Team Notes

This will be the first NCAA tournament for any of the Tiger players, as Princeton's last bid was in 2017. Entering this season, only four Tigers (Hoffman, Hamilton, Mavica, Blanchard) had played in an Ivy League game, as the 2020 season was cut short before the Ivy season began, and the Ivy did not hold a league season in 2021.

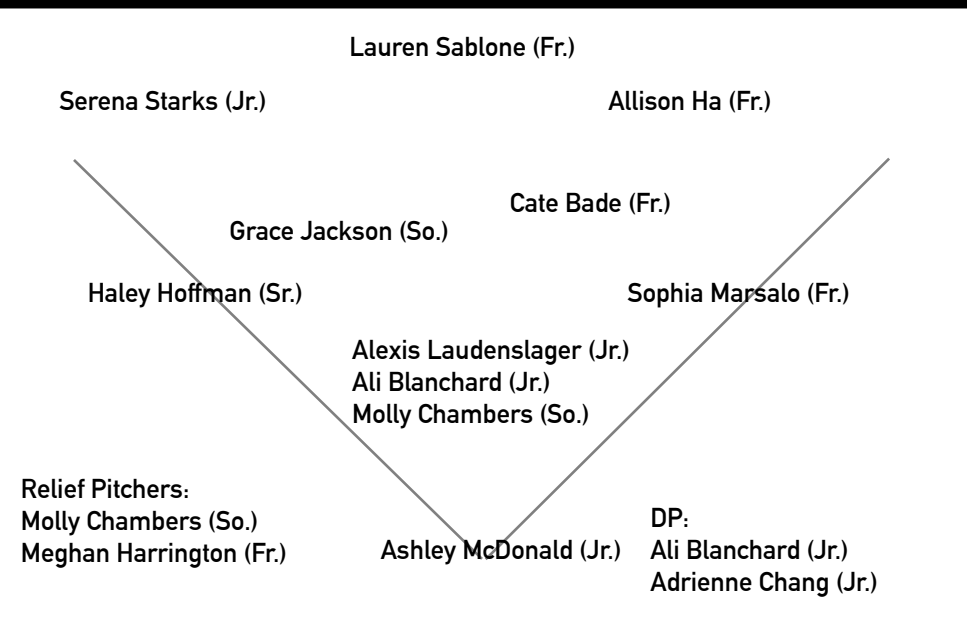

Princeton has won the most Ivy League titles (20) and made the most NCAA tournament appearances (11) of any Ivy team. Princeton's 20 Ivy League titles make the softball team one of only four women's programs across the Ivy that have won at least 20 in any sport, along with Princeton field hockey (26), Harvard squash (25) and Princeton swim and dive (23).

Princeton's timeline for the 2021 season saw the Ivy League announce on Feb. 18, 2021 that it would not hold spring competition. On April 22, 2021, Princeton announced that it would allow local competition for spring teams. The softball program was able to schedule games against Villanova and Drexel, going 1-2 in what was the extent of intercollegiate competition for last season's team.

Princeton coach Lisa Van Ackeren helped Lehigh to three NCAA tournaments as a player, in 2006, 2008 and 2009, knocking Princeton out of the 2008 tournament at UMass with a win that raised the then-junior's record in the circle that season to 26-5. On June 12, 2012, then-Lisa Sweeney was named Princeton's head coach. Van Ackeren is married to Brendan Van Ackeren, a fellow Lehigh alum who serves as a Princeton Associate AD for Advancement and the Princeton Varsity Club. Furthering the connection between the families and Princeton, Trevor Van Ackeren, Brendan's brother, is a 2012 Princeton track alum. Lisa Van Ackeren is from Lumberton, N.J., about 35 minutes south of Princeton.

Princeton won the Ivy League champion by finishing atop the eight in the regular season. In all Ivy sports, the team that finishes atop the eight in the regular season is the Ivy League champion, including ties. In softball, from 2007-17, there were two divisions, and the division winners met for both the Ivy title and the NCAA AQ in what was called the Ivy League Championship Series. In 2018, that changed so that the divisions were gone and the regular-season winner was the Ivy League champion. The top two teams would meet at the champion's field for the NCAA AQ, keeping the best-of-three series and now calling it the Ivy League Playoff Series. Princeton made more history at the ILPS this year, becoming the first team in the 14-season history of the ILCS/ILPS to win after losing the first game. In 2016, Princeton became the first team to win the ILCS/ILPS on the road, and it's only been done once since, by Harvard in 2018.

Princeton had eight All-Ivy League honorees this season, its most since 2008, and its six first-teamers were its most since 1996. First-teamers were Alexis Laudenslager (SP), Sophia Marsalo (1B), Serena Starks (OF), Allison Ha (Util.), Ali Blanchard (P/Util.) and Adrienne Chang (DP). Second-teamers were Grace Jackson (SS) and Lauren Sablone (OF).

Lisa Van Ackeren was the Ivy League Coach of the Year for the third time, giving Van Ackeren half of the six honors awarded since the inaugural award in 2016. Alexis Laudenslager was Princeton's first Ivy Pitcher of the Year since 2017 and 10th since the award began in 1994, and Sophia Marsalo was Princeton's first Ivy Rookie of the Year since 2017 and ninth since the award began in 1985.

Princeton's 27 wins are its most since 2013, Lisa Van Ackeren's first year with the program. One more win would give Princeton its most since a 36-win season in 2006.

In the NCAA field, Princeton this season faced (in chronological order) Notre Dame, Loyola Marymount, South Dakota State, Villanova and Lehigh, getting wins against Villanova and Lehigh as well as a tie against Lehigh.

Princeton's first game of the season was on Feb. 25, a couple weeks after most of the country, due to Ivy League rules. The Tigers started 1-8 and since have gone 26-7-2.

Against teams in the SEC at the time of the game, Princeton is 1-11 with two games at Florida in 2007 as the last games against the conference. The lone win came at Tennessee in 2003. Seven of the 11 losses were to South Carolina, and along with the Florida games is one loss to Georgia in 2002 and one loss to LSU in the 2006 NCAA tournament. That LSU game and a loss to South Carolina in 2003 are Princeton's only NCAA games against SEC teams. Princeton and Arkansas have never met.

Princeton is 2-17 against teams in the Pac-12 at the time of the game, most recently with two losses at Arizona State in 2019. The two wins were against ASU in 2004 and Stanford in 2005. Princeton and Oregon have met once, a Ducks win in 1996. The only NCAA games against Pac-12 opponents at the time of the game were against Arizona in the 1995 Women's College World Series and Washington in the 1996 WCWS.

Princeton and Wichita State have met once, a Shockers win in 1998. Princeton is 1-6 against American Athletic Conference teams at the time of the game, all against Houston, UCF and USF. The win came against UCF in 2018 and the most recent game was at Houston in 2020.

Non-seniors have accounted for 88 percent of Princeton's at-bats this season and all of Princeton's innings in the circle. All of Princeton's top seven hitters by batting average are able to return in 2023.

Princeton will be aiming for the Ivy League's first win in the NCAA tournament since 2012, when Harvard won two elimination games to make the regional final at Washington. Princeton's last win in the NCAA tournament was in an elimination game in 2005 against Lehigh. That win over Lehigh was the year before Lisa Van Ackeren joined the Lehigh program, helping the Mountain Hawks to regional finals in 2006 and 2009.

Among the 13 players on the roster with declared majors (most Princeton students declare a major at the end of their sophomore year), eight majors are represented, with five Tigers as students in the School of Public and International Affairs, two molecular biology majors, and one each in economics, politics, ecology and evolutionary biology, computer science, mechanical and aerospace engineering, and architecture.
