The concept of reloading versus rebuilding will be put to the test as a new-look South Dakota State football team takes to the field during the upcoming 2025 season.

In addition to a new coaching staff, the Jackrabbits will field a revamped roster featuring 64 players who were not on the squad a year ago. How quickly all these new charges can jell will likely play a big role in whether SDSU can remain among the elite programs in the Football Championship Subdivision as the Jackrabbits' postseason résumé includes 13 playoff appearances in a row, reaching at least the FCS semifinals in seven of the last eight seasons and winning consecutive national championships in 2022 and 2023.

"I think we're right where we need to be," said first-year head coach Dan Jackson, who previously served as an assistant with the Jackrabbits from 2012-19 before making other coaching stops at Northern Illinois (2020-21), Vanderbilt (2022-23) and Idaho (2024). "I feel really good about it. We've stuck to a process — getting here in January was about player retention and relationships, and then at the same time building a staff."

In returning to Brookings, Jackson was also able to lure all three of his coordinators back to the Jackrabbit fold as Eric Eidsness will direct the SDSU offense for the third time in his long coaching career, Brian Bergstrom returns to oversee the defense following a two-year stint as head coach at Winona State (Minn.) and former player Isaiah Jackson will lead the special teams units. A group of up-and-coming coaches round out Jackson's first staff.

"I think we have the best staff in the country — it's the chemistry between the coaches, it's the connection that they're able to build with the players and it's their ability to teach and let the players reach their potential and play fast," Jackson said. "We have the perfect assemblage of coaches from guys who understood South Dakota State and the culture and how we do things, and then some new ideas and some fresh blood from the outside."

Through his first seven months on the job, Jackson said the process of putting together the 2025 edition of the Jackrabbits has been both challenging and rewarding, especially as SDSU extensively navigated through both sides of the transfer portal for the first time.

"The players have bought into the family and the culture that is South Dakota State football," Jackson said. "Whether it's a true freshman or a transfer, it feels like they've been here for their entire careers. I attribute that to our players who stayed and that have been here, that understood the culture, and they're doing a really good job from a leadership standpoint driving us forward. I think we're in great shape — we're healthy and confident going into fall camp."

Despite having a total of only five starters returning from last year's team that posted a 12-3 overall record and won a share of its third consecutive Missouri Valley Football Conference title, Jackson said he was encouraged by what he saw during team practices in the spring.

Chase Mason is expected to move into the starting quarterback role for South Dakota State. Mason saw most of his action over the past two seasons in rushing packages, but will look to further showcase his passing skills this fall.

The combination of fresh faces and returning players vying for expanded roles made for a competitive environment.

"From a personnel standpoint, in the spring we were able to get a ton accomplished, but it was all about the fundamentals, the basics," Jackson said.

The work to incorporate a second group of transfers and a large crop of incoming freshmen will be a focus throughout the month of August.

"We're still in a period in fall camp where we still evaluating who are your top players, who are going to be the guys that are making plays for you on Saturdays," Jackson continued. "It's one thing to be big and fast and strong in the weight room and know what's going on in the meeting room, but who can take that and translate that on the field and who can do that consistently. And then it's going to be about the timing and execution of all three phases."

Following is a more in-depth look at the Jackrabbit football team by position group.

OFFENSIVE LINE

The Jackrabbits' foundation on offense throughout their successful run has been controlling play at the point of attack. With two starters returning to that unit, SDSU will look to continue to be the catalyst for an offense that rushed for 236.1 yards per game and allowed only eight sacks all season a year ago.

"To be a great offensive line, you need to have eight or nine guys that you consider starter-caliber players," Jackson said. "I believe we're working toward that."

The Jackrabbits have both bookends on the line returning as senior Sam Hagen at right tackle and Quentin Christensen at left tackle are both back for their second seasons in the starting lineup. Hagen made 12 starts a season ago while Christensen held down the starting spot at left tackle in all 15 games in 2024.

Strong play at center has been a staple for the Jackrabbits, highlighted in recent years by a pair of FCS Rimington Award winners in Jacob Ohnesorge (2017) and Gus Miller (2023). Redshirt freshman Shane Willenbring will be counted on to move into that role this season after getting some limited game reps at the center position a year ago.

At the guard spots, sophomore Will Paepke and senior transfer Nate Adams are tabbed as the early favorites for starting roles, but are expected to be pushed by sophomore Kenyon BigBow, transfer John Pica and a group of youngsters who have previously spent some time in the program.

QUARTERBACK

After two years serving as an understudy to 2023 Walter Payton Award winner Mark Gronowski, Chase Mason is expected to take the reins at quarterback for the Jackrabbits. Mason helped bolster the rushing attack by gaining 464 yards with six touchdowns in 2024, but will attempt to further showcase his passing skills after completing 17-of-26 passes for 133 yards and two scores a year ago.

"Chase is just an authentic, genuine person who has the ability to lead the team by just being himself. He's a presence out there and is probably one of the most gifted athletes to ever play in our program, but I don't want that to take away from his ability to lead and connect with his teammates," Jackson said. "If he continues his growth from spring, the path he was on and the trajectory he was on, if he continues that this fall, my expectation is that he will have a special season."

SEASON PREVIEW

Who will emerge as the primary backup to Mason likely won't be determined until late in fall camp. Senior Jon Bell is the only other quarterback on the roster who has attempted a collegiate pass, completing 7-of-14 attempts for 96 yards and a touchdown last season, while the other players in the position group are either redshirt freshmen (Jack Henry, Luke Marble, Jack Thue) or a true freshman (Preston Otter).

"Our quarterback room has changed a lot since January when we got here," Jackson said. "The names and faces have changed a little bit, but also the guys that were here have changed the type of player they are."

WIDE RECEIVER

Whoever Mason — or another Jackrabbit quarterback — throws the ball to, he will have a variety of options at his disposal.

Senior Graham Goering is the top returning target after recording 25 receptions for 360 yards and five touchdowns a season ago.

Also returning is sophomore Lofton O'Groske, who saw his role increase as his true freshman campaign progressed in 2024. O'Groske ended the year with 15 catches for 212 yards and one touchdown.

Other returners at wide receiver include senior Elijah Ervin (2 receptions for 13 yards in 2024) and redshirt freshman Jack Smith.

A group of transfers that includes Nebraska transfers Luke Bullock and Isaiah Garcia-Castaneda will be counted on to further bolster the position. Garcia-Castaneda has more than 100 collegiate catches to his name, while Bullock ranked third for the Cornhuskers with 15 receptions in 2023.

True freshman Landon Dulaney, who Jackson touts as the fastest player on the team, also is line to make some meaningful contributions in 2025.

Quentin Christensen started all 15 games at left tackle a season ago and is one of three returning starters on offense for the Jackrabbits.

"Our receiver room is really talented," Jackson said. "Coach (Luke) Bengtson really does a really good job of getting the most out of his players."

TIGHT END

Another staple of the Jackrabbit offense over the years has been strong play at the tight end position. Once again, Jackson expects SDSU to lean on that group of players in a variety of roles, whether as receivers or blockers.

"We've got a good mix of older, veteran players with some young, really talented players," Jackson said. "Using those guys strategically has always been a key to our offense and that's just going to continue to be something we focus on and highlight."

Returning players at the tight end position include juniors Greyton Gannon and David Alpers. Gannon's 2024 season was temporarily interrupted by injury, but he managed to register nine receptions for 113 yards and a touchdown, while Alpers also tallied nine catches for 164 yards and a score.

Transfers Coleman Kuntz (Sacramento State) and Jalyn Thompson (Iowa) are expected to play key roles and redshirt freshman Brayden Delahoyde possesses the tools to be a notable contributor this season.

RUNNING BACK

Likely the least experienced position group on offense, the Jackrabbits' running backs will be a group made up mostly of newcomers.

Leading that group of new faces is transfer Julius Loughridge, who previously found success at the FCS level while playing at Fordham. A Houston, Texas, native, Loughridge has 15 career 100-yard games to his credit and turned in back-to-back 1,000-yard seasons in 2023 and 2024. His career totals include more than 3,000 rushing yards and 26 rushing touchdowns.

Redshirt freshman Quinton Renfro put together a strong spring season, according to Jackson, and is poised for a bigger role in 2025, as is sophomore Brenden Begeman (83 rushing yards, 1 TD in 2024).

Incoming freshmen Josiah Johnson and Joshua Myers also could be counted on as options to carry the football this season.

"I think we have some depth there, too, with guys who can do a little bit of everything," Jackson said.

DEFENSIVE LINE

Moving to the defensive side of the ball, the Jackrabbits feature only one regular starter from a year ago — defensive lineman Kobe Clayborne. In his first season at SDSU, Clayborne demonstrated the ability to play at either defensive end or defensive tackle and earned spots on the Missouri Valley Football Conference All-Newcomer and Stats Perform Preseason All-America squads after tying for the team lead with 4.5 sacks while registering a total of 34 tackles.

Quality depth along the defensive line has been key to the Jackrabbits' consistently ranking among the FCS leaders in both scoring defense and rushing defense in recent seasons and SDSU again has a number of experienced players returning although not yet in a starting role.

At defensive tackle, junior Logan Green and senior Aaron Wolfcale-Holsten both return. Wolfcale-Holsten was a productive member of a regular rotation, notching three tackles for loss and 2.5 sacks among his 14 total tackles, while Green contributed three tackles for loss and a sack while recording 14 total tackles.

Transfers Mason Brosseau and Brody Targgart also will vie to be a part of the rotation at defensive tackle, along with redshirt Mac Muller.

At defensive end, Dawson Ripperda and Reis Kirschenman are the front runners to fill starting roles. Ripperda was credited with 23 tackles last year, including 2.5 sacks and 5.5 tackles for loss. Kirschenman, meanwhile, made the most of his limited opportunities by tallying six tackles for loss and 2.5 sacks among his 10 total tackles.

Other candidates likely to see extensive action at defensive end include transfer Kevin Spelman and redshirt freshman Blake Leiferman.

LINEBACKER

A group of players who have been waiting in the wings the last couple seasons are in line for expanded roles in 2025.

Juniors Joe Ollman at Mike linebacker and Cullen McShane at Will linebacker are the early candidates to fill two-thirds of the starting positions. Ollman came off the bench in all 15 games last season to notch 15 tackles, while McShane recorded 13 tackles as both a reserve linebacker and a key player on special teams.

Sophomore Chase Van Tol is tabbed as the favorite to start at Sam linebacker and is the team's top returning tackler after making 35 stops, including three tackles for loss, a year ago.

SEASON PREVIEW

Other returning players at linebacker include juniors Bryce Johnson (6 tackles, 1 pass breakup) and Kytan Fyfe (1 tackle, 1 forced fumble). Transfers Ernest Blackshire Jr. and Matt Goehring are leading candidates for a reserve role, as well as incoming freshman Casey Larson. Blackshire also has the ability to play safety or in nickel packages.

"I think we have six, seven guys that will be able to play at a high level and that are eager for the opportunity to be the guy," Jackson said.

DEFENSIVE BACK

The Jackrabbit secondary also will have a new look in 2025.

At cornerback, a mix of transfers and returning players with small amounts of playing experience will compete for starting roles. The transfers consist of Jayden Oliver (Buffalo), Jamari Holliman (Florida International) and Isaiah Johnson (Bemidji State), while the returners include Aydan Dautermann (16 tackles, 2 pass breakups in 2024), Myles Taylor (7 tackles) and Noah St-Juste.

Returning at safety are Dontay Johnson (10 tackles, 2 pass breakups) and Noah Thompson (8 tackles, 1 pass breakup), while Jalen Lee is moving to safety after recording 14 tackles as a cornerback a season ago. Redshirt freshman Max Stanard is another candidate for playing time in the Jackrabbit secondary.

Transfers likely to factor into the rotation at safety are Koby Bretz (Nebraska) and Jason Thome (Colorado Mesa).

"That whole room is going to be extremely competitive," Jackson said, noting that many of the players in the secondary will also likely find themselves filling key roles on special team units.

SPECIALISTS

Preseason All-America long snapper Kaydon Olivia leads the Jackrabbit specialists. A senior from Schertz, Texas, Olivia played a key role in SDSU ranking among the top teams for net punting in each of his first two seasons with the program, as well as fielding a consistent kicking game.

Max Pelham is the early favorite to handle the bulk of the punting duties, although Central Florida transfer Kevin Carrigan Jr. could be called upon for double duty for both placekicking and punting. Sioux Falls native Anthony Erickson also has shown promise at kicker after joining the team during the spring season.

Entering fall camp, there are no clear-cut favorites for who will take on kick and punt return duties, although Garcia-Castaneda previously filled a punt return role at Nebraska.

"That's one of the questions we have to get answered," Jackson said. "We'll be dynamic back there, but that will be a competition throughout fall camp that we have to get nailed down."

SCHEDULE

The Jackrabbits bring a 29-game home winning streak into the Aug. 30 season opener against Sacramento State at Dana J. Dykhous Stadium.

SDSU last lost a home game on Oct. 23, 2021, when it dropped a 26-17 decision to Northern Iowa.

SDSU faces a second Big Sky Conference opponent when it travels to 2024 national runner-up Montana State on Sept. 6. Over the last decade, the series between the Jackrabbits and Bobcats, which includes three meetings in the FCS playoffs, has developed into a heated rivalry and will likely again feature both squads in the top 10 of the national polls.

The Jackrabbits close out the nonconference portion of their schedule with home games against 2024 playoff qualifier Drake on Sept. 13 and FCS newcomer Mercyhurst on Sept. 27.

Picked second in the conference preseason poll, SDSU begins pursuit of a fourth consecutive Missouri Valley Football Conference title Oct. 4 at Youngstown State.

The first home league action is Oct. 11 versus Northern Iowa, with other contests at Dana J. Dykhous Stadium consisting of matchups versus North Dakota State (Oct. 25), Indiana State (Nov. 1) and Illinois State (Nov. 15).

The remainder of the road slate in league play includes trips to Murray State (Oct. 18), South Dakota (Nov. 8) and North Dakota (Nov. 22).

Rivalry games against North Dakota State and South Dakota are once again slated for national television broadcasts on the ESPN family of networks.

Lofton O'Groske will be counted on for an expanded role at wide receiver after contributing as a true freshman in 2024.

Chase Van Tol is the team's leading returning tackler after making 35 stops, including three for loss, in 14 games during the 2024 campaign.

Kobe Clayborne is the lone returning starter on defense for the Jackrabbits and has the ability to play either at defensive end or defensive tackle.
