PRINCETON vs. SYRACUSE

NCAA Opening Round • Nov. 11, 2022

Back on Sept. 9, the Princeton field hockey team was 0-2, with two one-goal losses to teams that were ranked in the top four. The Tigers were staring at a brutal schedule from there, one that included seven of the top 10 teams in the country, including the defending NCAA champs and two other 2021 Final Four teams.

For its home opener, Princeton faced Syracuse, a then-unbeaten team at 4-0 that came in leading Division I goals per game to that point. The Tigers turned their season around that day, defeating the Orange 5-1.

That win started a season-ending 15-game stretch that saw Princeton go 13-2 and power through the Ivy League unbeaten at 7-0. As a result Princeton is back in the NCAA tournament after a rare year away from the tournament, and the task now to extend its season is to once again defeat Syracuse.

The Orange season hardly ended with the Princeton loss. The Cuse finished its season 15-5, including 3-3 in the brutal ACC. Syracuse received an at-large bid to the NCAA tournament.

Princeton vs. Syracuse Five Storylines

Back in the NCAA tournament

Princeton is back in the postseason after missing out a year ago due to a penalty shot loss to Harvard and an RPI that fell just short of the last at-large bid. This year's appearance is the program's 25th in the NCAA tournament, and Princeton has made nine Final Four appearances, most recently in 2019. Princeton has also reached the final four times, winning once, in 2012.

The last time Princeton failed to reach the NCAA tournament in consecutive years was 1992 and 1993. The Tigers have played 53 NCAA tournament games in their history, with a record of 29-24. Princeton's 29 NCAA wins rank sixth among all programs.

Series history

Princeton leads the all-time series against Syracuse 13-10, including the 5-1 win over the Orange in September. Princeton won the game before that between the two, also by a 5-1 count, in the 2019 NCAA tournament.

Prior to those two games, Syracuse had defeated Princeton seven straight times, including a 2-0 Orange win in 2012 that was the Tigers' only loss during their 21-1 run to the NCAA championship.

Princeton is 3-2 all-time against Syracuse in the NCAA tournament.

Highly offensive

There are two games in the first round that will match two teams ranked in the top 10 in Division I in scoring offense. Both of those games will be played at Maryland.

The first game matches the host Terps (second in scoring offense) and Liberty (fifth). After that, it'll be Princeton (eighth) against Syracuse (fourth).

Princeton averaged more goals per game out of the conference (3.3 per game) than in its league games (2.86 per game).

PRINCETON vs. SYRACUSE NCAA Opening Round • Nov. 11, 2022

The first time

Princeton defeated Syracuse 5-1 on Sept. 9, but the Orange actually outshot Princeton 21-14 for the game. Looking closer, shots were 13-11 in Princeton's favor in the first three quarters and then 10-1 in favor of Syracuse in the fourth.

Princeton scored all three goals in the first half and then the final two after Syracuse made it 3-1 midway through the third. Princeton's five goals came from five different players: Sammy Popper, Liz Agatucci, Ali McCarthy, Sam Davidson and Beth Yeager. Robyn Thompson made eight saves in the game.

The Syracuse goal was scored by Quirine Comans.

Ivy champs

Princeton won the Ivy League championship for the 27th time. Every other Ivy League team combined has won 25 Ivy titles.

Princeton's 7-0 Ivy record means that Princeton has now had 20 perfect Ivy League seasons. Every other Ivy team combined has had four.

Other notes

- Princeton is 3-3 against teams in the NCAA tournament field, having defeated Maryland, Syracuse and Delaware and having lost to Northwestern, Louisville and North Carolina.
- All four of Princeton's losses this year are by one goal.
- Princeton had nine players earn All-Ivy League honors, including both Ivy Players of the Year, with Hannah Davey the Defensive Player of the Year and Beth Yeager the Offensive Player of the Year. Davey, Yeager and Sammy Popper were all first-team selections, with Gabby Andretta and Grace Schulze on second-team, Ophelie Bemelmans, Ali McCarthy and Robyn Thompson honorable mention and Sam Davidson Academic All-Ivy League.
- Princeton's Carla Tagliente was named Ivy League Coach of the Year for the fourth time. Tagliente, and associate head coach Dina Rizzo, both won an NCAA championship as players at Maryland.
- Princeton is second in Division I in penalty corners per game, with 8.88, trailing only Liberty (9.47).
- Princeton has eight seniors, all of whom are starters.
- Princeton has scored 30 goals in the first and fourth quarters and 22 goals in the second and third. Its opponents have scored 26 total and have not reached double figures in any quarter.
- Princeton is 1-2 in overtime games this season. Beth Yeager scored the game-winner in the OT win against Maryland, and she now has three career overtime goals. Other current Princeton players with career overtime goals are Ali McCarthy (two), Sammy Popper (one) and Hannah Davey (one).
