2017 SEASON OUTLOOK

After capping off its first season under a brand new head coach in a renovated practice facility with the highest ECAC Championship score in program history, Temple women's gymnastics is set to kick off its 2017 season. Under the direction of second-year head coach Umme Salim-Beasley, 18 Owls will take to the floor looking to travel up the national rankings and continue the success of 2016 with more preparation and confidence.

"We have a team that already knows what our expectations are," said Salim-Beasley. "They already know the framework of what we do as a staff so they are more prepared knowing where we are heading."

The team is welcoming a large group of newcomers to the roster while returning a strong group of upperclassmen including 2016 ECAC co-champion on floor, Briana Odom. The senior captain is coming off her most successful season as an all-around gymnast, posting the program's second-highest all-around score at the ECAC Championships with a 39.05. Odom, along with co-captain Breahna Wiczowski and 10 other returning letterwinners, will lead a pack of six strong freshmen.

The returning group enters the season after collecting six total conference medals from four gymnasts at the ECAC Championships. Junior Sahara Gipson earned a silver on vault, an event where she averaged a 9.667 as the steady anchor. Gipson also competed as an all-around gymnast, posting a season-high of 38.675. Classmate Alexa Phillip helped the Owls to a top-three sweep on floor with a second place finish at Conference Championships. She also posted the highest scores on all three events she competed in at the Owls' last preseason intrasquad with a 9.8 on bars, 9.775 on beam and 9.725 on floor.

Fifth-year senior Reagan Oliveri and sophomore India Anderson also look to make an impact with their returns. Oliveri, who battled back from an Achilles tear in 2015 to earn ECAC Coaches' Choice Gymnast of the Week honors for the week of February 9 last season, will look to add quality experience on every event in her final season. Anderson earned her first ECAC honor just before the Conference Championships last year being named Rookie of the Week after posting top scores of 9.8 on floor and 9.7 on vault.

Overall, the 2016 team posted 14 individual event scores of 9.8 or above, improving from nine total in 2015.

The group of newcomers includes 2015 Maryland Most Outstanding Gymnast, Daisy Todd (Hill's), and two-time J.O. Nationals qualifier, Whitney King (Capital). The pair is also joined by Jaylene Everett (Spirit) and Kerra Masella (Premier), both of whom posted strong showings as seniors including two all-around titles from Everett and a NJSIAA National Team selection for Masella. Yasmin Eubanks (Fairland) is the final true freshman of the group, hailing from Mitchellville, Md. Morgan Fridley (Prestige) rounds out the class of newcomers, transferring from Ball State University, the 2016 MAC runner-ups.

In regards to her complete roster, Salim-Beasley noted, "I think there has been a good balance as far as upper and underclassmen. I have to say that the underclassmen were the ones that pushed and paced the team because they were ready to go right from the beginning. They came in really eager."

The quick pace of preseason is one thing Salim-Beasley is seeing as a huge strength for her 2017 squad. "As far as their progression as a team, we are much farther along than we were last year in terms of meet preparedness," she said. "The numbers we're doing in terms of routines are much higher than they were last year so we're hoping that the consistency in competition will be there earlier on because they are more prepared."

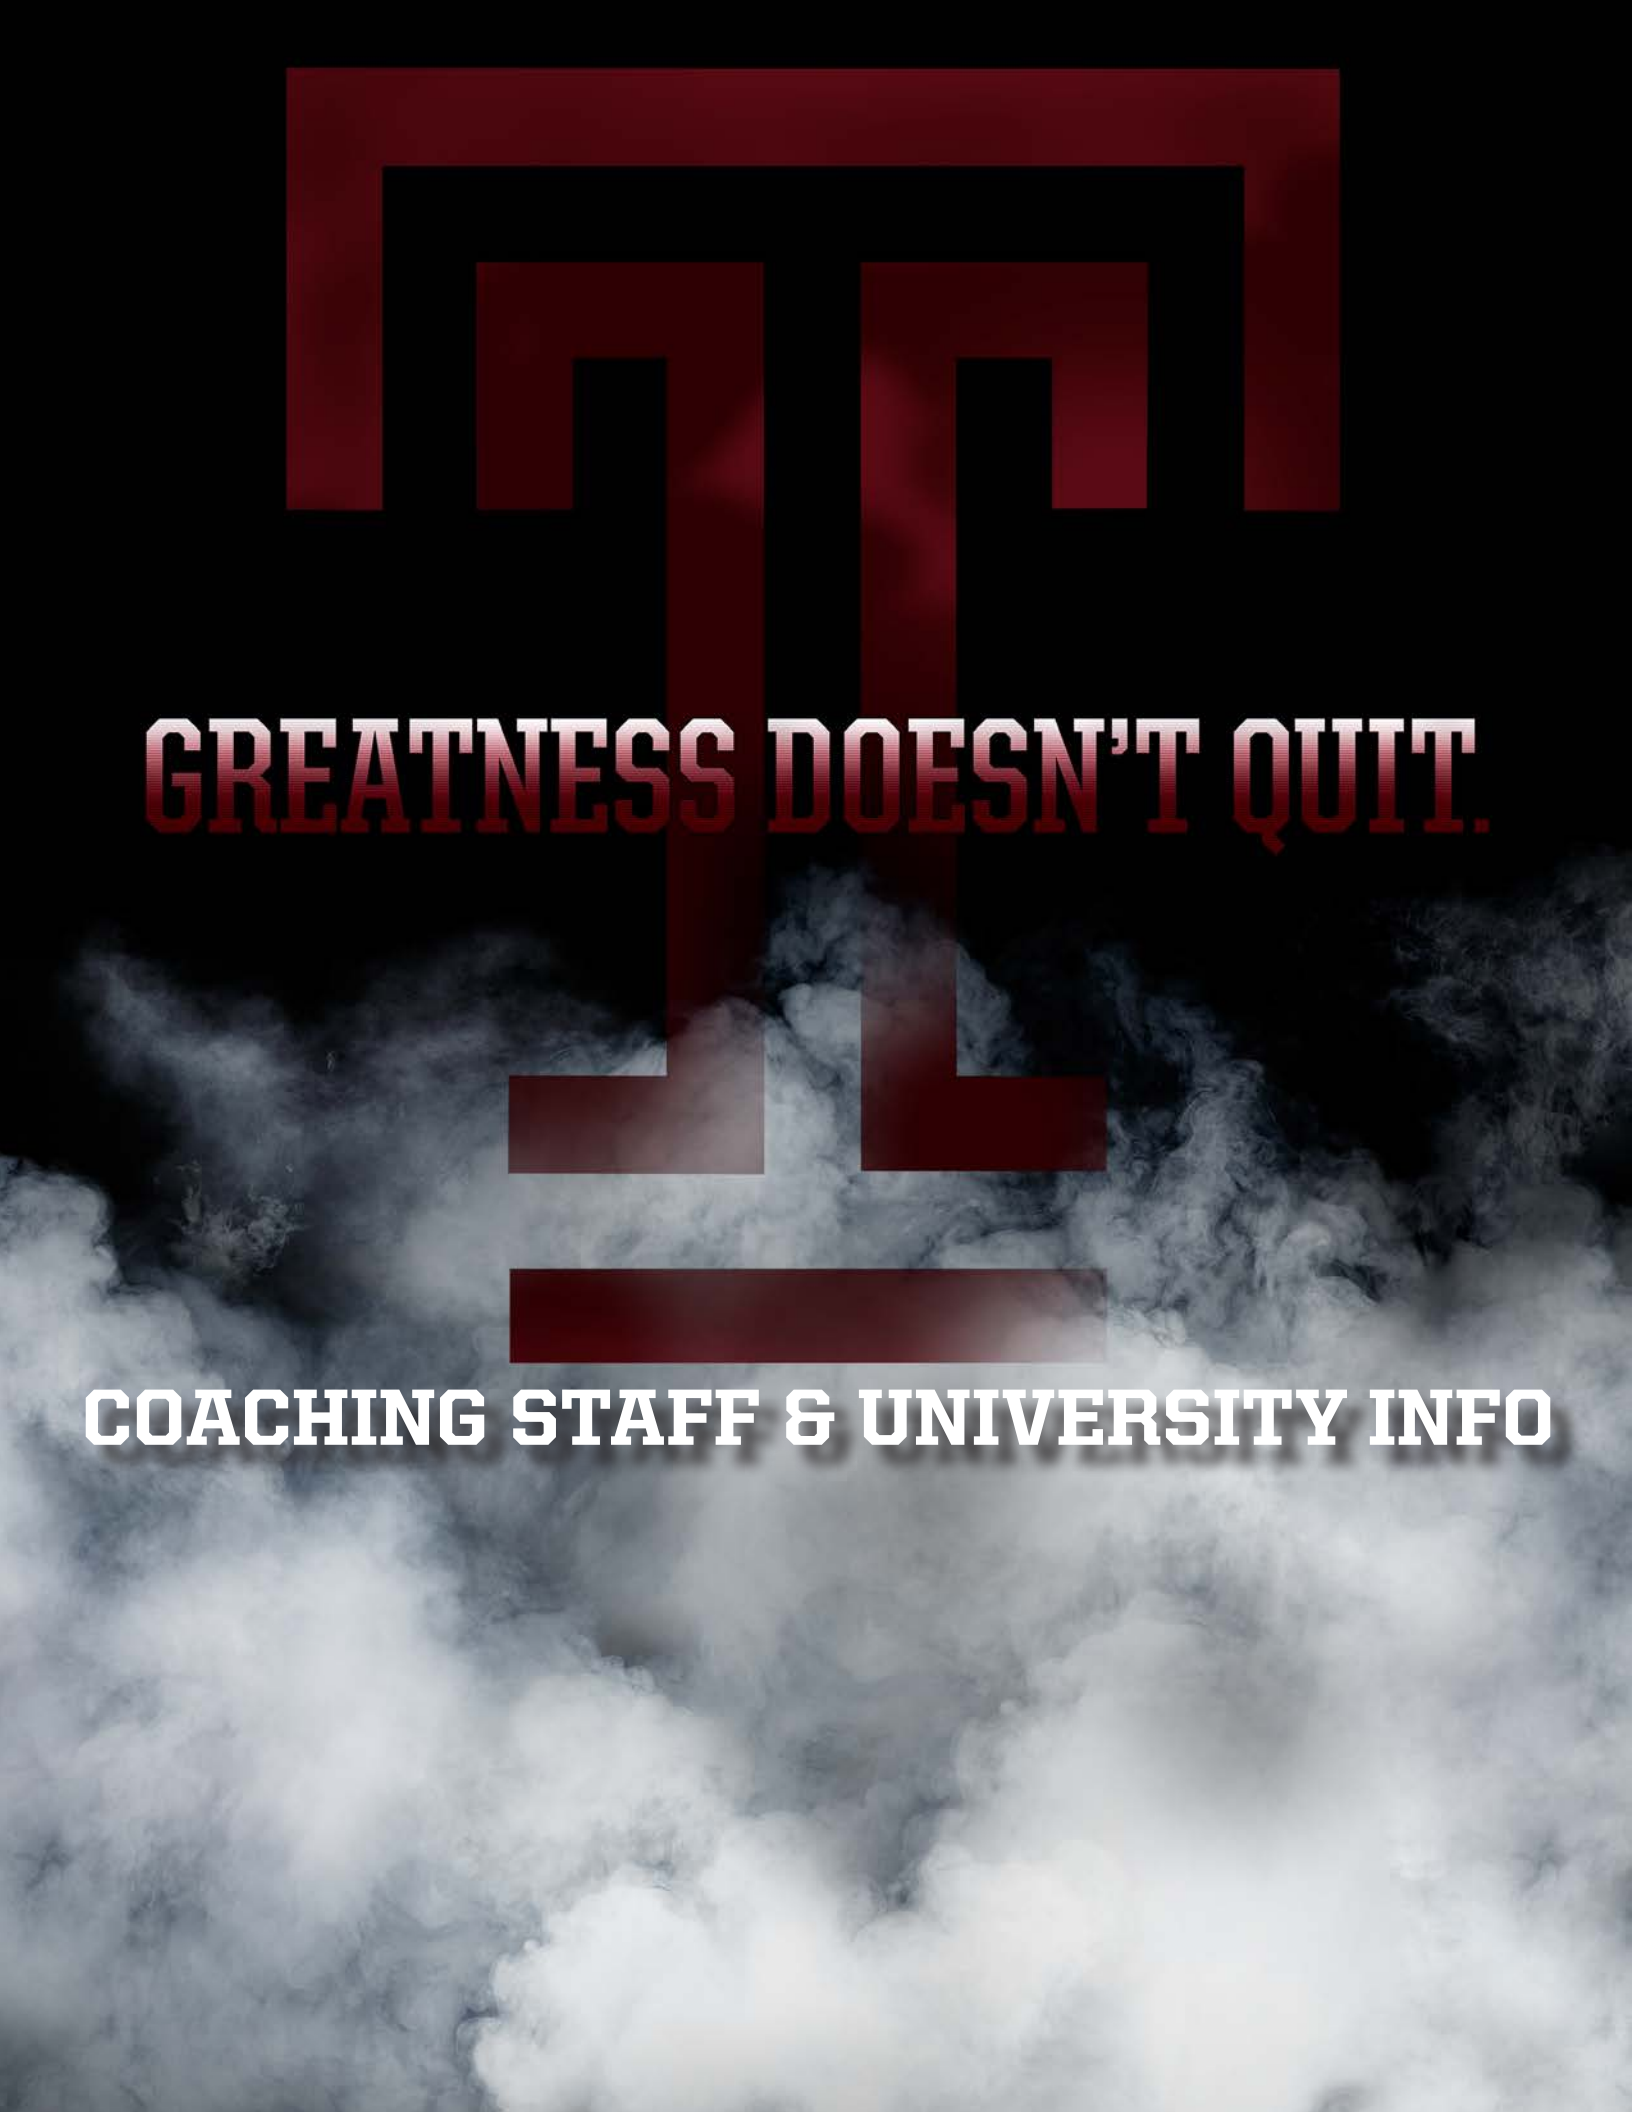

The success in physical routines has also come with an increase in mental work for the Owls following a year where inconsistency may have had a stake in not reaching the teams' full scoring potential. "We've done a lot in terms of mental preparation and visualization," said Salim-Beasley. "We've been working with a sports psychologist to get them in a better mental place so that they are confident in what they are doing. I think that building confidence is something we are keying into to be able to have them ready for competition."

All the preparation is leading to a full and competitive schedule for the Owls, which opens up at a Penn State quad meet that includes BYU and Bowling Green, all of whom qualified for NCAA regionals in 2016. The team will take a long road trip to Knoxville, Tenn. following the season-opener to compete in the Ozone Classic featuring Illinois State, Centenary and Wisconsin-Eau Claire. A dual meet against Ursinus will mark the first of three home meets for Temple on January 22 before closing out the month at a West Virginia quad meet on the 29th.

The Ken Anderson Memorial Invitational will be the second of three home meets on February 4 and will be followed by six road trips through the remainder of February and March. Those meets include top teams such as Towson, UNH, Pitt and Maryland as well as ECAC opponents Cornell, William & Mary and Penn. The Owls close out their regular season with a final home quad meet on March 12 and travel to Brown University for the 2017 ECAC Championships on March 17.

The 2017 schedule looks to up the competition level for the Owls. As Salim-Beasley noted, "We put more competitive teams on the schedule for a reason. We tend to compete up to the level of our competition so when we have tougher competition they tend to compete a little bit better. I think they're ready for that push to be able to compete against some of the best teams in the country and it's a good place for us to be able to showcase the progress we've made."

With strong momentum and notable progress already working in the Owls' favor, Temple women's gymnastics is set for a successful 2017 season. "This team really wants to be good and increase our standing within the country as far as rankings are concerned," Salim-Beasley noted. "I think they are going to do that. They are determined and they want to be successful. They are prepared so I think it's going to be an exciting year."

GREATNESS DOESN'T QUIT.

COACHING STAFF & UNIVERSITY INFO

HEAD COACH Umme Salim-Beasley

SECOND SEASON • West Virginia '98

Career Record • 17-21

Highest Score • 192.525

Umme Salim-Beasley (ooo-me) was hired as Temple's head women's gymnastics coach in late April, 2015. Salim-Beasley had spent the previous four seasons as an assistant coach at Rutgers University, and was named the East Atlantic Gymnastics League (EAGL) Assistant Coach of the Year in 2014.

In her first season with the Owls, Salim-Beasley led the team to a season-high score of 192.525 at the ECAC Championships to cap off the season. At the championships, four Owls brought home a collective six conference medals, including a gold from Briana Odom. Salim-Beasley also coached Odom to a second-place all-around finish with the programs' second-highest score of 39.05.

In 2016, the team posted 14 individual event scores of 9.8 or above, improving the mark of nine from the 2015 season.

In her four years at Rutgers, Salim-Beasley served as the recruiting coordinator for the Scarlet Knights and worked with the uneven bars, among other day-to-day duties for the program.

Salim-Beasley helped Rutgers to a NCAA Regional berth in 2014 and its best EAGL finish in school history. Uneven bars were a big part of the success, as four gymnasts earned all-conference in the event.

In addition, Salim-Beasley guided one of her student-athletes, Alexis Gunzelman, to the top regional qualifying score (RQS) in the conference on bars (9.845) on the way to the first NCAA National all-around appearance by a Scarlet Knight in program history. Gunzelman posted a 9.800 at the national meet, her eighth consecutive meet with at least that score to end the season.

As recruiting coordinator, Salim-Beasley expanded the Scarlet Knights' base nationally to attract top talent from outside the area. Traditionally recruiting in New Jersey and the surrounding states, the Scarlet Knights were able to pull in gymnasts from Florida, South Carolina, Arizona and Massachusetts.

Salim-Beasley brought impressive credentials to Rutgers, having competed collegiately at West Virginia University from 1995 to 1998. A native of Pasadena, Md., she was a two-time national qualifier at Hill's Gymnastic Training Center in Gaithersburg, Md., before earning a full scholarship to WVU.

Salim-Beasley was named Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Year as a freshman at West Virginia, and earned spots on the All-EAGL

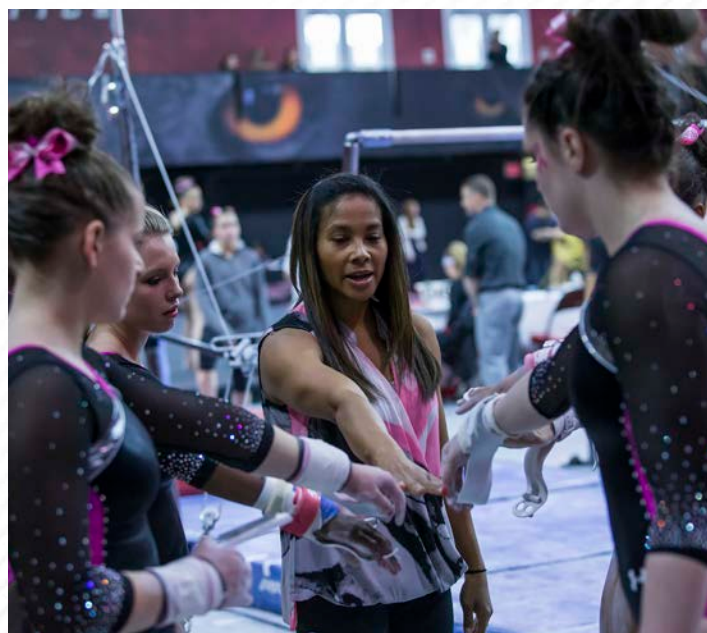

First Team in all-around, bars and beam her sophomore and junior seasons. She finished off her career by being named the EAGL Gymnast of the Year and Most Outstanding Senior Gymnast in her final season in Morgantown in addition to winning the EAGL all-around, bar and beam titles that year. Her accomplishments also ranked her as the fifth-best gymnast in the country and as a finalist for the AAI Award in 1998. Salim-Beasley currently holds the West Virginia University uneven bars record, scoring a 10.0 in 1998.

After graduating from West Virginia with a degree in early childhood education, Salim-Beasley went into coaching, starting as an assistant coach at Penn in 1999. During her one season with the Quakers, the team won the Ivy League Championships in addition to an undefeated regular season, breaking team records in every event.

Salim-Beasley returned to Morgantown as a volunteer assistant coach during the 2006-07 season.

For three years, she coached the Severna Park High School gymnastics team to two county championships, including an undefeated regular season in her first year. Additionally, she coached two different gymnasts to all-around championships.

Salim-Beasley was also a teacher at Eagle Cove School in Pasadena, Md., for four years and is working towards a masters in education from West Virginia University. Richard M. ENGLERT President

40th Year at Temple

After 40 years of outstanding service to Temple University, Richard M. Englert became its president on October 11, 2016. He had been serving as acting president since July 21, 2016.

Englert's latest position caps a career that has included 16 different leadership roles at Temple. Throughout this period, he has been a staunch advocate of Temple's historic mission: access, affordability, diversity and excellence.

Englert arrived at Temple in 1976 as an assistant to the dean of the College of Education. Over the years, he has been provost and interim senior vice president for academic affairs, dean of the College of Education and vice president for administration, among many other roles.

During his career, he has always responded to Temple's call. In July 2012, Englert began a six-month term as Temple's acting president. With Englert at the helm, the university froze base tuition and increased financial aid for students.

In recognition of his lifelong dedication to the university, the Board of Trustees in December 2012 appointed him to the honorific role of university chancellor.

"We have been blessed to have Dick as president," said Board of Trustees Chair Patrick J. O'Connor at the time. "It's been a great pleasure working with him. The relationship that he has with the Temple community is second to none."

Since 2012, Englert has been active as a professor in the College of Education and in various administrative projects.

He brings a wealth of experience to the acting presidency.

Englert earned a doctorate in educational administration from the University of California, Los Angeles. He also has a master's degree from Pepperdine University and a bachelor's degree from St. John's College.

When he began his current appointment as acting president, Englert talked about his "deep respect" for Temple University.

"Having spent most of my academic career here, I have seen how Temple has become one of the best public urban research universities in the nation," said Englert.

"While our leadership has changed over the decades, our mission has not. Temple has been—and will be—a university that is accessible, affordable, diverse and high-quality. That is who we are. It is in our DNA."

Director of Athletics

4th Year at Temple (2nd as Dir. of Athletics)

Dr. Patrick Kraft, who is in his third year at Temple, has helped transform the University's athletics department while serving first as Deputy Director of Athletics (2013-15), and since May 2015 in his current role as Director of Athletics.

Kraft has had an incredible impact on Temple Athletics in his short time at the school, and this impact has been recognized both regionally and nationally. In 2016, the 38-year-old athletic administrator was named to the Forty Under 40 lists for the Sports Business Journal and the Philadelphia Business Journal. He was the only inter-collegiate athletic director on each list.

Through his regular meetings and open dialogue with student-athletes, Kraft has made the voice and welfare of the student-athlete paramount. In his tenure, he has worked to provide a better quality experience for the University's 500-plus student-athletes. Enhancements were completed to athletic training facilities, strength and conditioning facilities, and the student-athlete academic support center. Additionally, locker room renovations and upgrades were completed for each team.

Recognizing the unique needs of Temple's student-athletes, Kraft facilitated the development of a number of initiatives aimed at improving the mental health of student-athletes, including establishing a partnership with Temple's Department of Clinical Psychology to deliver onsite behavioral health coaching for student-athletes. The Department has also partnered with the University's Student Health Services staff to serve as a resource for student-athletes. A trained dietitian meets with teams and individual student-athletes to provide education and address areas of concern with regards to their nutrition and dietary questions.

Under his leadership, his passion for the holistic development of student-athletes has led to exceptional performances in the classroom highlighted by record-setting grade point averages, academic performance (APR) and graduation rates. With record numbers of student-athletes earning their degrees, life after sport and career development has also been a great point of emphasis for Kraft. In collaboration with Temple's Career Center, over 40 national and regional employers have attended two Career Networking Events on campus this year, where student-athletes have had opportunities to hone their networking skills and establish professional connections in their respective industries.

Another area that has shown tremendous growth over the past year has been community service. Student-athlete community service projects have doubled from the 2014-15 academic year with over 31 projects and over 4,800 hours completed for this academic year to date.

Many initiatives have been undertaken to further engage students, alumni, and fans. Some of those initiatives include Owls TV, a video services department dedicated to athletics, a broad-ranging social media presence, and new game-day enhancements and traditions.

Kraft oversaw the greatest season in Temple Football's history. The team recorded its best start in school history at 7-0 and its first national ranking since 1979. That success lured ESPN College GameDay to Philadelphia for the team's sold out game against Notre Dame. Although the #21 Owls lost a tightly-contested game (24-20) to the #9 Irish, the game garnered a record 18.1 share in Philadelphia to make it ABC's highest-rated regular season college football game in the market.

The 2015 Temple football campaign tied the school record for wins and earned bowl eligibility for the second consecutive season; the fifth time in seven seasons. The Owls were the American Athletic Conference East Division Champions and earned a bid to the Boca Raton Bowl, led by National Defensive Player of the Year (Bednarik and Nagurski Awards) and Consensus All-American Tyler Matakevich.

Leading the conference in attendance for Football, Temple Athletics also set attendance records for men's and women's basketball with single game building records at the Liacouras Center and McGonigle Hall, respectively.

Temple men's basketball won the American Athletic Conference regular season title in 2015-16, and advanced to the NCAA Tournament for the seventh time in the last nine years. The Owls' women's basketball team earned a second straight bid to the WNIT and with its win over Ohio last night, advanced to the quarterfinals of the tournament for the second straight year.

During his tenure, he was integral in securing key partnerships with Learfield Sports Properties, Learfield Licensing Partners, and IMG/Learfield Ticket Solutions while negotiating a lucrative rights deal with Under Armour. Capital projects have also been on the forefront with the Temple Sports Complex, home to men's and women's soccer, lacrosse, field hockey and track, opening in August of 2016. The restoration of the East Park Canoe House for men's crew and women's rowing will also be completed in the fall; while this past June saw the groundbreaking for a new indoor practice facility.

Prior to Temple, Kraft was the Executive Senior Associate Athletics Director at Loyola University Chicago. At Loyola, he had direct oversight of all aspects of the department's external operations, including the marketing, ticketing, media relations, and fundraising components. Kraft played an integral role in Loyola's move from the Horizon League to the Missouri Valley Conference.

In his two years at the school, he was able to grow the men's basketball season ticket base by 30 percent with an overall increase of 51 percent in ticket revenue. Additionally, he generated an increase of 400 percent in cash sponsorship to the department while also growing the department's annual giving by 75 percent.

As Senior Assistant AD at Indiana, Kraft, was responsible for the branding and marketing efforts for all of the Hoosiers' programs. He oversaw game production for all of IU's varsity sports and coordinated group, season, and single-game ticket sales for football, men's basketball, men's soccer, women's basketball, and women's volleyball.

In addition, Kraft managed the promotion, marketing, brand enhancement, and enforcement of the school's Adidas contract and the Big Ten Network partnership as well as the Learfield Sport Properties multi-media rights agreement with the Hoosiers.

His efforts at Indiana helped increase home football attendance to its highest mark in 17 years, with it also being the third largest football attendance increase among all Division I schools. He also instituted a strategy that saw a 20 percent increase in student ticket sales and the overall highest season ticket base in 13 years.

Kraft, who played football as an undergraduate at Indiana, has three degrees from the University. He earned a bachelor's degree in sports marketing/management (2000), a master's degree in athletic administration (2005), and a doctorate in sports management (2008).

Kraft and his wife, Betsy, reside in Cherry Hill, N.J., with their daughter Annabelle and son Joseph.

Angelos also held number two positions as the Deputy Athletic Director and Chief Operating Officer at Indiana University and Senior Associate Athletic Director at Miami (Fla.). Prior to his tenure at Miami, Angelos spent three years at the NCAA as a legislative assistant interpreting NCAA rules and regulations.

A graduate of the Creighton University School of Law, Angelos worked for a short time in a mid-sized litigation firm in Los Angeles, Calif. He earned his bachelor's degree from Brigham Young University where he was the starting first basemen on the baseball team and later played in Buttrio, Italy for an Italian professional baseball league.

He succeeded Eleanor W. Myers, an associate professor at the Beasley School of Law, who stepped down from the position.
