CONFERENCE NEWS & NOTES

The conference season officially kicks off in Week 5 with all teams in action, including a Thursday night matchup. In the nine-game league schedule, every team will play each other. Seven teams will play five of the nine games away from home in road or neutral site contests.

The opening week of conference play will serve as the 2016-17 debut of the Big 12's Champions for Life initiative, which is in its second year. Conference PSAs during Week 5 games will feature the inspiring stories of current and former student-athletes.

The Big 12 wrapped up regular season non-conference play with wins in all four games last week. Thirty percent of the non-conference slate was against autonomy league opponents. Only one other conference played a higher percentage. Additionally, half of the games were against 2015 bowl teams, including five opponents that competed in CFP New Year's Bowls, the second-most of the peer leagues.

In non-conference games, Big 12 defenses allowed 373.47 yards a game and 5.20 yards per play. The average yards allowed is just 45.59 more than the ACC (327.88), which leads the autonomy conferences, while the yards per play is only 0.31 above the ACC's (4.89) autonomy-leading average.

Offensively in non-conference games, the Big 12 leads the peer leagues in yards per game (491.97) and yards per play (6.55).

The Big 12 also tops the autonomy leagues in the non-conference differential in yards gained per play (6.55) against yards allowed per play (5.20) at 1.35 and is second in yards gained per game (491.97) against yards allowed per game (373.47) at 118.5.

Five Big 12 teams are in the top 22 nationally in total offense - 2. Texas Tech (678.7), 4. TCU (576.0), 8. Baylor (548.8), 13. West Virginia (533.0) and 22. Texas (500.3).

K-State leads the country in total defense (179.0) and is tied for fifth in scoring defense (11.0 ppg). The Wildcats have yet to allow an opponent to reach the 300-yard mark in total offense, including at currently-ranked No. 7/6 Stanford in the season-opener.

BIG 12 CHAMPIONS FOR LIFE

In the 2016-17 academic year, the Big 12 Champions for Life campaign features more than 150 student-athletes who will be profiled, sharing the story of how an athletic scholarship has changed his or her life for the better. Both current and former student-athletes are highlighted in the campaign that will run throughout the academic year. To learn more, visit Big12ChampionsforLife.com and follow the campaign on Twitter (@Big12Champ4Life) and Facebook (www.facebook.com/big12champ4life).
