Welcome to the 2026 St. Edward's volleyball season!

As we begin our second year together, our program is excited to build on the progress and relationships established last season.

Our student-athletes have embraced the work, accountability and togetherness required to represent SEU, and we look forward to continuing that growth on and off the court.

To our parents, alumnae and program supporters: thank you for the time, energy and encouragement you invest in Hilltopper Volleyball. Your support is an important part of the experience we are building for our student-athletes.

We are grateful to have you with us and cannot wait to see what we accomplish together this season.

Toppers Up!

Jeremy Garcia arrived on the Hilltop in the spring of 2025, bringing experience from three NCAA Division I Power Four volleyball programs at Texas, Penn State, and Duke, with a reputation for player development, recruiting, and creating elite student-athlete experiences.

Drawing from his background in performance analysis, technology, recruiting, and operations, Garcia immediately modernized the Hilltoppers' approach to training, preparation, and player development.

In his first season, St. Edward's increased its conference win total by six matches while producing all-conference selections Kelli Fording, Mia Clay, and Althea Morris. The rapid development of returning players continued a trend established throughout Garcia's previous collegiate stops.

At Duke, Garcia worked closely with middle blockers, helping graduate student Jess Robinson earn AVCA All-East Coast Region and All-ACC honors. During his time at Penn State, he worked extensively with setters and defensive specialists, helping produce five Big Ten Setter of the Week awards and AVCA All-Northeast Region recognition within those position groups.

Garcia's recruiting efforts helped Duke secure multiple nationally ranked recruiting classes, including a top-10 class in his final season as recruiting coordinator.

A native Austinite, Garcia brings deep ties to one of the nation's premier volleyball regions. Raised around the University of Texas volleyball program, where his mother worked with the Longhorns, Garcia developed a passion for the sport while learning from some of the nation's most respected coaches.

He earned his Bachelor of Business Administration from the McCombs School of Business in 2020 while serving as a student manager, practice player, and volunteer assistant for nationally ranked Texas teams.

Those experiences have helped Garcia build relationships throughout the Central Texas volleyball community, including connections with Austin Juniors Volleyball and Austin's professional LOVB franchise.

Garcia has also enjoyed significant success in the club ranks. During three seasons coaching boys and girls national teams with Austin Juniors Volleyball, every national-level team he coached earned a bid to the USA Volleyball Junior National Championships, including three Open Division qualifications, a bronze medal finish, and two top-five national finishes.

2025 SEASON REVIEW

2025 SEASON RECAP

Built on Buy-In: Inside St. Edward's Volleyball's First Season Under Head Coach Jeremy Garcia

AUSTIN, Texas — On the final play of the season, the ball found Addy Badley one last time, and for a moment, the entire year crystallized into a single swing.

Senior Day was already layered with emotion. Family and friends packed the stands for the season's finale, there to see Badley and Jordan Chapman in the huddle one last time. Teammates lingered a beat longer between points, soaking in the details.

And when Badley rose to deliver the win, it wasn't just a point. It was punctuation. It was an answer.

When first-year head coach Jeremy Garcia arrived on the Hilltop last February, he posed a question he returned to throughout the season: What do you want from your time at St. Edward's?

"Our priority was making this experience one they looked forward to returning to every semester and celebrating beyond graduation," Garcia said. "We let them know we cared about them and were invested in their success, but that also requires buy-in. Are you showing up? Do you want to be here? If the answer is yes, then this is what we need from you."

The fall began with uncertainty, still carrying the weight of the previous season. St. Edward's entered the Lone Star Conference preseason poll at No. 13, a ranking Garcia believed reflected more on last year's collapse — marked by a midseason coaching departure — than the potential of the roster.

Opening weekend reinforced the challenge. The Hilltoppers dropped a three-set match to Southwest Baptist, then were reverse-swept by Minnesota State-Moorhead, continuing a troubling trend from the year before: blown 2-0 leads and five-set losses.

"The five-set losses aren't an elephant in the room because we talk about it pretty openly," Garcia said.

"Not only did we lose, but we were up 2-0 and lost in five. It could've been a moment where they convinced themselves nothing had changed, but they didn't allow it."

St. Edward's responded the next day with a four-set win over East Central. Badley, who told Garcia she wanted her senior year to be about competing and winning, celebrated her birthday with 18 kills and delivered Garcia his first career coaching victory. Two weeks later, the Hilltoppers swept their home-opening weekend with wins over UT Dallas and Cameron, extending the momentum to a three-match winning streak.

The first home win, played in front of family and a supportive crowd, made the program's ideals tangible.

"Whenever you compete in a jersey with a school's name on it, there are going to be people in the stands expecting something from you," Garcia told his team. "There are family members who've invested time and money into your journey. There are friends who want you to succeed. Those two wins brought everything we'd talked about into existence."

Those moments mattered, especially through the adversity that followed. St. Edward's dropped its first five conference matches, including contests against three of the top five seeds in the LSC Tournament.

"For every program, once you get into mid-October, something happens," Garcia said. "People get frustrated, things go awry — it's human nature. But even when things were down, this group still brought energy to the gym. There was a desire to show up prepared to improve every day. That was the biggest switch."

The season reached a crossroads after two home losses in October. Next on the schedule was Texas A&M-Kingsville, which had opened conference play 5-0 and was coming off an upset of No. 10 West Texas A&M. St. Edward's altered its routine, traveling the morning of the match instead of the day before to allow for an extra day of preparation.

Even with a strong week of practice, Garcia and his staff weren't sure what to expect.

The Hilltoppers dominated.

"We won in four sets and controlled the entire match," Garcia said. "Even when we dropped a set, there was never a moment they weren't confident they'd win the next point, the next set, the match. During timeouts, the players were driving the bus. As a coach, it was great to sit back and watch them realize how good they could be."

The night became a breakthrough for freshman and sophomore middles Grace McDonald and Carrington Jaimes, who delivered career performances in a season defined by selflessness.

"For them, it was about understanding their roles," Garcia said. "We're not the biggest team, so success comes from pin-to-pin offense. We asked them to focus on blocking, getting touches, and transitioning hard. It's tough to commit to the details when you're not getting as many swings, especially as a young player. But they bought in."

St. Edward's avoided a trap match the next day at Texas A&M International, and sophomore setter Althea Morris earned LSC Setter of the Week for orchestrating the offense. In her second season, the team captain grew into a steady, influential leader.

"She's a quiet leader who leads by example," Garcia said. "Her growth was realizing that when she speaks, people listen. We changed the offense to something she hadn't run in a while, and each week she took more command and made it hers."

Kelli Fording emerged as one of the conference leaders in kills and kills per set, pairing a powerful arm with improved shot selection to earn All-LSC Second Team honors.

“She hits the ball hard, but that’s not always enough when teams put two or three in front of her,” Garcia said. “Her growth came from taking pace off and controlling the ball. That’s why the conference recognized her.”

After losing her starting role for several weeks, Mia Clay surged late in the season, providing balance to the attack and earning All-LSC Honorable Mention after moving seamlessly from the bench into six rotations when needed.

In the back row, sophomore libero Giselle Ojeda unlocked the league-best potential Garcia and assistant coach Taylan Cook believed she possessed, anchoring a deep defensive unit alongside Bea Angeles, Brenna Heffron, and Delaney Gregory. “We had some emotional conversations with Giselle,” Garcia said. “She’s her own harshest critic. Our message was to fly around and be the libero she wants to be, because she’s good enough. Once she believed it, you could see her demand more of herself and her teammates. When we were successful, it was because the back row was playing well.”

St. Edward’s didn’t transform into a powerhouse. This isn’t a storybook ending. It’s not an ending at all. But the Hilltoppers answered every setback with a response, every loss with a win. They closed the season winning five of their final seven matches, including three straight to finish the year.

They played with purpose, fighting for a final LSC Tournament spot. When those hopes ended before the final weekend, they played for something else: each other.

“They played for Addy and Jordan, two teammates who gave everything to this program,” Garcia said. “And it was about carrying momentum forward. An 8–9 record is a much better conversation than 6–11, and they responded by playing at a high level.”

When asked what she wanted from her final year at St. Edward’s, Badley said she wanted to compete and win. Her final swing is something that will last long past graduation — not as the end of a career, but as the opening line of a new era of St. Edward’s volleyball.

Fording, Morris, and Clay Earn All-LSC Honors

The Lone Star Conference announced its 2025 Volleyball All-Conference Team on Thursday, recognizing St. Edward's standouts Kelli Fording, Mia Clay and Althea Morris for their postseason performances.

Fording earned All-LSC Second Team, capping a breakout junior campaign in which she led the Hilltoppers with 247 kills and ranked seventh in the conference at 3.43 kills per set. She also finished seventh in aces per set (0.39), added 18 block assists and five solo blocks, and closed the year fourth in the LSC in points per set at 4.01.

"The jump Kelli made this season is a testament to the work she started putting in last spring, kept it going in the summer, and showed up in August with a vengeance," head coach Jeremy Garcia said. "To be one of the best point scorers in a league as deep as the LSC, we are so proud Kelli is on our team."

Morris was named All-LSC Honorable Mention for the second straight year after steering the Hilltoppers' 5-1 offense. The sophomore setter from Los Angeles finished third in the conference in total assists (781) and assists per set (10.01). She also delivered 33 service aces—ranking fifth in the league—and produced 178 digs, second-most on the team.

"We believe Thea is one of the premier setters in our league, being one of the few who run a 5-1 offense," Garcia said. "Taking the reins of a new system, she was quick to buy in and execute. What makes Thea even more special is how she contributes across all phases of the game—being one of our best point scorers from the service line and one of our most consistent defenders."

Clay followed her All-LSC Freshman Team debut with All-LSC Honorable Mention recognition as a sophomore. She ranked third on the team with 165 kills, averaging 2.50 per set on a .236 hitting percentage, and closed her season on a surge—posting double-digit kills in six of her final nine matches, including a career-high 21 in the regular-season finale.

"Mia's growth, both on and off the court, has allowed her to continue to excel as one of the best young pin attackers in our league," Garcia said. "As our season progressed, she proved match by match that she belongs on the court as someone we can count on to not only score points, but do so efficiently."

Together, the trio anchored a Hilltoppers lineup that continued to build around young core contributors across every phase of the game.
