Bellarmine College Prep in California to its local championship each year.

As a student-athlete at Navy, Nicolao was a three-time All-American and All-East selection for the Midshipmen, graduating as the school's all-time leader in points (377) and goals scored (282). During the course of his career, Navy won two Eastern Championships (1988, '90) and reached the NCAA Tournament on three occasions (1988, '90, '91). He was named the CWPA Eastern MVP in 1990 and 1991, while earning CWPA First-Team All-East accolades for three straight seasons (1989, '90, '91). In addition, Nicolao served as the team captain as a senior during the 1991 season.

After earning the Naval Academy Athletic Association's Sword for Men as the top graduating male athlete in 1992, Nicolao assisted with the Navy water polo program as a temporary assigned duty (TAD). He was also a member of the U.S. National Team that won the gold medal at the World University Games before serving in the Navy for five years.

Nicolao returned to his alma mater's pool in 1996 as an officer representative prior to accepting the head coaching position at Princeton in 1998, while also serving as the U.S. men's national "B" team assistant coach (1998, '99).

Nicolao earned a Master's Degree in adult education from the University of Phoenix. He and his wife, Kellie, have two daughters, Madison and Morgan, and one grandson, Jameson.

YEAR IN REVIEW

- The Association of Collegiate Water Polo Coaches (ACWPC) announced the 2024 Men's Division I All-America teams and Navy attacker Kiefer Black was named as honorable mention selection. It is the second All-America accolade in his career, earning honorable mention distinction as a freshman in 2023.
- The ACWPC announced that Navy Kiefer Black was among the 20 student-athletes selected to the Peter J. Cutino Award Watch List. The Cutino Award, named in honor of the late Hall of Fame coach, recognizes the best player in men's and women's college water polo. The watch list was created in 2022 in an effort to help promote the college game, awareness of the honor, and the excellent play of athletes around the country.
- The Mid-Atlantic Water Polo Conference (MAWPC) announced its all-conference honorees and three Navy student-athletes were selected. Kiefer Black was named to the first team, while Orion Erwin was tabbed second team. Additionally, Michael Heller claimed honorable mention distinction.
- Navy closed out the 2024 season ranked in the final CWPA national rankings, coming in at #19. The Midshipmen were ranked or receiving votes each week of the year, starting during the preseason poll. Additionally, the Mids were ranked 19th in the final Association of Collegiate Water Polo Coaches national poll.
- #20 Navy fell 18-11 to #3 Fordham in the MAWPC Tournament Championship in Lejeune Hall. The Midshipmen finished as the runner ups for the second consecutive season and the third time in the last four years.
- For his efforts in the MAWPC Tournament, Ryan Munch was named Rookie of the Tournament, while Kiefer Black and Orion Erwin were each selected First Team All-Tournament. Additionally, Billy Zech was selected Second Team All-Tournament. In addition to Rookie of the Tournament, Munch was honorable mention all-tournament.
- Offensively, the Midshipmen tallied 476 goals in 32 games (14.9 gpg) with 22 different student-athletes finding the back of the net.
- Kiefer Black led the team with 171 points on 94 goals and 77 assists. He registered his second consecutive 100-point season, joining Luis Nicolao (118 point in 1990; 114 in 1991) and Doug Munz (113 points in 1993; 184 points in 1994) as the only players in program history with multiple 100-point seasons. Last season, Black finished with 125 points, which ranked third in Navy's single-season records.
- Michael Heller, Luka Sekulic, Quinn Bartlett, and Orion Erwin followed Black to round out Navy's top five. Nicolao became the eighth coach to reach that mark, joining Ted Newland, former Navy head coach Mike Schofield, Denny Harper, Jovan Vavic, Terry Schroeder, Dante Dettamanti, and Pete Cutino with 500 or more wins. ### History of the CWPA

The Collegiate Water Polo Association originally began as the Mid Atlantic Conference, founded by Dick Russell (Bucknell University swimming & water polo coach) in the 1970's. Its founding membership included teams from Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York.

The leadership and management of the organization relied on volunteer coaches until 1990, when it hired a commissioner to perform basic scheduling for the 15 member teams. Officiating assignments at the time were performed by an independent organization called the Eastern Water Polo Referees Association.

The next major milepost occurred in 1993, when the Southern and New England Conferences merged into the Mid Atlantic. The new structure combined all of the varsity teams in the East, along with the few sport clubs in existence at that time.

During the 1995 season, the conference received its first major challenge, as the organization experienced a strike by its officiating corps. This strike ultimately resulted in the organization establishing its own officiating bureau, assuming responsibility for all of its officiating assignments.

The conference has grown over the years as well, with several key milestones marking the progress. In 2001, the women split into collegiate club and varsity competition for the first time as the CWPA expanded to over 200 teams. This rapid growth forced a move to larger office quarters in 2003, with the CWPA heading across the river to Bridgeport, Pennsylvania where it currently resides. In 2005 six women's teams were launched to help establish water polo as a conference sport in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, giving these institutions an automatic bid to the NCAA Championship and helping the sport grow in new areas. In 2006 the Officiating Bureau took a leap forward with the establishment of a Technical Committee to oversee education, evaluation, and assignment of referees. Online education for referees was initiated at this same time allowing the league's officials greater access to instructional content.

From a media standpoint, 2012 saw the conference make a large commitment to multimedia in both equipment and staff to better serve the membership. One outgrowth of this decision changed the live streaming of our championships to full-blown productions using three cameras, instant replay and a live announcer for play-by-play, similar in style to a television broadcast. It also provided the means to offer more competition streamed throughout the country, much more interactive content on the website, as well as increased online education.

Today the conference fields over 280 teams nationwide, with two full-time staff members, as well as interns in sports photography, multimedia, sports information, marketing and event management.

Who We Are?

HISTORY OF THE GAME OF WATER POLO

Water Polo began as a sport sometime in the 19th century in England, although the early versions of the activity bear little resemblance to the modern day version played today.

The origins of water polo are obscure to say the least but we do know that the word "polo" is the English pronunciation of the Indian word "pulu," that means ball. Just as the ball game that is played on horseback became known as "polo," the ball game played in the water became known as "water polo," the name is the only connection between the sports.

The game of water polo was first played in the United States in 1888. It featured the old rugby style of play which looked like American football in the water. "American style" water polo became very popular and by the late 1890's was played in such places as Madison Square Garden and Boston's Mechanics Hall, attracting 14,000 spectators to the big national championship games.

It is believed that British holiday resort owners invented this rather strange pastime during the mid-1800s, in an attempt to attract guests. The first games were played on nearby rivers and lakes, and the game's passing similarity to horseback polo gave it the name "water polo."

By 1869, a rubber ball had begun to replace the original ball which was made from a pig's stomach. In 1870 the London Swimming Club formulated rules for the sport and hosted the first official game at the Crystal Palace Plunge in London. Games resembled rugby on the water, and were based more on brute strength than athletic skill. Underwater wrestling would leave some players barely conscious when they managed to get to the surface.

A common play players used was to place the small ball in their swimming trunks and swim underwater towards the goal, where they would score by removing the ball and slamming it onto the pool deck.

In 1880, rules were introduced in Scotland to shift the game's focus to skill over force. A bigger ball, similar to a soccer ball, was used, nets were introduced and players could no longer tackle opponents who did not have possession of the ball. The same rules still apply to today's game.

The game that evolved into contemporary water polo started off as an adaptation of rugby played in lakes and rivers; the object of the game was to "carry" the ball to the opponent's side.

The Scottish rules were adopted throughout Great Britain, and the game quickly caught on in countries like Hungary, Belgium, Germany, Austria and France, which began playing the sport in the late 1800s.

In 1888, Water polo was introduced into the United States by English swimming instructor John Robinson. The game featured the old rugby style of play which was much like gridiron football in the water. "American style" water polo became very popular and by the late 1890's was played in such venues as the Boston's Mechanics Hall and Madison Square Garden.

The game of the day featured set plays like the "flying salmon," where the player with the ball leapt through the air from the backs of his teammates to score a goal. Violence was the game's main attraction.

As the sport grew in popularity, so did its level of violence, with little rules to prevent it. In the 1800's the intent of the game was to place the ball with two hands against the wall at one end of the pool to score. Players often swam underwater in an attempt to gain an advantage, only to be attacked by their defenders in the same manner.

In addition to the aggressive play, many of the pools and lakes in which it was played were often poorly filtered and very murky, creating even more mystery regarding the actions that took place beneath the surface. It was not uncommon for players to be dragged from the water unconscious. This may have added to the popularity, with crowds as many as 14,000 attending some games in New York City. In fact, its popularity was so great it was named the first Olympic team sport in 1900. Interestingly enough, women's water polo was the last Olympic team sport to be added in 2000.

Meanwhile, the rest of the world adopted the Scottish rules: Hungary in 1889, Belgium in 1900, Austria and Germany in 1894 and France in 1895. By 1900, water polo was so popular it became the first team sport added to the Olympic Games program and has remained an Olympic sport ever since. Great Britain won gold at each of the first four Olympic Games.

In 1911, the Federation International de Natation Amateur (FINA), the international governing body for all amateur water sports, adopted the Scottish rules for all international water polo events.

United States continued to play by their own rules until 1912, when, instead of playing their semi-final game in the National Championship tournament, the New York Athletic Club and the Chicago Athletic Association chose to fight instead. The Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) cancelled its sponsorship of water polo until 1914 when United States clubs finally agreed to play under the more civilized international rules.

Over the years the game has evolved to more of a soccer style in which an opponent could only make contact if a player held the ball. In addition, the evolution of swimming changed the game from brute strength underwater to one of passing and speed above the surface.

Women were not allowed to compete at the Olympics until the 2000 Games in Sydney, where Australia won the gold medal, the United States took the silver, and the bronze went to Russia. The first Water Polo World Cup for women was held by FINA (the sport's governing body) in 1979, and the first World Championships took place in 1986.

The most notorious incident in the history of Olympic water polo took place during the 1956 match between the Soviet Union and Hungary. Four weeks prior to the Games, 200,000 Soviet troops invaded Hungary to suppress an anti-Communist uprising, so there was plenty of bad blood between the two sides before the scrappy game started.

The game was marred by brawls and became so brutal that officials called it off altogether. Hungary was leading 4-0 at the time and was declared the winner; the team advanced to the finals and won the gold.

Hungary has also fielded some of the most celebrated water polo players of all time. Dezso Gyarmati won a medal at five different Olympics from 1948-1964 (3 gold, 1 silver and 1 bronze). Oliver Halassy, who represented Hungary three times between 1928-1936, won 2 gold and 1 silver. What makes his medal count even more extraordinary is that Halassy had one of his legs amputated below the knee as a child.

Hungarians are well-known for their extraordinary play in the water. Hungary has won the most medals in Olympic water polo history, with a total of thirteen, including 7 gold, four of them coming between 1932-1956. Like other notable southern European nations, such as Italy, Spain and Yugoslavia, its national team draws its players from a pool of talent that plays in the professional leagues.

Water polo within the United States was adopted as a championship sport for men in the collegiate system in the early 70's, while women were added about 30 years later as participation grew. Today, collegiate and high school teams can be found throughout the country.

Internationally the game is played all over the world, with Europe and Asia boasting the world's strongest programs for men. The USA is the only non-European team to win Olympic medals. In addition to the gold won by the New York Athletic Club in 1904, the United States men's program won silver medals in 1984 and 1988 and bronze medals in 1924, 1932 and 1972.

The recent addition of women's water polo paints a different story for dominance, as Canada and the United States often vie for top billing with the world's best as the Americans have proven to be among the world's best repeatedly contending for the Olympic and World Championship titles.
