HEAD COACH COREY WILLIAMS

Slowly but surely, Corey Williams is building something special in DeLand.

Williams has been deliberate in his quest to turn the Hatters into a winner. He hasn't gone for the quick fix. He is building a program, not just a team. And that program is on the verge.

At the end of the 2015-16 season, Williams' efforts finally began to pay off. The Hatters closed the regular season with a thrilling 80-73 win over conference foe FGCU, then steamrolled their way to a pair of Atlantic Sun Conference Tournament victories to reach the tournament finals for the first time since 1994.

With a championship on the line, Williams guided a senior-less roster to within a basket of winning the title as the Hatters lost 80-78 in overtime at FGCU. Despite the defeat, Williams and the Hatters served notice that the rebuild is nearing completion.

As he enters his fourth season at Stetson, Williams has assembled his most talented and experienced team. Williams knows something about talent and experience. With an NBA championship and nine NCAA Tournaments as both a player and coach on his resume, he knows what it takes to be a winner.

Williams was named the 21st head coach in program history on June 3, 2013 – less than 10 weeks before the start of the school year.

A native of Macon, Ga., Williams played point guard at Oklahoma State. He had a lengthy career as a professional player, spending his rookie season in the NBA with the Chicago Bulls where he was a part of the 1993 NBA Championship team, before starting his coaching career.

Prior to taking the reins at Stetson, Williams spent six seasons as an assistant at Florida State. His career with the Seminoles coincided with the team's winningest five-year period, beginning in 2007-08. During this time the team won its first ACC Championship, enjoyed a school-record run of four straight NCAA Tournament appearances, four consecutive years of double digit wins in ACC play, produced five NBA Draft picks, recorded 16 wins over nationally ranked teams and appeared in the national rankings in four straight seasons.

Before joining the Florida State staff, Williams was an assistant coach for seven seasons at Oral Roberts where he aided the Golden Eagles in achieving an average of 18 wins per season, including 20 or more wins in each of his last three seasons in Tulsa. ORU captured the Mid-Continent Conference regular season and tournament titles in 2006 and 2007, advancing to play in the NCAA Tournament each season. The 2006-07 squad not only finished with a 23-11 record, but the Golden Eagles also stunned the college basketball world when they defeated then-No. 3 Kansas, 78-71, in an early-season game at legendary Allen Fieldhouse.

Williams played collegiately at Oklahoma State from 1989-1992. He finished his career eighth on OSU's career scoring charts with 1,320 points. During his collegiate playing career he helped lead the Cowboys to consecutive NCAA Tournament Sweet 16 appearances under Coach Eddie Sutton in 1991 and 1992. The Cowboys were ranked 14th in the final Associated Press poll of the 1991 season and 10th in the final coaches' poll following the 1992 season. With Williams in Oklahoma State's line-up for 128 games during his four-year varsity career, the Cowboys ranked as one of the top teams statistically in the nation.

Following the conclusion of his collegiate career, Williams was a 2nd-round draft pick of the Chicago Bulls, but that wasn't his only professional opportunity. Despite having not played football since junior high, the Kansas City Chiefs selected Williams in the 12th round of the 1992 NFL Draft. He was the only OSU Cowboy drafted that year.

Williams, 46, earned his bachelor's degree in education from Oklahoma State in 2002. He and his wife, Nicole, have two children: Jourdan (17) and Corey, Jr. (13).

STETSON'S DIVINE MIRACLE

Divine Miracle Myles is his given name, and he most certainly earned it.

He earned it because he wasn't supposed to live. His mother's pregnancy was wrought with complications. Doctors were so certain he was going to be stillborn they almost threw him away after he was delivered. But the Stetson freshman – and a higher power – had other ideas.

Myles' mother, Tonya, was 20 years old when she was pregnant with Divine. It was a difficult pregnancy, and Tonya was told by her physicians her son would likely be stillborn. Their tests indicated she wouldn't carry him to full term. They said Divine didn't have a nose or a mouth, that his eyes, lungs and heart weren't developed. Doctors also cautioned that if he survived, he would be mentally retarded, without any motor skills of any kind, and he would be dependent upon his family for the rest of his life.

On Feb. 25, 1996, at just 24 weeks, Tonya went into labor. Divine was delivered via C-section and when he was removed from his mother's womb, Divine stunned them all.

"On the day I was born I was still in the amniotic sac and they were about to dispose of me," said Myles. "But God intervened and I kicked the bag open and began crying and screaming. When I was born I was whole. I was a healthy baby."

Shocked at what they were seeing, nurses immediately asked the doctor to place a breathing tube in the newborn. But the delivery doctor resisted and instead told nurses to check Divine's Apgar score, a procedure used to assess the health of a newborn child. Divine tested at the top of the chart.

Despite what his family called a miracle birth, doctors believed Divine still had a long road of recovery ahead of him. They insisted he be placed into a series of courses and classes designed to stimulate him both physically and mentally. For three years, Divine attended those classes until his mother decided he didn't need them anymore.

"I was 2 or 3 years old when I was in those classes, and I was ahead of all of the other kids," he said. "The doctors kept telling her I needed to go to the classes. But my mom said I was fine and she stopped taking me. She continued to work with me at home. The only effect I've had from any of this is that I had stiff bones as a child but I grew out of that."

It isn't hard to imagine that the series of events immediately before and after his birth have had a profound impact on Divine. A deeply religious young man, Divine believes the faith that he and his family hold so dear had a lot to do with not only his initial survival, but how he's thrived as well.

"We talk about it a lot because it's a big testimony in my life," he said. "My mom reminds me every so often how blessed I am, and that God has a purpose for me and has great things in store for me. That's why my middle name is Miracle. No man on Earth could get me through this. It was all God."

Myles went on to lead a perfectly normal childhood and developed into one of Alabama's top prep players at Blount High School, helping lead the Leopards to a 27-4 record and runner-up finish in the 2014 Alabama 6A state tournament. In two seasons with the Hatters, Myles has started all but one game. This season he is among A-Sun leaders in scoring, assists, steals and field-goal percentage.

And while every student-athlete has their share of challenges, Myles isn't likely to be fazed by a hostile crowd or a larger opponent. He's already faced down the biggest challenge of his life... and it's a Miracle he came out on top.
