Lady Rebel Basketball: It's the Style At Ole Miss

In the mid 1970s women's basketball began to emerge as an intercollegiate sport on college campuses throughout the nation. The Ole Miss campus was no different. Following an absence of nearly 45 years from competition, the University of Mississippi reinstated women's basketball as a varsity sport for the 1974-75 academic year.

Since that time, women's basketball has grown dramatically. In 1982, the first year of the NCAA Women's Basketball Championships, 66,924 people saw the tournament games. Last season, 279,104 people attended the NCAA Tournament games in person and millions were able to watch the contests thanks to national coverage by ESPN and CBS. The more exposure the sport has received the faster it has grown. Although the 1990s have been dubbed the no-style decade, where nothing is necessarily in style and anything goes, women's basketball has somehow become stylish.

And why shouldn't it also be that way at Ole Miss. The Lady Rebel program is the winningest program in school history, posting a winning percentage of 73.9 with a record of 462-163. Ole Miss is the 10th all-time winningest women's basketball program in the nation by percentage and is 13th ranked by wins. The Lady Rebs have participated in 12 of 13 NCAA Championships, a feat only four other schools have accomplished. Penn State and Texas have also been to 12 tournaments, while Louisiana Tech and Tennessee have been to all 13.

Most of the success of the Lady Rebel program should be credited to head coach Van Chancellor. In 16 seasons with Ole Miss, he has posted a 384-124 mark. He is the 16th winningest active coach in the nation by winning percentage (75.6 percent) and is ranked 18th by wins. His teams have never recorded a losing record and 14 of his squads have recorded 20-plus wins. Additionally, he is a three-time Southeastern Conference Coach of the Year and was selected as national coach of the year in 1991-92 by Women's Basketball News Service and World Almanac.

Chancellor credits the success of his program to top-notch players and his coaching staffs. He is currently assisted by three of his former players. Peggie Gillom, who is the all-time leading Lady Rebel scorer and rebounder, played on Chancellor's first two squads at Ole Miss. She enters her 13th season on Chancellor's staff. Steve Curtis, who is in his fourth season with the Lady Rebels, played for Coach Chancellor in high school at Harrison Central in Gulfport, Miss. Tiffany Archie, a Lady Rebel letterwinner from 1990-93, joined the staff this season as the restricted earnings coach.

Whatever the reasons for the Lady Rebel success in the past, the 1994-95 season promises to be as exciting for Ole Miss women's basketball as the last 20 years have been. In preseason, the Lady Rebels are ranked 17th by Women's Basketball News Service and 20th by Athlon. And why not? This year's Lady Rebel squad returns eight letterwinners and four starters from the 1993-94 team that finished the season ranked 23rd by the Associated Press and 20th by USA Today. The team finished the season with a 24-9 mark and advanced to the second round of the NCAA Tournament.

Junior post Yolanda Moore and sophomore guard Regan Seybert are the returning full-time starters for the Lady Rebels. However, seniors Susan Byrd, a forward-center, and Sabrina McNair, a forward, split time starting last season, with 10 and 12 starts respectively.

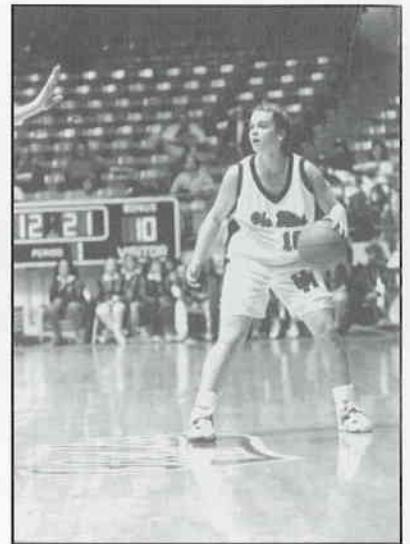

Moore was the team's second-leading scorer and leading rebounder a year ago with 12.9 points and 7.2 rebounds per outing. Seybert averaged 7.9 points and led the team with 3.1 assists as the first Lady Rebel to start at point guard as a true-freshman during the Chancellor era. McNair averaged 5.7 points and 4.0 rebounds. Byrd was the team's leading shot blocker with 1.8 blocks per game and set the school record for blocked shots in a season with 60 deflections. She averaged 4.0 points and 4.8 rebounds.

Also returning for the Lady Rebels are junior guard Katrechia Craig (5.5 ppg, 2.0 rpg); junior forward Dorianne Johnson (3.5 ppg, 1.5 rpg); sophomore forward Leslie Pinkerton (3.1 ppg, 1.3 rpg) and sophomore guard Anita Milons (1.8 ppg, 1.4 rpg).

The biggest question Chancellor has to answer this season is who will fill the shoes of Clara Jackson. The All-SEC forward, who is the fourth-leading scorer in Lady Rebel history, led the squad in scoring last season with 16.6 points. Also missing from last year's squad is guard Kacy Williams, who although she averaged only 5.0 points per game added the intangible of leadership.

"A big question going into this season is who is going to take up the scoring of Clara Jackson," said Chancellor. "We're missing the No. 1 of the one-two punch we had last year. There are only two teams in the SEC - us and Vanderbilt - that lost All-SEC players. Everybody else is returning All-SEC players. We need someone to step in and get the job done."

Although Chancellor has big shoes to fill, he has the greatest depth base to choose from that he has had in a long time. In addition to the returning letterwinners, there are four redshirt freshmen on this year's squad. Melinda White, a 5-10 forward from Lumberton, Miss., averaged 20 points and 13 rebounds per outing her senior season. She brings a quickness to the team and adds outside shooting to her repertoire. Kim Rosamond, a 5-6 guard from Louisville, Miss., averaged 18 points and six assists per game in her final year.

REGAN SEYBERT

VAN CHANCELLOR

Lady Rebel Basketball: It's the Style At Ole Miss

She brings more outside shooting to the Lady Rebel squad and her knowledge of the game allows her to see the floor well. Laticia Mathis, a 6-0 forward from Poplarville, Miss., averaged 24 points, 12 rebounds and five blocked shots in her final season. She has the ability to score outside and with her height can defend inside. Finally, Lisa Miller, a 5-3 sophomore guard from Dallas, Texas, averaged 16.5 points and 4.4 assists in one season with Arkansas-Monticello. She also brings quickness to the floor and has all of the tools of a points guard.

"We have a number of players that can step up," said Chancellor. "We have more players that are capable of contributing immediately than we've had in a while."

The fact that the Lady Rebel squad has no new players is an advantage. Another benefit for the team is the extra days of practice. Last season, practice began on Nov. 1 but a change in NCAA rules has moved the first day of practice back to Oct. 15.

"Everyone already understands the way we want to play. They know how we're going to be and understand what we want to do. There is nobody holding us back," said Chancellor.

SABRINA McNAIR

"To have players returning and get 12 extra practice days is a bonanza. It's like waking up on Christmas and Santa Claus gave you everything you asked for or ever dreamed of having. Our team is based on work ethic so it is a tremendous advantage for us to have 12 or 13 more days of practice before the season begins."

Although the four redshirts are familiar with the Lady Rebel system, Chancellor cautions there are still many questions regarding how they will contribute to his program.

"Some players can play in practice and preseason but can't play in the SEC," said Chancellor. "How they will react to the vigorous play in this league is still an unknown."

However, these players bring a lot to the court and Chancellor plans to utilize their abilities immediately.

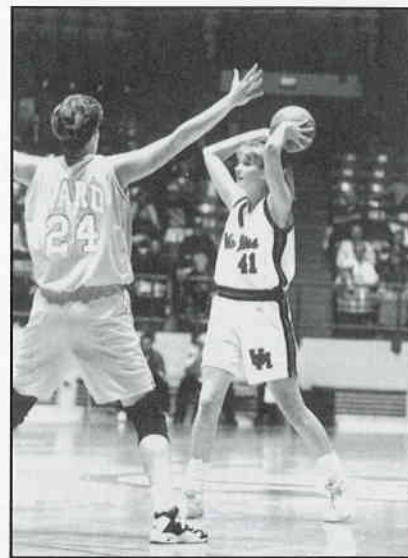

"With our depth, we can play a more up-tempo game and also take advantage of the abilities of our athletes," said Chancellor. "Depth also keeps everyone competitive. If someone's not getting the job done, she knows there is someone waiting on the bench for her chance."

As always, the Lady Rebel schedule is a competitive one. Ole Miss has six teams on its schedule that participated in the NCAA Tournament last season, including Southeastern Conference foe Alabama which reached the Final Four. Seven Lady Rebel opponents are ranked in pre-season polls. Tennessee is ranked No. 1 in the Street & Smith, Women's Basketball News Service and Athlon polls.

"At Ole Miss, we have a shot to have a pretty good basketball team but the SEC is always a big dogfight," said Chancellor. "We have five SEC road games and three or four of those teams will be the top teams in the league this season. The way this league is, we could be in the top 20 in the country and be sixth or seventh in the league or we could be in the top 20 in the country and be one of the top two or three teams in the conference."

No matter what the preseason polls predict or how difficult the schedule, history says that the Ole Miss women's basketball team is going to be exciting to watch. There will be a lot of opportunities to see the 1994-95 edition of the Lady Rebel Basketball team play this season. The Lady Rebels will play 13 games, including five doubleheaders with the men's team, at the Tad Smith Coliseum this year. In addition, the Lady Rebel squad also has games scheduled in Tupelo, Jackson and Memphis. So be stylish and come see what the most successful team at Ole Miss has to offer.

Lady Rebel Head Coach

When Ole Miss approached Van Chancellor for the women's basketball coaching job, he was coaching the boy's and girl's basketball teams at Harrison Central High School in Gulfport, Miss. His girl's team had just won a second consecutive state championship, but the last thing he expected was to be offered a coaching job on the university level.

After he was assured that the University of Mississippi was committed to the women's basketball program, he decided to give it a chance.

This decision has paid off for both the coach and the University. With 16 seasons of Chancellor's guidance, the Lady Rebel basketball program is the winningest program in school history, posting a winning percentage of 73.9 and is the 10th all-time winningest women's basketball program in the nation by percentage and 13th ranked by wins.

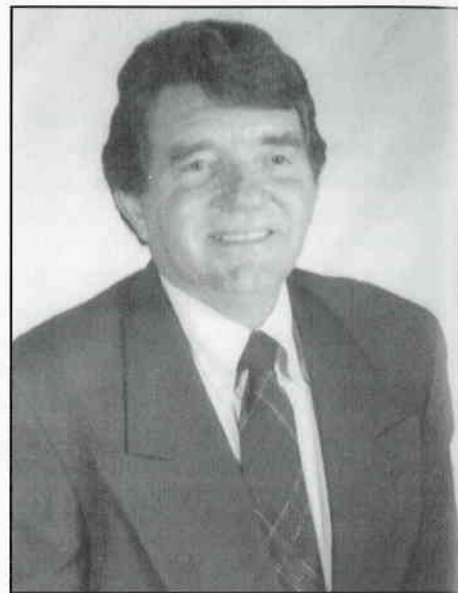

Since taking the position in 1978 at the age of 34, Chancellor has headed a women's program which has become recognized among the best in the Southeastern Conference and the nation.

During his tenure at Ole Miss, Chancellor has led the Lady Rebels to a 384-124 won-lost record, including 12 NCAA Tournaments with nine regional appearances. He is the 16th winningest active coach in the nation by winning percentage (75.6 percent) and is ranked 18th by wins. Additionally, his teams have never recorded a losing record, though they compete in one of the toughest conferences in the nation for women's basketball.

Fourteen of his teams have netted 20 or more wins, 11 of those having been ranked in the final Associated Press Division I poll. His teams were also ranked in the final USA Today Poll, which comes out after the NCAA Tournament, for six seasons. And his 1991-92 team took the SEC Championship with an undefeated mark of 11-0 in the new expanded conference format.

Chancellor has produced many memorable seasons at Ole Miss, among them: the 1978-79 season when his first Lady Rebel team won 31 of 40 games and claimed the Mississippi State AIAW Championship; the 1984-85 season, when Ole Miss won 24 straight games, posted a 29-3 record and advanced to the final of the NCAA Mideast Regional Tournament; and the 1991-92 team that won the program's first SEC regular season championship, when the Lady Rebels won 25 consecutive games, posted a 29-3 record and advanced to the finals of the NCAA Midwest Regional Tournament.

His 1981-82, '82-83, '83-84 and '84-85 Lady Rebel teams won or shared SEC Western Division championships and his '79-80 and '82-83 Lady Rebel squads played in the title game of the SEC Tournament.

Not only has Chancellor created respect for the Ole Miss program but also for himself. He is a member of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association Board of Directors. He is also a frequent speaker at coaching clinics throughout the nation. And in 1991-92, he was afforded a great honor by his peers as he was named SEC Coach of the Year for the third time in his career. He is only the second coach to receive this honor on three occasions, also in 1989-90 and 1986-87. Joe Ciampi of Auburn also received the honor three times. Additionally, Chancellor was selected as National Coach of the Year by the Women's Basketball News Service and World Almanac after the 1991-92 campaign.

A Louisville, Miss. native, Chancellor played high school basketball at Louisville and as a senior guard averaged 24 points per game. He then enrolled at East Central Junior College in Decatur, Miss. where he played two years for Denver Brackeen's team. He transferred to Mississippi State, where he earned an undergraduate degree in math and physical education in 1965. He also entered the coaching ranks his senior year at State, serving as head coach of the boy's basketball team at Noxapater High School.

Van Chancellor

Chancellor's Coaching Record

After receiving his undergraduate degree, Chancellor directed the boy's program one more season at Noxapater High before moving to Horn Lake, Miss. to head the boy's and girl's high school teams for seven seasons (boy's 164-51, girl's 173-52). Next came a five-year stint at Harrison Central (boy's 121-38, girl's 156-24). And the rest is Ole Miss history.

In 1974, he received a master's degree in education from Ole Miss.

During his spare time, Chancellor enjoys playing golf, playing church league softball and reading.

Chancellor is married to the former Betty Cannon, also of Louisville. They have two children - Johnny, a 1989 Ole Miss graduate and Renee, a 1992 Ole Miss graduate and former Lady Rebel.

She is the only Lady Rebel to ever score over 2,000 points and grab over 1,000 rebounds in a career. In her senior season, she earned Southeastern Conference All-Tournament honors and was a finalist for the Wade Trophy.

Drafted by the Dallas Diamonds of the Women's Professional Basketball League after the 1979-80 Lady Rebel season, Gillom played one year of professional ball. Then she entered the coaching ranks as an assistant at her alma mater for the 1981-82 season and has remained on the staff ever since. During her coaching tenure, she has helped lead the Lady Rebels to 12 NCAA Tournaments, including nine Sweet 16 and four Elite Eight appearances.

A native of Abbeville, Miss., Gillom played two seasons on teams coached by Chancellor, and while an assistant at Ole Miss she coached her sister Jennifer, who played for the Lady Rebels from 1983 to 1986. As a Lady Rebel, Jennifer scored 2,186 points, ranking second to Peggie on the all-time point list. The two sisters are the only Lady Rebels to ever score over 2,000 points in a career. Jennifer, who currently plays professional ball in Italy, was a member of the 1988 United States Olympic Team.

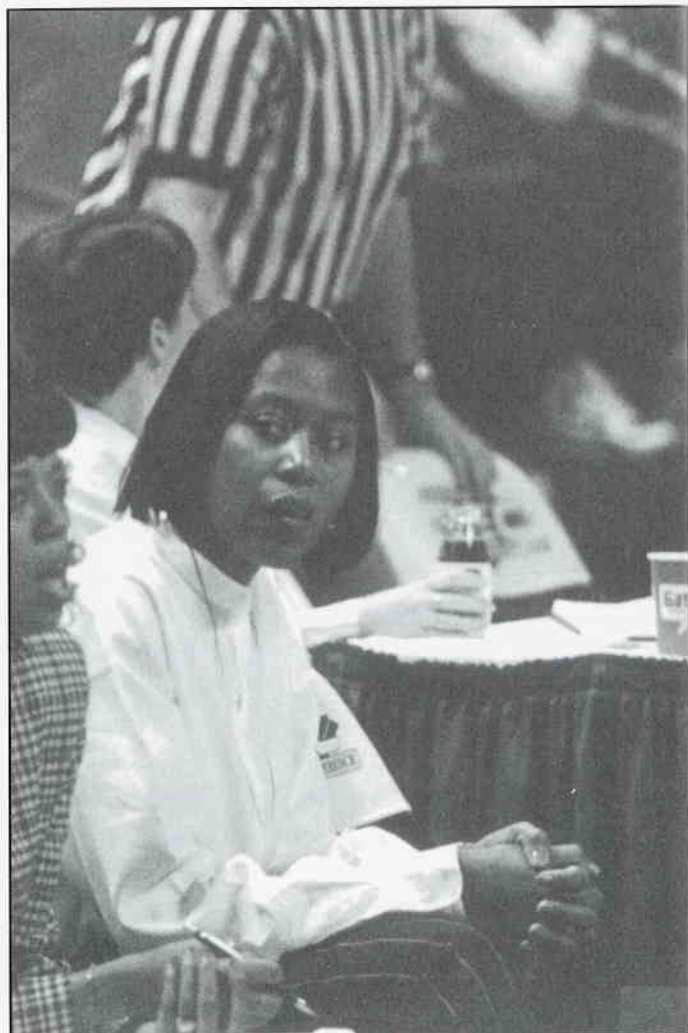

Peggie has her degree in social work. She is currently serving on the Sesquicentennial planning committee for the celebration of women at The University of Mississippi. She enjoys watching and reading mysteries, especially anything written by Sydney Sheldon, and doing church work.

Dr. R. Gerald Turner

Chancellor

Just as The University of Mississippi began its 150th anniversary celebration of its chartering this year, Chancellor R.

Gerald Turner marked an important date — his 10th anniversary as the University's 22nd chief executive. Since 1984, Dr. Turner has worked to promote and support excellence in Mississippi higher education — not just for the University he leads but for all the state's institutions of higher learning.

Working with administrative leaders and faculty, he has guided the development of innovative academic programs, multimillion-dollar facilities and major fundraising campaigns, as well as the strengthening of foundations of historical excellence. Creative fund-raising collaborations involving business, government, foundations and individuals have been established under his guidance.

During the decade of his leadership, private giving to the University has totaled over $110 million. The University's endowment increased from $8 million in 1984 to $64 million in December 1993. The first major gifts campaign in the school's history — the Campaign for Ole Miss (1984-86) — surpassed the $25 million goal with cash and pledges in the amount of $41.7 million, plus $20.9 million in deferred gifts and other benefits. The Drive for Athletics also topped its $8 million goal, raising $11.6 million, bringing athletic facilities up to SEC quality.

Chancellor Turner's efforts to make the business community aware of its stake in higher education have resulted in numerous gains for the University. Ole Miss has been the recipient of several supercomputers, and this year acquired another, which is even faster and stores more data than other models. Gifts to the University have funded a writing center, an innovative Center for Wireless Telecommunications, and a computerized classroom and laboratories in the areas of business, pharmacy, engineering and language arts. In addition to creating undergraduate scholarships and graduate fellowships, these contributions also increased the number of endowed faculty positions from one in 1984 to 35 in 1994. These included 12 Barnard Distinguished Professorships, six on the Oxford campus and six on the Jackson campus.

Chancellor Turner's administration has brought to fruition an unprecedented period of construction on both campuses. Over $200 million in new construction, in fact, has been completed or is underway or approved for planning on both campuses. Collaborative efforts resulted in privately generated funds to construct the Medical Pavilion, Children's Cancer Clinic, Ronald McDonald House and the Arthur C. Guyton Laboratory Research Building at The University of Mississippi Medical Center (UMMC). Currently, $100 million in construction is underway at UMMC, bringing about the largest, most dramatic changes to the UMMC physical plant and programs since the School of Medicine moved to Jackson in 1955.

Through Turner's work with members of the Mississippi Congressional delegation, construction of three federally funded national research facilities — the Jamie Whitten National Center for Physical Acoustics, the Center for Technological Development of Natural Products and the National Food Service Management Institute — has taken place on the Oxford campus. The Marine Minerals Technology Center, the Center for Computational Hydrospace and Engineering, and the Center for Wetlands and Water Resources also receive federal support.

Externally funded research programs at Oxford have increased over 300 percent from 1984 to 1993 — from $8 million to $29 million. Earlier this year, the prestigious Carnegie Classification of Higher Education placed Ole Miss in the Research II category, making it one of the top 125 research institutions in the nation.

In other benchmarks of his 10 years at the helm of Ole Miss, overall student enrollment has grown, and a minority recruitment program has increased African-American enrollment, garnering two prestigious Peterson Awards for enhancement of minority access. University leadership has been diversified with the addition of seven minority administrators. A black fraternity and sorority also have moved onto campus.

A Texas native, Turner came to Ole Miss from the University of Oklahoma, where he was vice president for executive affairs. Earlier, he was an administrator and professor at Pepperdine University. After earning a bachelor's degree in psychology with honors from Abilene Christian College, he earned master's and doctoral degrees in philosophy from the University of Texas at Austin.

A past president of the Southeastern Conference, Turner was named in April 1990 to a three-year term on the NCAA's President's Commission and was elected chairman for the 1991 year. His leadership of this nationally important commission focused on academic standards for initial and continuing eligibility of student athletes. Turner is the chairman of the NCAA Committee on Athletic Certification and is on the Congressionally created Defense Advisory Committee on Service Academy Athletic Programs. He also has completed work with the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics.

He and his wife, Gail, have two daughters, Jessica, a senior at Oxford High School, and Angela Turner Wilson, a 1994 graduate of Ole Miss. Angela is attending the New England Conservatory of Music, and her husband, Michael, also a 1994 graduate of Ole Miss, is studying law at the New England School of Law.

Pete Boone

Athletic Director

One of the nation's finest young businessmen and banking administrators is now the leader of the Ole Miss athletic department.

The University of Mississippi bucked the trend by hiring Pete Boone away from the world of business, making him the new Director of Athletics at Ole Miss. Before taking over the controls at Ole Miss, Boone served as Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Grenada Sunburst System Corporation and President and CEO of Sunburst Bank, the third-largest banking chain in Mississippi.

The University's Chancellor, Dr. R. Gerald Turner, cited Boone's unique business background as a perfect qualification for the job in these days and times in college sports.

"The general view of the leadership and oversight of intercollegiate athletics has changed dramatically in the last five years," Turner said at the Sept. 3 news conference announcing Boone's hiring. "The pressures within it and the issues that have arisen have generated a new breed of athletic director."

"One of the things that impressed me the most about Pete over the last few years has been just the enormous success of the Sunburst banking system and how fast he has ascended to the leadership of that organization."

Boone, 44, began his banking career in 1973 at Trustmark Bank. In 1974, he joined Sunburst Bank as a loan officer in his hometown of Grenada, Miss. He has been associated with Sunburst ever since.

In 1976, Boone was promoted to President of Sunburst Bank in Sumner, Miss. He proceeded up the corporate ladder and, in 1981, he was promoted to Senior Vice President of Administration at Sunburst headquarters in Grenada.

Boone created and organized Sunburst's Central Credit Administration Division in 1986 and two years later was elected President and CEO of Sunburst Bank in Baton Rouge, La. The Baton Rouge bank consisted of 250 employees and over $215 million in deposits. It turned a profit its first year and grew to approximately $275 million in deposits by December 1989.

The decade of the '90s saw Boone's responsibilities continue to grow. In 1990 he was elected President and Chief Operating Officer of Grenada Sunburst System Corporation, and he added the title of President and CEO of Sunburst Bank of Mississippi.

Under Boone's direction, the GSSC has become a $2.5 billion financial institution. During his tenure, Sunburst Mortgage Corporation was formed and has grown to over $800 million in servicing. A retail brokerage company was created that produced over $2.5 million in gross commissions, and gross sales for GSSC in 1993 exceeded $200 million.

He advanced to President and CEO of GSSC and Sunburst Bank in 1993 and became Chairman of the Board and CEO of GSSC and President and CEO of Sunburst Bank this past year.

Working for Ole Miss is something Boone looked forward to.

"The challenge of the job was one of the things that drew me because I do like challenges," he said. "I believe that the family of Ole Miss, the supporters of Ole Miss will rally around the school."

Boone graduated from Ole Miss in 1972 with a degree in Banking and Finance. He lettered three years as a center for the Rebel football team from 1970-72, earning the starting role for the last half of his final season.

Boone, who is related to former Rebel two-sport All-America Jake Gibbs, played for legendary Ole Miss head coach John Vaught in 1970. The '70 squad finished 7-4 which included a trip to the Gator Bowl. During his junior and senior seasons under Billy Kinard, Ole Miss put together a 10-2 mark in 1971 and a 5-5 record in 1972. The Rebels defeated Georgia Tech 41-18 in the 1971 Peach Bowl. Boone was elected the team's Most Dedicated Player after the 1972 season.

Boone is a past member of the Rotary Clubs of Grenada, Sumner and Baton Rouge and the Board of Chambers of Commerce in Grenada and Baton Rouge. He has belonged to the Mississippi Bankers Association, the Louisiana Bankers Association and the Government Affairs Committee of Federal Home Loan Bank in Dallas, Texas.

He has served on the University of Mississippi's Business Advisory Council and the Foundation Board and was Vice President of the Alumni Association.

Boone married his wife Scottie in 1970. They have two sons, Taylor, 18, and Lexie, 16. Taylor is a freshman at Ole Miss, and Lexie is a junior in high school.

Lady Rebels in Community Service

The patronage of the Oxford community is important to Ole Miss athletics, and the athletes at the University hope to return that support by being actively involved in community service. From reading stories to elementary school students, to helping out at the rape crisis center, to volunteering at the North Mississippi Regional Center, the Lady Rebels are giving something back to the community.

Lady Rebel Susan Byrd (left) talks with Ole Miss students about rape prevention as a volunteer with the rape crisis center.

Lady Rebel Sabrina McNair helps a resident of the North Mississippi Regional Center write a letter home.

The Facilities

Ole Miss has made a commitment to provide first class facilities for its athletes. This is evident by the accomplishments of the recently completed Drive for Athletics. The fund raising project helped upgraded and maintain athletic facilities at the University of Mississippi to a level that matches the calibre of athletes at Ole Miss.

The C.M. "Tad" Smith Coliseum is one of the finest arenas in the country for women's basketball. In its 28th year of occupancy, the arena accommodates 8,135 plush theatre-type chairs for women's basketball games. The Lady Rebels have definately found a home at the Tad Smith Coliseum as they have posted a 230-35 record with a winning percentage of .868 in 20 years of competition in the Coliseum.

The coliseum houses carpeted, air-conditioned dressing areas for volleyball, women's basketball and men's basketball, as well as coaches lockers, training facilities and a plush lounge for the athletes.

Coach Van Chancellor and his staff maintain their offices in the annex of the Intercollegiate Athletic Building across from the Coliseum.

Lady Rebel athletes are also benefiting from the state-of-the-art facilities in the new Michael S. Starnes Athletic Training Center, the final project of the Drive for Athletics. The $2.5 million upgrade to the complex is a unique combination of renovation and construction. The existing Doc Knight Field House was transformed into a modern facility. The first floor houses an expanded, state-of-the-art training room, football locker room, coaches dressing room, equipment room, laundry area and seven meeting rooms. The top floor contains another meeting room and a large theater-style team meeting room.

The facility extends to the east into a similar structure which holds a massive weight room, a lobby, conference room and offices on the ground level and a recruiting area on the second level.

The training area, nearly three times larger than before, has four offices for Head Athletic Trainer Leroy Mullins and his staff, room for at least 13 treatment tables, six taping stations, a wet room with a whirlpool and countless rehabilitation equipment. Here, Mullins and his staff give morning, prepractice and pregame treatments to the athletes. The training staff also keeps daily updates of athletes' rehabilitation and treatment with some of the most advanced equipment on the market.

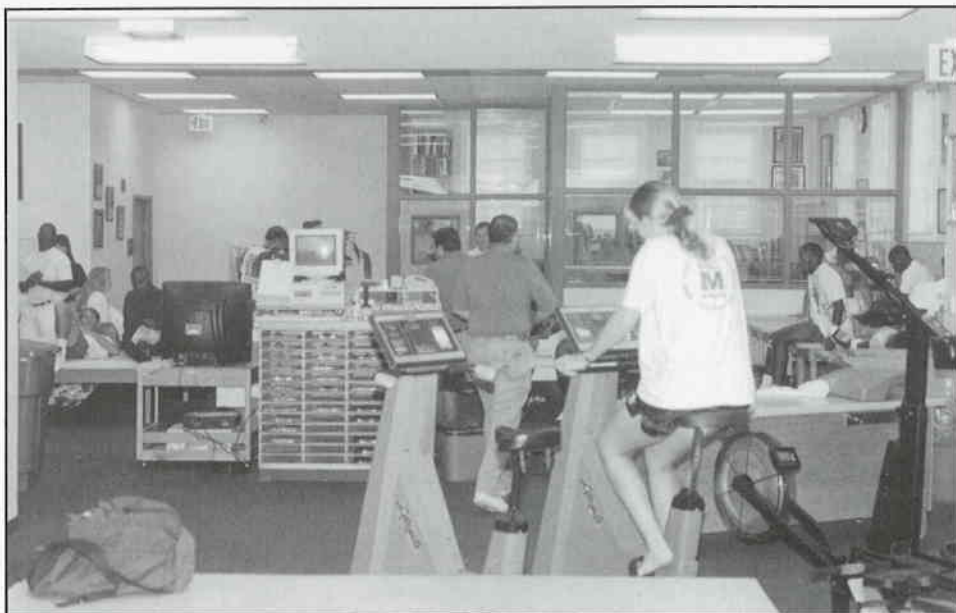

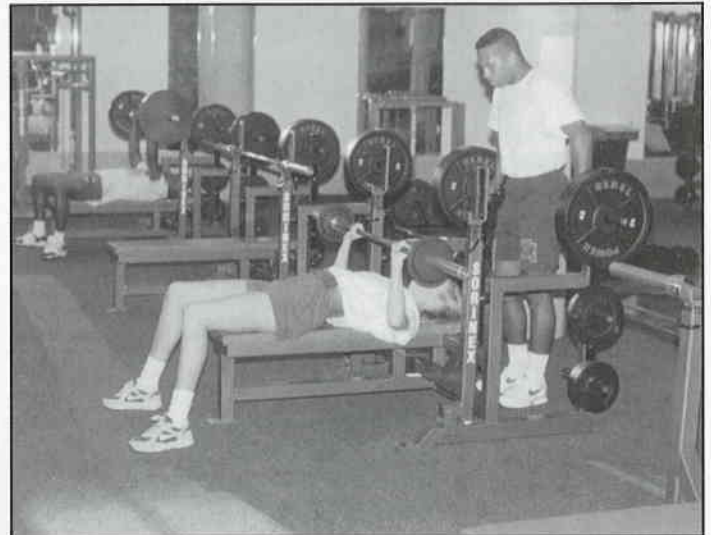

An auxiliary training room is located in the coliseum. It is used for first aid, as well as, pregame and postgame treatments.

This translates to improved care and injury prevention for Lady Rebel athletes.

Perhaps the most impressive improvement is the weight room. What was once a 3,100-square-foot room full of dumb bells and free weights has been converted into an unparalleled 9,500-square-foot weight training auditorium that draws athletes to their workout.

Custom-tailored weight training equipment, made especially for Ole Miss, fills the room, giving Lady Rebel athletes an advantage they have never enjoyed. Here, assistant strength and conditioning coach Chris Mitchell plans season and offseason weight training programs specifically designed for the needs of each player.

It all adds up to some of the finest facilities for women's athletics around, justly deserved by the outstanding Lady Rebels of Ole Miss.

The University of Mississippi

"Ole Miss"

As The University of Mississippi looks toward the 21st century, it has reached a milestone in its rich heritage. Earlier this year, the University launched its Sesquicentennial celebration, which will climax in 1998. The inaugural activities of this 150th anniversary included Charter Day convocations on the Oxford and Jackson campuses, as well as a ceremony in the State Capitol.

The University of Mississippi was chartered on February 24, 1844, and the Lyceum was ready to open its doors on November 6, 1848. On that day, George Frederick Holmes was inaugurated as the first president, and the University started its first session with four professors and 80 students in the College of Liberal Arts.

With "Leadership for the 21st Century" as the theme of the Sesquicentennial, a major goal is to sharpen the vision of what the University needs to be in order to prepare current students and future generations to meet the challenges of the next century.

During the next four years, the contributions of one of the Schools will be highlighted each six months, with the College of Liberal Arts currently in the spotlight. In addition, all University-wide events will be part of the 150th anniversary, and the graduating classes through 1998 will be known as the Sesquicentennial classes. The capstone of the celebration will be a campaign to raise private funds solely for academic purposes.

The University of Mississippi takes great pride in having a unique role in the state. For 23 years (1848-1871) Ole Miss was the only state institution of higher learning in Mississippi, and for 110 years (1848-1958), it was the only institution in the state consistently designated as a university.

The Lyceum was the first building on any State campus in Mississippi. It still stands as the major landmark at Ole Miss. The Lyceum and the next oldest building, the "Y," were used as hospitals by both sides during the Civil War.

Oxford was selected as the site of the University on January 26, 1841, when the Mississippi Legislature was in session. At least seven cities were in the running. Oxford's selection seemed appropriate, especially since, when founded, the city was called Oxford after the university city in England, for it was hoped that an educational institution would be established here.

The first class graduated in 1851, and in 1852 the Alumni Association was organized. In 1854, the School of Law—the nation's fourth-oldest state-supported law school—was authorized by the Legislature. In 1861, the University closed for the duration of the Civil War.

The University resumed operation in 1865 under the chancellorship of John N. Waddel. In 1882, women were admitted to the University, and in 1885 Sarah McGehee Isom became a member of the faculty, making The University of Mississippi the first state university in the South to hire a woman faculty member and one of the first to admit women students.

Intercollegiate athletics arrived on campus in 1875 in the form of baseball, and through the leadership of Professor Alexander Bondurant, intercollegiate football began in 1893. Bondurant also proposed Harvard crimson and Yale blue as the school colors. The first annual appeared in 1897, named the "Ole Miss" by Elma Meek, a title that became the informal name of the University.

The following decade was an active one in the professional growth on campus with the establishment of the School of Engineering (1900), School of Education and School of Medicine (1903) and the School of Pharmacy (1908). Development of professional schools continued in 1917 with the School of Business Administration. Graduate degrees were conferred by the University as early as 1848, but an official graduate school was not formally structured until 1927.

In 1955, the School of Medicine was moved to Jackson and was expanded to a four-year program with the opening of the Medical Center. The Department of Nursing was moved to the health sciences campus in 1956 and achieved school status in 1958.

The early '60s marked the beginning of a new era with the admission of African-American students to the University in 1962. The remainder of the decade was a time of changing social conditions. In 1968, Porter L. Fortune Jr. succeeded Chancellor J.D. Williams as chief executive. During Chancellor Fortune's tenure, the School of Accountancy was added (1979), as well as the Schools of Health Related Professions (1972) and Dentistry (1973) at the Jackson campus.

With the appointment of Chancellor R. Gerald Turner in 1984, the University officially launched the Campaign for Ole Miss, its first major fund-raising drive, which was overwhelmingly successful, amassing $41.7 million for academic programs. The Drive for Athletics also topped its goal of $8 million, raising $11.6 million to upgrade athletic facilities.

In the 1990s, Ole Miss is providing leadership and research for the state and nation. Just one indication of the University's continued academic excellence is its ranking of first in Mississippi and seventh among all U.S. public universities in the production of Rhodes Scholars (23). The University under Turner's leadership has enhanced the institution's research capabilities. The Oxford campus is home to three federally funded national centers—the Jamie Whitten National Center for Physical Accoustics, the National Center for the Development of Natural Products and the National Food Service Management Institute.

Technology, in fact, is going to be the key to pushing forward the frontiers of knowledge, imagination and expertise necessary for a productive life in an increasingly complex society and competitive world. A major goal of the Sesquicentennial is to ensure that all Ole Miss faculty members have the computer technology available to support teaching, research and service efforts. Planning for the 21st century will ultimately entail developing an advanced telecommunications system that links every faculty office, classroom, laboratory, dormitory room and office with the world. Faculty, staff, students and alumni are being asked to generate goals, priorities and proposals at this vital time.

Oxford, Mississippi

A Place You'll Love to Call Home

Oxford is the ideal university town. It's small enough to make you feel at home, yet large enough to offer the economic, educational and cultural advantages of a vigorous, growing urban center. In Oxford there is a diversity that ranges from art to athletics, culture to catfish. USA Today named Oxford one of the top six college towns in the United States. Oxford is also listed in The 100 Best Small Towns in America.

The city of Oxford, originally part of the Chickasaw Cession, was incorporated by Legislative Act in 1937. The town was captured during the Civil War by Union troops and most of its buildings were burned to the ground, although many historic structures remain.

Oxford has always been known for its close relationship with the University of Mississippi, whose approximately 10,000 students make it roughly the same size as the town. Many people visit Oxford each year to see the University, Rowan Oak - the home of William Faulkner - and other classic Southern architecture, including the Lafayette County Courthouse, Isom Place - built in 1938 - and other homes on the streets surrounding the town square.

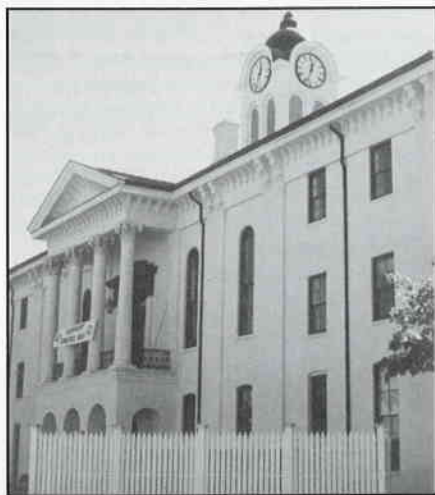

The Square has been the hub of Oxford activities since the founding of the city in 1837. It was designated a National Historic District by Mississippi Historic Preservation in 1980. The Square is the center of the city's thriving downtown business district. The Lafayette County Courthouse, which is located in the center of the Square, was the centerpiece of Faulkner's fictional Yoknapatawpha County. The original courthouse was constructed in 1840, but was burned in 1864 by Union troops led by Gen. A.J. "Whiskey" Smith. The present building dates back to 1873. It was designated a National Historic Monument in 1977.

Visitors and residents alike appreciate the close and gentle beauty of the Lafayette County countryside, which includes National Forest land and such buildings as the College Hill Church, where William and Estelle

Faulkner were married in 1929. Even small communities in Lafayette County provide big surprises. The tiny town of Taylor is home to many artists. World-famous patrons hang out at its grocery/catfish restaurant. Abbeville has a nationally reviewed bait-shop/gas station/grocery/cafe and even smaller Yocona boasts a remodeled grocery serving catfish dinners.

The University of Mississippi, located in Oxford and affectionately known as Ole Miss, is a great educational institution. But in addition to its role in academic leadership the University is in itself a principal attraction to the Oxford area. Athletic events draw thousands of Rebel and Lady Rebel fans to campus to cheer for their teams.

Conferences and University events also draw additional thousands.

As an educational center, Oxford offers educational advantages from nursery school through high school, as well as vocational-technical training. Oxford's elementary and high schools are modern and fully accredited.

Located an easy hour's drive south of Memphis, Oxford is a great place for a weekend getaway or week-long meetings. Accommodations range from modern motels to quaint bed and breakfasts. Great restaurants are around every corner, serving down home Southern goodies or fine cuisine. Concerts, sports events, theatre productions, workshops, dances, lectures, hiking, camping, hunting and fishing — all are available in Oxford and surrounding areas. It's easy to see why thousands find Oxford an interesting place to visit and a wonderful place to live.

The county seat of Lafayette County in northeast Mississippi, Oxford is visited each year by some million guests, according to a Chamber of Commerce estimate. Some visitors come to learn about the world of William Square Books, the home of Oxford's famous writers.

Faulkner, Oxford's Nobel Prize winning author who built his mythical Yoknapatawpha County on stories gleaned and transformed from his lifetime observance of the region.

Faulkner's home, Rowan Oak, has been designated as a National Historic Landmark. The Mississippi Room of the University of Mississippi Library houses a comprehensive collection of Faulkner's works in all major and many minor languages, as well as works by other Mississippi authors.

John Grisham, the best-selling author of The Firm, The Pelican Brief, The Chamber, The Client and A Time to Kill, also calls Oxford home. Although currently residing in Virginia, he still maintains a Victorian home and farm just outside of Oxford.

Oxford was also home to Southern artist-writer John Faulkner, and to nationally recognized primitive painter Miss Theora Hamblett. Oxford is also the site for many antebellum homes such as Cedar Oaks, Isom Place and many others.

Oxford's cultural heritage encompasses more than famous authors and historic homes. Year-round events — drama, concerts, exhibits, performances and festivals — fill the cultural calendar.

The Yoknapatawpha Arts Council sponsors special events on the Oxford Square every first Saturday of the month from March to August and on selected football weekends. Local artists and craftsmen display and sell their works, and local musicians perform.

A full spectrum of recreational opportunities can be found in and around Oxford. Within a 50 mile radius are four major bodies of water: Sardis, Enid, Grenada and Arkabutla Lakes are used extensively for fishing, boating, swimming, camping and hunting. Shoreline areas available for picnicking feature camping sites, tables, outdoor fireplaces, drinking water and sanitary facilities. Holly Springs National Forest, with numerous lakes and more than 90,000 acres of lush forest, is also an important recreational resource.

Lady Rebel Basketball Camp

In 16 years, Van Chancellor has developed the Ole Miss Lady Rebel Basketball Camp into one of the most respected in the nation. The camp offers instruction from some of the top names in women's basketball. Chancellor staffs his camps with top-ranked high school coaches, collegiate coaches and former Lady Rebels such as All-American and Olympian Jennifer Gillom. The camp is also staffed by a certified athletic trainer.

Chancellor has designed his camps to provide individual instruction as well as extensive on-the-floor playing time. His camps stress basketball skills and fundamentals on a variety of levels. Chancellor has a reputation for making the game of basketball fun, and this is carried over to his basketball camps. It all adds up to a fun and exciting way for a young player to improve her basketball game.

The camp is held in the Tad Smith Coliseum, which is the home of the Lady Rebels. Participants of the camp are housed in regular air-conditioned Ole Miss dormitories. Meals are catered by Oxford restaurants and University Food Services.

Camp dates for 1995 are June 4-8 (team camp) and June 18-22 (individual camp).
