

SUSQUEHANNA SWIMMING & DIVING HISTORY (EVENTS)

From the beginning, Susquehanna Swimming & Diving has revolved around respect, hard work, and doing your best – in the pool, in the classroom, and in the community. Soon after setting foot on the deck, one learns that this group is much more than team; it is a family whose pride runs strong and deep across the generations. As the people before us have paved the way, how will you contribute to our valued history? What footprint will you leave behind?

1977-1978: The “Susquehanna Swim Club” held its first official practice. While continually searching for a coach, the team was initially run by student-swimmers John Stahl ‘81, Charles Zlock ‘80, Judy Rile ‘78, and Peter Rile ‘81 with help from Karl Reuther ‘80. Charles Zlock approached Psychology Professor Ged Schweikert to coach the already organized team. Ged’s reply was “You know, I’ve been waiting for someone to ask me that question for years!” A meet schedule was arranged featuring the York Relays, Lycoming, Kings, Wilkes, Gettysburg, and conference championship. After a panic concerning swimming the very dominant Gettysburg team, Ged set the tone for the team for years to come by stating “It’s good to go up against the best. Then you know how good you really are and how far you have yet to go.”

Two days after serving as the starter for the first intercollegiate meet held at Susquehanna (against Bloomsburg University), Richard A. Reiland suddenly died on February 3, 1978. The Reiland Awards for most valuable and most improved swimmers were established in his honor.

The inaugural team picture was featured in the 1978 Lanthorn. The team consisted of 17 members (including one diver and three managers).

1979-1980: First season as a varsity sport
Women finish 7th and men finish 10th at the Middle Atlantic Championship meet.

1980-1981: Women improve to a 6th place finish at MACs. The men finish 10th.
The legend of “the duck” = John D. Christenson ‘81 introduced their mascot, Commander Douglass C. Drake, to the team during a practice. A tradition began as JC would warm up for meets with the Commander attached to his ankle with a string of fishing line. During the first session at MACs, JC and the Commander were warming up as usual when a stern-looking league official approached Coach Schweikert to register a complaint. Ged immediately apologized for the duo. The official commented “The swimmer is fine but the duck needs to touch the wall on the turn!” The eye of the duck...

Adopting a University of Tennessee swimming tradition, co-captain John Stahl '81 would fill a bottle with SU's pool water and bring it to away meets. Prior to the start of the meet, John would ceremoniously mount the opposing team's diving board and pour the SU water into the pool officially declaring it a Susquehanna University "home meet".
