Since Doug Schreiber was named Purdue's head baseball coach on May 29, 1998, the Boilermakers have fast become a major force in the Big Ten Conference and have made big strides on the national level.

Schreiber's Boilermakers suffered the worst win-loss season in his nine years as head coach in 2007, finishing 22-32 overall and a disappointing 11-20 finish in Big Ten action. The season looked promising in the early going as Purdue began 17-14 and 7-5 in conference action. However, a lost lead vs. eventual Big Ten champion Michigan sent the Boilermakers into a downward spiral as Purdue lost 18 of its final 23 games overall and 15 of the final 19 conference contests. Despite the disappointing finish, Schreiber's Boilermakers produced two of the top young players in the conference: consensus first team all-conference first baseman Ryne White and pitcher and Big Ten Freshman of the Year Matt Bischoff.

The 2006 season saw the Boilermakers post a 31-27 record and qualify for the Big Ten Tournament for a third straight season, the longest streak for Purdue since the tournament's inception in 1981. The Boilermakers produced six all-conference selections, the most since 2001, and had four players selected in the Major League draft, the most among all Big Ten schools in 2006. Early in the season, Purdue defeated No. 2 North Carolina, the eventual national runner-up, and won two of three games against No. 18 Missouri, which ended the season ranked No. 16.

The 2005 Boilermakers missed claiming its first Big Ten title since 1909 by one game, finishing second in the conference for the second time under Schreiber. Purdue continued its trend of playing one of the best schedules the nation can offer, a schedule that was ranked as the toughest in the nation through the Spring Break trip. In the first month of the season, Purdue played Texas, the eventual national champion, and NCAA Super Regional qualifiers Mississippi and Rice.

In 2004, the Boilermakers posted the fourth winning season under the guidance of Schreiber, ending the season with a 29-28 mark. Purdue returned to postseason play, finishing fifth in the Big Ten, only two games out of second place. The Boilermakers defeated Michigan State in the first round of the Big Ten Tournament before being eliminated by the number one and two seeds.

A staple in Schreiber baseball, the Boilermakers led the Big Ten in fielding three years in a row, from 2001 to 2003.

In 2001, Schreiber and his Boilermakers were on the brink of winning the school's first baseball conference championship since 1909. The Boilermakers finished the Big Ten season in second place at 19-7, just half a game behind champion Ohio State and its 20-7 record. The 2001 Boilermakers ended the season with a 32-24 mark and set a school record for most conference wins (19) and had the highest finish of any Boilermaker baseball team since 1928. Purdue had the top pitching staff and defense in the Big Ten in 2001, leading the conference with a team ERA of 3.67 in conference games and a .977 fielding percentage in all games.

Purdue finished the 2000 season in third place in the Big Ten with a 17-11 record, which included a dominating 9-3 mark against the other top three teams in the conference. The Boilermakers had a four-game series sweep against then-league-leader and No. 25 Illinois and finished the Big Ten regular season winning three out of four games at No. 25 and conference champion Minnesota. The Boilermakers ended the season with a 35-23 overall record and owned the top pitching staff in the Big Ten, with a team ERA of 4.12 in all games.

Two of Schreiber's nine Purdue teams have been ranked in the top 25 in the country. Baseball America ranked Purdue No. 25 in the nation after the Boilermakers opened the 2001 season with upset wins over No. 1 Rice and No. 24 Wake Forest while capturing the championship of the Coca-Cola Classic, held in Houston, Texas. It was the baseball program's first national ranking since 1993. Later that season, after posting a 13-game winning streak, the Boilermakers were ranked No. 29 by Collegiate Baseball. The 13-game streak was the nation's longest winning streak at that point in the season.

The 2002 squad entered the season ranked No. 24 in the country by the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association (NCBWA) and No. 27 by Collegiate Baseball. It was the first time in school history that the baseball program started a season nationally ranked.

The 2000 Boilermakers earned big road wins at No. 6 Alabama, No. 16 East Carolina and No. 24 Notre Dame, helping Purdue finish the year with an RPI ranking of 45th in the country. That RPI ranking was the second-best in the Big Ten that season, just one spot behind conference champion Minnesota (44th).

Schreiber believes in playing a challenging non-conference schedule each year against some of the nation's elite baseball programs. During the past seven years of the Schreiber era, Purdue has faced national powers Alabama, Auburn, Central Florida, Clemson, Florida, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Long Beach State, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Notre Dame, Oklahoma State, Rice, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, UCLA, Vanderbilt and Wake Forest. This year's schedule includes games against Baylor and Louisville.

Schreiber owns a 253-252 overall record and a 132-134 Big Ten mark through his first eight years as head coach of the Boilermakers. His overall win total ranks second in Purdue history, while his conference win total stands first. In 2007, Schreiber became the third head coach in Purdue baseball history to surpass the 500-games mark as the Boilermaker skipper. Dave Alexander, whom Schreiber played for from 1983 to 1986, owns the record for most games coached at Purdue with 792 over 14 season, while Joe Sexson guided the Boilermakers for 527 games over 18 years.

In 2001, Baseball America named Schreiber as one of the nation's top young Division I head coaches on the rise.

In nine seasons as the head coach at Purdue, Schreiber has tutored 36 All-Big Ten Conference selections, including 12 who were named to the conference's first team, and has had 13 players selected in the Major League Baseball First-Year Player Draft.

Prior to his naming as head coach at Purdue, Schreiber spent four seasons (1995-98) as the top assistant coach and recruiting coordinator under Pat Murphy at Arizona State University. Schreiber helped guide Arizona State to the College World Series and the national championship game in 1998. A year earlier, the Sun Devils finished as regional runners-up to Miami, and were two outs away from going to the College World Series. Schreiber's recruiting classes at ASU were ranked No. 1 in 1995 and No. 3 in 1996, and were nationally ranked in 1997 and 1998, as well.

Before going to Arizona State, Schreiber served as an assistant coach for Murphy at the University of Notre Dame in 1994. That season, the Fighting Irish finished 46-16 and ended the season just two wins shy of Omaha, finishing as regional runners-up to Auburn.

Schreiber began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Pat Quinn at Ball State University for two seasons (1991-92) and spent one year (1993) as an assistant at Butler University.

HEAD COACH DOUG SCHREIBER

A native of LaPorte, Ind., Schreiber was a four-year starter (1983-86) at second base for the Boilermakers. During his career, Purdue posted a 120-112-2 mark and established a school-record 37 victories his senior season when he was a second-team All-Big Ten selection. Schreiber still ranks among Purdue's career leaders in a variety of categories, including top-six ranking in four categories. Schreiber ranks first all-time in walks (132), fourth in runs scored (159), tied for third in games played (220) and tied for sixth in triples (9). He earned his bachelor of arts degree in communications and has completed some course work towards a master's in education.

Schreiber played for the Adray Sound of the Detroit Adray Summer League in 1983, where he started in the infield alongside future Major Leaguers Barry Larkin (shortstop) and Jim Leyritz (third base). Schreiber also played for the Cotuit Kettleers of the prestigious Cape Cod League, helping the team win the league championship in the summer of 1985.

Born Aug. 25, 1963, Schreiber is the son of legendary LaPorte High School baseball coach Ken Schreiber, a three-time National Prep Coach of the Year who retired in 1998. The elder Schreiber guided LaPorte to an Indiana-record seven state championships, including the 1982 season, when Doug was a senior co-captain and starting shortstop. Schreiber was also named the recipient of the prestigious L.V. Phillips Mental Attitude Award presented by the IHSAA following his team's state championship run.

Schreiber and his wife, the former Sarah Piper, reside in Lafayette, Ind.

Jamie Sailors is in his second season at Purdue, serving the Boilermakers as the pitching coach. Sailors is the fourth pitching coach to serve under the guidance of head coach Doug Schreiber.

As a newcomer to the program for the 2007 season, Sailors directed a staff of young guns. By the season's end, three of the four pitchers in the Purdue starting rotation were true freshmen, including all-conference and Freshman All-America honorees Matt Bischoff and Tony Sedlmeyer. Under the direction of Sailors, Bischoff earned Freshman of the Year accolades in the Big Ten Conference, becoming the first Boilermaker to be honored with an individual award selection by the league's head coaches.

Sailors joined the Purdue staff in August 2006 after serving as the head coach at University of Wisconsin-Platteville since the 2002 season. In five years as the skipper of the Pioneers, he directed UWP to 85 wins.

In 2005, Sailors led the Pioneers to a 22-21 final record, the school's first winning season on the diamond since 1993. The 2005 Platteville squad earned a berth in the WIAC Tournament, the first postseason appearance for the baseball team in school history.

After his first two seasons at the helm at UWP, Sailors was rewarded by becoming the first full-time head baseball coach in the program's history. Prior to the 2004 season, the Pioneers' head coach was also required to serve within the football office.

Sailors was a 13th-round selection by the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1992 Major League Baseball First-Year Player Draft after playing one season at Parkland College in Champaign, Ill. In 1993, Sailors finished second in the league in strikeouts while pitching for the Johnson City Cardinals of the Appalachian League.

Sailors is a product of Frontier High School in Chalmers, Ind., and earned a bachelor's degree from Purdue in 1999. He completed a master's in education at UW-Platteville in 2003.

Sailors and his wife, Sarah, reside in West Lafayette, Ind. The couple has two children: daughter, Madisen, and son, Brooks.

SPENCER ALLEN

Spencer Allen is the newest full-time member of the Purdue coaching staff, joining the Boilermaker baseball program in August 2007. Allen will primarily be responsible for the hitters and catchers.

Allen comes to Purdue after serving as an area scout for the Detroit Tigers where his responsibilities included identifying and tracking Major League Baseball prospects in the Pacific Northwest and Canada. Allen was with the Tigers organization during the 2006 and 2007 seasons.

Prior to joining the Tigers' scouting team, Allen was a member of the coaching staff at Creighton University, handling the outfielders and catchers for the Bluejays. In Omaha, Neb., from during the 2005 and 2006 campaigns, Allen assisted with recruiting, organized travel, coordinated the program's baseball camp and monitored the academic success of the baseball student-athletes. The Bluejays compiled a 79-38 record during Allen's two seasons, winning their first-ever Missouri Valley Conference title in 2005.

Allen is not a stranger to the Big Ten Conference, having served as a volunteer assistant coach at Iowa in 2004 under head coach Jack Dahm. At Iowa Allen's duties included working with the outfielders and hitters, overseeing the team's conditioning, handling on-campus recruiting and organizing the program's camps.

Allen is a 2001 graduate of Iowa State University, where he played baseball for the Cyclones for three seasons (1999-2001). An Academic All-Big XII selection in 2001, Allen served as team captain during his final season and received the Scholar Athlete Award at ISU in 2000 and 2001.

Allen and his fiancé, Jessica Draemel, reside in Lafayette, Ind.

VOLUNTEER ASSISTANT COACH / FIRST YEAR

Ricky Heines continues his association with the Purdue baseball program as a member of the Boilermaker coaching staff, joining the staff as a volunteer assistant coach. Heines will work with the pitching staff, aiding assistant coach Jamie Sailors with the Boilermaker bullpen.

Heines was a member of the Boilermakers baseball team in 2006 and 2007, where he earned All-Big Ten Conference honors as a junior. A two-year weekend starter on the pitching staff, he compiled a career record of 11-10 in 25 starts. As a member of the starting rotation, Heines was the only Boilermaker pitcher over the past two seasons to start on the mound during every Big Ten weekend series.

Before playing at Purdue, Heines pitched two seasons at Midland College in Midland, Texas. At Midland Heines earned Academic All-America honors in 2005 and was named to the All-Western Junior College Athletic Conference Team as an honorable mention selection.

Heines earned his bachelor's degree in Dec. 2007, from Purdue University in movement and sports science.

Heines was born on July 9, 1985, in San Antonio, Texas, where he graduated from Madison High School. Heines is single and resides in West Lafayette, Ind.

MORGAN BURKE

Now in his 15th year as director of intercollegiate athletics, Morgan Burke embodies the Boilermaker spirit that drew him back to his alma mater. During his tenure, the women's basketball team captured the national championship, the football team embarked on a run of 10 bowl games in 11 years and the men's basketball team achieved an unprecedented string of back-to-back-to-back Big Ten Conference championships.

Burke has been called the athletics director who came down from the grandstands because he was an avid fan and member of the John Purdue Club long before he was appointed to lead Intercollegiate Athletics in 1992. No one wants to see the Boilermakers prevail in competition more than Burke, and few expend more energy in cheering them on to victory.

In Burke's time at the helm of Purdue Intercollegiate Athletics, performances on and off the field reflect the high expectations that heralded his hiring. In 1992, the Purdue Board of Trustees voted unanimously to declare the intention to establish "a nationally prominent athletic organization that is excellent in all respects."

A 1973 industrial management graduate and captain of the Boilermaker swim team his senior year, Burke was a member of Phi Beta Kappa scholastic honorary. After graduation, he continued at Purdue and earned a master's degree in industrial relations in 1975. In 1980, he graduated with a law degree from John Marshall Law School in Chicago.

He pursued a successful career with Inland Steel Co. after law school, moving through 13 positions in an 18-year span. He was vice president when he departed to become athletics director.

When Burke succeeded George King as AD on Jan. 1, 1993, Purdue had a solid reputation for playing hard and playing by the rules. Burke pledged to build on the foundation already in place. Working with coaches and staff, aggressive goals were set.

On the athletics side, Burke's expectation was to improve the position of Purdue teams in the Big Ten and nationally. During his tenure, squads have made significant strides by both measures. In 2003-04 and 2006-07, 13 teams placed in the upper half of the Big Ten, a record number in Burke's time at Purdue. That figure compares with six squads in the upper half of the conference standings in 1992-93. On the national scene, the Boilermakers have gone from 81st in 1994-95 to 35th in 2005-06 and 2006-07 among 300 NCAA Division I programs.

Similar excellence was expected in the classroom: To match or surpass the overall grade-point average of the general student body. That goal has been achieved each of the last 18 semesters. Following the 2007 spring semester, the cumulative GPA for all current Purdue student-athletes was a record 2.98. In addition, the four-year average graduation rate has risen to 72 percent.

Burke and his staff have set a high standard for the future. As a rallying point on the road to preeminence, administrators coined the term "25/75 Club" to articulate a vision of an intercollegiate athletics organization that achieves an average finish in the top 25 across all sports and graduates 75 percent of student-athletes. Precious few institutions achieve this lofty status. They are Duke, North Carolina, Notre Dame, Penn State and Stanford.

Regular upgrades of competition and practice venues are vital to attracting and retaining top student-athlete and coaching talent, and that is why Burke and his staff have identified and addressed a number of facility priorities since the start of the new millennium. On the horizon for the Boilermakers is an $82 million project centering around Mackey Arena as well as a new baseball stadium, softball stadium and track and field complex on the west side of campus, completing an athletic complex that already features Purdue's Varsity Soccer Complex and the Schwartz Tennis Center.

Burke, 56, is married to the former Catherine J. (Kate) Mullane, a Purdue alumna and pharmacist. They have three children: Joyce, Morgan Jr. and Patrick. Joyce is a Purdue alumna working as a materials engineer; she and her husband, Ryan, reside in Austin, Texas. Morgan Jr., a Purdue graduate, is a landscape architect and works with a firm in San Francisco. Patrick is attending Purdue in the College of Engineering.
