MAVERICK HISTORY AT A GLANCE

The Omaha baseball program began in 1947, when athletics were restored at the school following the completion of World War II. Along with men's basketball, it is the longest continuous-running program at the school.

At the head of the program from the start was Yelkin, the school's athletic director, who served as the program's head coach for 28 seasons, until illness forced him to retire in 1976. As athletic director, Yelkin worked tirelessly to develop the program and the facilities, which included the construction of the football field and the fieldhouse in 1949-50.

Yelkin's teams were annually among the best in the area, regardless of the division, and twice finished second in the NAIA national tournament. In 1959, the Omaha University Indians, with a 23-2 record, lost in the finals to Southern University, led by Lou Brock. In 1965, the 22-8 Indians were runners-up to Carson-Newman.

Yelkin was instrumental in the formative years of the national collegiate baseball championship and Omaha University for many years served as the co-host of the NCAA's College World Series along with the University of Iowa.

Twice Yelkin stepped aside, once to serve in the armed forces in the Korean War, and again in 1970 for health reasons. Although ailing most of the season, his final team in 1976 finished 33-12 and advanced to the NCAA Division II regionals. He died the following season.

Yelkin's short-term replacements were Thurman Johnson, who guided the 1952 team to a 10-3 record, and Carl Meyers, who led the 1970 squad to a 19-13 mark. Assistant Dave Benedict, father of former Maverick and Atlanta Braves star Bruce Benedict, handled most of the chores during that 1976 season.

Gates, who had already established himself as a head coach at Pershing College and an assistant coach at Nebraska, became UNO's head coach in 1977 and led the team two North Central Conference titles, one division title and two NCAA tournament appearances. He compiled a 23-year record of 464-473. Gates recently passed away Jan. 22 of this year.

Bob Herold took over in 2000 and guided the program until 2016, compiling a career record of 527-381-2. During his tenure, the Mavericks won three NCC championships and back-to-back Summit League regular-season championships, the latter of which came in Omaha's first two seasons as members of the Summit League. Herold also guided two teams to a school-record 45 wins (2006, 2008) and six NCAA Tournament trips, including a fifth-place finish at the 2007 NCAA Division II College World Series.

UNO's baseball teams have played at numerous sites over the course of the program, beginning with two different on-campus fields. In the late 1960s, after parking lots pushed the team off campus, the Indians played at Rosenblatt Stadium, then moved to Ralston's Orville Smith Field, Fricke Field in Papillion and finally to College World Series Park in 1978.

In 2000, UNO moved its home games to J.J. Isaacson Field at Seymour Smith Park and in 2005 to the Ballpark at Boys Town. In 2017, the Mavericks returned to Seymour Smith Park as its primary home field. Omaha also plays a select number of home games at Werner Park, home of the Triple-A Omaha Storm Chasers, in Papillion.

THE QUEST FOR DOUBLE DIGITS

- So far through 20 games, Omaha has recorded double-digit hits in 10 different games.
- When recording 10 or more hits this season, the Mavericks are 9-1.
- Over the last seven years of Division I play, UNO is a combined 109-49 when keying at least 10 hits.

THIS ONE'S FOR "GATOR"

- On Jan. 22, 2019, the Omaha family lost a cherished member.
- Former UNO hall of fame baseball coach Bob Gates passed away at the age of 93.
- Gates' coaching career at UNO spanned for a 23-year span from 1976-99, where he earned the second-most wins in program history at 464.
- Through his efforts, the program survived severe budget cuts within the athletic department during the mid-1980s and surged back to prominence in the North Central Conference.
- He was inducted into the UNO Athletic Hall of Fame in 2002.
- Gates led the program to a pair of North Central Conference titles and two NCAA Tournament appearances. In 1981, his team was one win shy of advancing to the Division II College World Series.
- In his final eight seasons with the Mavericks, Gates guided the team to an NCC postseason playoff appearance each year, and a division title in the process.
- This season, members of the team will wear a commemorative "BG" letters on their hats to celebrate the life and career of Coach Gates.

UP NEXT

- Omaha hits the road for a mid-week game at Kansas State next Wednesday, April 10, at 6 p.m. The Mavericks follow with a three-game road slate at Oral Roberts April 12-14 in Tulsa, Okla.
