Pat Mead

Anyone who follows the Towson University men's and women's swimming and diving teams on a regular basis knows that one of the main reasons for success is the leadership that Coach Pat Mead has provided over the last 11 years.

A three-time selection as the Colonial Athletic Association Coach of the Year, Mead has guided the Tiger women's program to 11 consecutive winning seasons and an 96-36 record. Meanwhile, the Tiger men have compiled a 65-61 mark under Mead's tutelage with eight winning seasons in the last 11 years.

Not only have the Tigers been successful in the pool during Mead's tenure, but they have also made successful progress out of the water. Both the men's and women's teams traditionally have excelled in the classroom during Mead's first 11 years. He has had two former swimmers named as recipients of Towson University's Doc Minnegan Scholarship Award while Tiger swimmers and divers are consistently recognized as members of the CAA Commissioner's List on a yearly basis.

In addition to the strong academic success, the Tiger women's team has used extra resources over the last two years to become one of the top mid-major programs in the country.

During the last two seasons, the added resources have produced some of the biggest results in Mead's tenure at Towson as the women's team has won the last two Colonial Athletic Association championships in convincing fashion. The team has won 24 of 26 dual meets during that time, including a school-record 13 victories last year.

In addition, junior Meredith Budner has developed into one of the top swimmers in the CAA. After earning CAA Rookie of the Year honors in 2007-08, she had the best individual season in school history last year when she qualified for the NCAA Championships in three individual events and became the first female swimmer in school history to earn All-America honors. She was also named as the CAA Female Swimmer of the Year and was honored as Towson's Female Athlete of the Year.

As a team, the Tiger women's squad has been quite successful as members of the CAA. In addition to their CAA championships, the Tigers finished second in the 2005 CAA meet and also had a third place showing at the 2006 meet. The Tiger men's team has also shown success since joining the Colonial Athletic Association for the 2001-02 season, recording a fourth place showing and three fifth place finishes.

In 2006-07, the Tiger women's team finished with a 9-3 dual meet record and earned a third place showing at the CAA Championship Meet. Meanwhile, the Tiger men's team posted a 6-5 record during the regular season and earned a sixth place finish at the CAA Meet. In addition, sophomore diver Bradley Bolin was named as the CAA Rookie Diver of the Year after finishing fifth in the one-meter diving event at the conference championships.

With a youthful squad four years ago, the Tiger women's team won 7 of 12 dual meets during the regular season and finished in seventh place at the CAA meet. Meanwhile, the men's team overcame adversity and finished in ninth place in the CAA meet, but displayed great improvement during the season.

The women's team, which went 8-2 in the regular season, turned in an impressive performance at the CAA Championships during the 2004-05 campaign with a second place finish. Led by Jen Irby, the Tigers broke seven meet records and took home 10 CAA titles. Irby, who was named as the Most Outstanding Swimmer of the CAA Championship Meet and the conference's Swimmer of the Year, captured the 50-free, the 100-free and the 100-fly all in record-setting fashion. She was also swam the anchor leg on the 200-free and 400-free relays which not only captured CAA titles but set new meet records in the process. The Tigers' 800-free and 200-medley relay teams returned to Towson as CAA champions and CAA record holders. Two other individuals captured titles as current senior Liz Lebherz won the 200-free while Aly Whittaker took the 100-breast-stroke.

Irby, who was also named as the CAA Scholar-Athlete, was the only female swimmer from the CAA to participate in the NCAA Championships. She placed 35th in the 50-free, 45th in the 100-fly and 56th in the 100-free.

In 2003-04, Mead helped the men's squad to one of its most successful seasons. After leading the Tiger men's team to a 9-2 record, Towson turned in an outstanding performance at the CAA Championship Meet. During the four-day event, the Tigers claimed five individual championships and two relay titles en route to a fifth place showing.

Aaron Krause was named as the CAA Championship's Most Outstanding Performer for the second straight year as he won individual titles in the 200-individual medley, the 100-backstroke and the 200-backstroke. He was also part of the Tigers' 400-medley relay team and the 800-free relay teams which finished first and broke the school records. The Tigers' 400-free relay team finished third and broke the school record while the 200-medley relay team took second place.

In 2002-03, the men's team posted a 10-3 record, which marked the program's best record since 1997-98. The season was highlighted by Towson's first swimmer to qualify for the NCAA Championships as Krause finished 23rd in the 100-backstroke and 25th in the 100-backstroke at nationals.

On the women's side, the Tigers also had a solid year as they posted an 8-6 record. In addition, the women's team made history as Irby won the CAA title in the 50-freestyle event and became Towson's first female NCAA qualifier.

Mead achieved a rare double in 2003 when Krause was named as the Most Outstanding Performer at the Men's Championship while Irby picked up the award at the Women's Championship. Irby was also honored as the CAA Scholar-Athlete for swimming while Krause was named as the CAA Swimmer of the Year.

In the Tigers' first year in the CAA in 2001-02, both teams ended their regular seasons with perfect home records and had identical 8-4 records. The men's team earned a surprising fifth place finish at the team's first appearance at the CAA Championships. Krause took first place in the 100-yard backstroke, the 200-yard backstroke, and the 200-yard freestyle. As a team, the men placed first in the 200-medley relay and the 400-medley relay.

The Tiger women finished sixth at the CAA Meet. Irby won the 50-free-style in her first college season and led the 200-free relay to a first place finish. She was honored as the CAA Rookie of the Year.

In 2000-01, the Tigers competed in AMERICA EAST for the final season. Towson made it a memorable final appearance as the men's team had a 9-2 record in dual meets and finished second at the conference championship, which marked the team's best finish in the league championship. Meanwhile, the women's team had a 10-1 record in dual meets and finished fourth in the conference.

Coach Mead came to Towson in 1998 to replace Hall of Fame Coach Ray Riordon. The founder of Tiger swimming, Riordon retired after 30 years as the head coach of the men's team. Riordon also spent ten seasons as the head coach of the women's program.

A native of Cherry Hill, N.J., Mead was named as the Tigers' head coach after spending seven years as a college coach.

A 1992 graduate of the University of Delaware, Mead was one of the most outstanding swimmers in Blue Hen history. He graduated from Delaware with four school records. He set UD records in the 100-backstroke and the 200-backstroke. He was also part of the Blue Hens' record-setting 200-medley relay team and the record-setting 400-medley relay team.

A three-year team captain, Mead was the East Coast Conference champion in the 200 backstroke and the 200 medley relay in 1989, helping the Blue Hens win the 1989 ECC championship. He also helped Delaware to a second place finish in the North Atlantic Conference (now AMERICA EAST) in 1992.

Honored as the winner of UD's James F. Baldwin Scholar-Athlete Award in 1992, Mead served as an assistant swimming coach at Springfield College from 1992 to 1994. He coached at Springfield while earning his Master's degree in Education with a concentration in athletics administration.

After spending two years at Springfield as an assistant coach, Mead earned his first head coaching position at Drew University. During his four years at Drew, he founded the men's and women's swimming programs and built the programs on solid foundations.

In three competitive seasons at Drew, he led the men's team to a 21-14 record while the women's squad had a 21-16 mark. The Ranger men's team finished third in the Middle Atlantic Conference in 1996 and 1997, its first two years in the league. The women's team was fourth in 1996 and fifth in 1997.

Mead coached 20 conference champions at Drew, including a two-time All American.

In 1998, Mead returned to his alma mater and spent one year as assistant coach. He helped the Blue Hen men's team win its second straight AMERICA EAST championship while the women's team finished fifth. Both the men's and women's teams compiled 6-4 records in dual meet competition.

Mead is just the second men's coach in the 32-year history of the program. He is also the seventh coach in Tiger women's swimming history.

Along with his coaching duties at Towson, Mead runs Tigerfish Aquatics, a USS team, with his wife and Tiger diving coach, Maureen Mead.

Pat and Maureen are the parents of four young children - Mallory, Elliott, Lilly and Daphne.

TIGER QUARTET NAMED TO CAA 25th ANNIVERSARY Team

Four of the greatest swimmers in school history, including Aaron Krause, '04, Jen Irby, '05, Liz Lebherz, '07 and junior Meredith Budner, have been named as members of the Colonial Athletic Association's 25th Anniversary Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving teams.

In conjunction with its 25th anniversary celebration, the CAA is selecting 25th Anniversary Teams in 21 sports. Each team consists of 25 honorees.

"It is a great honor to have these individuals recognized by the CAA," Towson Coach Pat Mead said. "We have only been part of the CAA for eight years, so having four swimmers honored is quite a tribute to their dedication and hard work."

A native of Linthicum, Md., Krause was a two-time CAA Swimmer of the Year and qualified for the NCAA Championships as a junior and senior. He also set five individual school records and three CAA marks in his career.

In his career, Krause won nine individual CAA titles and was part of four CAA champion relay teams.

A three-time CAA champion in the 100-yard and 200-yard backstroke events, Krause set the CAA record in both events as a junior. He won the 100-yard backstroke event with a time of 48.13 seconds while competing the 200-yard backstroke event in 1:45.44.

Krause also set the CAA record in the 200-yard freestyle as a senior, posting a time of 1:36.98 at the CAA Championships. He was a two-time CAA champion in the 200-yard freestyle while also winning the 200-yard individual medley as a senior. Krause also helped the Tigers win CAA titles in four different relay events during his career.

As a junior, Krause qualified for the NCAA Championships in the 100-yard and 200-yard backstroke events. He also qualified for the NCAA Championships in the 100-yard backstroke as a senior along with earning a spot in the 200-yard freestyle. Krause was also honored as Towson University's Male Athlete of the Year as a junior and senior.

"Aaron has had the greatest impact on our men's program in the last decade and maybe even in the history of the program," Coach Mead said. "His work ethic and understanding of what it took to be great set an example for our swimmers long after he graduated."

A native of Elkridge, Md., Irby set school records in three individual events and qualified for the NCAA Championships as a senior. Honored as the 2002 CAA Rookie of the Year and the 2005 CAA Swimmer of the Year, Irby holds the school records in the 50-yard freestyle (22.75), 100-yard freestyle (49.86) and 100-yard butterfly (55.11) events.

A two-time selection as the CAA Championships' Most Outstanding Performer, Irby won nine individual CAA titles. She was a four-time CAA champion in the 50-yard freestyle and she won the 100-yard butterfly three times. In addition, she was the 2004 and 2005 CAA champion in the 100-yard freestyle.

Liz Lebherz, '07

Irby was a member of four CAA champion relay teams as a senior as she led the Tigers to a second place finish in the CAA Championships. She helped the Tigers win the 200-yard free relay, 400-yard free relay, 800-yard free relay and 200-yard medley relay.

A three-time ECAC champion in her career, Irby was a two-time ECAC champion in the 50-yard freestyle and also won the 100-yard freestyle as a senior.

As a senior, Irby became the first Tiger female swimmer to qualify for the NCAA Championships in the 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle and 100-yard butterfly.

An outstanding student during her undergraduate years, Irby was a two-time selection as the CAA Women's Swimming Scholar-Athlete of the Year and was the co-recipient of the Towson University Tiger Athletic Fund Scholar-Athlete of the Year award in 2005.

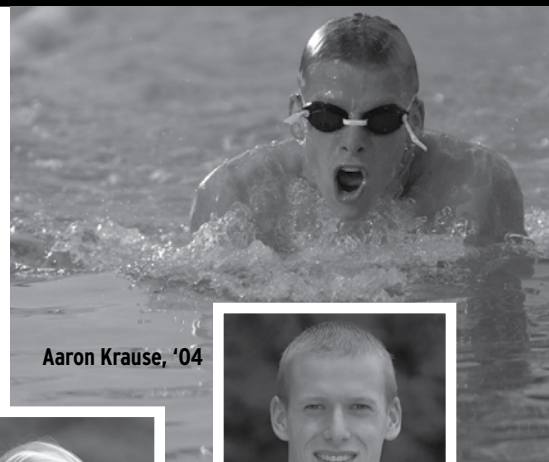

Irby was also honored as the Towson University Female Athlete of the Year as a senior.

"Jen is the best sprinter in the history of our women's program," Mead said. "She laid the foundation for our women's team's success and she has set the standard by which our current women are measured."

Lebherz was a four-time CAA individual champion and a member of six CAA champion relay teams. Named as the 2004 CAA Rookie of the Year, Lebherz holds the school record in the 200-yard freestyle (1:49.97) and is a member of the Tigers' school-record 400-yard freestyle relay team.

In 2004 and 2005, Lebherz won CAA titles in the 200-yard freestyle. As a junior and senior, she was the CAA champion in the 500-yard freestyle. In 2005, she helped the Tigers win CAA titles in the 200-yard freestyle relay, 400-yard freestyle relay and 800-yard freestyle relay.

As a freshman, Lebherz helped the Tigers win the 400-yard freestyle relay event at the CAA Championships. During her junior year, the Frederick, Md. native helped the Tigers to the CAA title in the 800-yard freestyle relay. In her senior year, Lebherz was a member of the Tigers' CAA champion 200-yard freestyle relay team.

Aaron Krause, '04

Meredith Budner

Jen Irby, '05

"Liz is truly one of our best success stories," Coach Mead said. "With little swimming background before attending Towson, she developed into one of our most well-rounded freestyle swimmers, ranking among the best in any freestyle event from the 50-free to the 1650-free. She continued the legacy that Jen created for our women's team."

A native of Rockville, Md., Budner has led the Tigers to CAA championships as a freshman and sophomore. Honored as the 2009 CAA Swimmer of the Year, Budner has won six individual CAA titles in the last two years. In addition, she qualified for the NCAA Championship in three different events as a sophomore.

Budner, who holds the CAA and school records in three individual events, became Towson's first-ever female swimmer to earn All-America honors when she was an honorable mention All-American in 2009 after placing 11th in the 1650-yard freestyle at the NCAA Championship Meet. She also qualified for the NCAA Meet in the 500-yard free and the 400-yard individual medley. In addition, she holds the school record in the 1000-yard freestyle (9:55.92) and is a member of the Tigers' record-setting 800-yard free relay team and 400-yard medley relay team (3:45.71).

"Meredith is another Cinderella story for our swim program," said Mead. "She has had great success in her first two years at Towson. The future looks very bright and the opportunities are endless for her. Our hope is that she will learn from her predecessors and leave a legacy that other generations of swimmers can look to improve upon."

Q: The Tiger women's team was able to win its second straight Colonial Athletic Association title last year despite not winning a single relay. What made that team so successful and how does winning a second straight title help you prepare for this season?

A: "The key to last year's success was our unselfish approach to winning a TEAM championship. Everyone was willing to go the extra mile for the team. If it meant doubling up on events during the last day so that the team scored more points, that is what they did. Winning our second championship means we have to be even more unified and unselfish. The more you win, the greater the need for hard work and cohesiveness because everyone is looking to take you down."

Q: On an individual basis, Meredith Budner had one of the best seasons in the program's history by qualifying for three individual events at the NCAA Championship. What has her success done for the program and how does it help the team to be better?

A: "Meredith's individual success was the culmination of the team's commitment to each other. Her success was the team's success and the team's success was her success. Going to the NCAA Championship has helped us with our recruiting this year. We have had more people visit Towson than ever before."

Q: With winning a second straight CAA championship, is there added pressure on the team to try to win a third CAA title in a row?

A: "The desire to win comes from each person's goals and winning a championship is their goal again this year. Every year, we have pressure to be the best we can. We either will want to win again and do the work necessary to win or we will settle for second, third or fourth. We have done a great job in preparing for this year and I believe there is an expectation for us to win again. However, that expectation is something we placed on ourselves and the team."

Q: There was a lot of youth on the team last year and this year's team also is relatively young. What obstacles might you face with a young team this year?

A: "Winning championships starts with young talent. The key is to have that talent develop quickly and learn work habits and learn how to win."

Q: What types of goals have you and the teams set for the 2009-10 season?

A: "We want to win CAA's for a third straight year. We want to win every CAA dual meet. We want to have a team grade point average of 3.3 or higher. We also want to send more than one person to NCAA's and hopefully a relay team as well. Most importantly, we want to have fun while we work hard in the pool and classroom."

Q: Every year, the Tigers' schedule gets tougher as a way to prepare for the CAA Championships. How have you made the 2009-10 schedule even tougher?

A: "We are on the road all fall, which is our biggest challenge this year, but it will make us tough. Our championship is on the road, so the more we practice being on the road, the better we will be prepared for winning another championship. It is mentally and physically grueling. The following week of practices is where they have to be focused and tough."

Sophomore
Wes Foltz

Q: Over the last decade, the Towson swimming and diving program has grown and become one of the best mid-major programs in the country. What are some of the major accomplishments in your opinion that have occurred during your tenure?

A: "The best thing we have going with our program is our philosophy. We look to recruit student-athletes. We want a person who wants to go to classes and excel in their area of study. We want athletes who want to work hard and get better year in and year out. We are now known for this and it has helped with our recruiting and it is the foundation that our program rests on. This philosophy is what has resulted in so many academic accolades."

Q: The diving teams have improved over the course of the last several years and had good performances at the CAA Championship last year. What can we expect from the Towson divers this season?

A: "Coach Maureen Mead has done a tremendous job of building our diving program into one of the best in the CAA. Last year was the best year for our diving program in that past 12 years. Our divers are tremendously focused and they have so much fun at workouts. We are looking to send our first diver to the NCAA regional meet this year and it is quite possible we could have three women in the top eight finishers again at the CAA Championship on both boards."

Q: As the program has grown, the level and ability of the athletes you bring increases. As a coach, what are you looking for when you recruit potential student-athletes?

A: "We are looking for student athletes who have untapped potential. We have a reputation for taking good athletes and helping them become great. However, in order for that to happen, there has to be a desire on the part of the student-athlete to want to become exceptional. During the recruiting process, we try to determine who is coachable and who really is special. Everyone wants success, but the key is finding the people who are willing to do what is necessary to be exceptional. At Towson, we have been fortunate in that our team helps the coaches find those special athletes."

Q: As an institution, Towson University has seen many changes during your tenure as the Tigers' coach. How have those changes helped the program to become even better?

A: "Towson is a remarkable institution and within that institution, we have great leadership. Our president, Dr. Robert L. Caret, has been the driving force behind our success. Towson has grown from a regional institution to one that is now nationally recognized. I would say the same could be said of our swimming and diving program. The vision of Dr. Caret and Director of Athletics Mike Hermann is what has driven our program's success. Dr. Caret believes that if you are going to do something, you need to be exceptional at it. That philosophy coincides with my own views, which is why I have stayed so long at Towson."

Colonial Athletic Association

The Colonial Athletic Association celebrates its 25th Anniversary in 2009-10 with memories of a proud and storied past and visions of an exciting future.

Regarded as one of the nation's top collegiate conferences, the CAA encompasses five of the nation's nine largest metropolitan areas with a geographic footprint that stretches from Boston to Atlanta. The conference has produced 16 national team champions in five different sports, 33 individual national champions, 12 national players of the year, 12 national coaches of the year and 12 Honda Award winners. Just as impressive, however, are the honors accumulated away from competition, which include five Rhodes Scholars and 20 NCAA post-graduate scholars. In 2008-09, the CAA had more than 1,700 of the league's 4,000 student-athletes received the Commissioner's Academic Award after posting at least a 3.2 grade point average while lettering in a varsity sport. The conference ranked in the top 10 in the nation in 12 of its 23 sports in the latest APR report released by the NCAA.

The landscape of the conference stretches along the majority of the East Coast, and includes six of the nation's top 25 media markets – New York (1), Philadelphia (4), Boston (7), Atlanta (8), Washington, D.C. (9) and Baltimore (25). The number of television homes in the CAA market exceeds 20 million.

The CAA currently sponsors 23 sports with the addition of a 12-team football league in 2007 and women's rowing in 2009. Male athletes compete for championships in baseball, basketball, cross country, football, golf, lacrosse, soccer, swimming & diving, tennis, track & field and wrestling. Female athletes battle for conference titles in basketball, cross country, field hockey, golf, lacrosse, rowing, soccer, softball, swimming & diving, tennis, track & field and volleyball. In 2008-09, 28 teams earned NCAA Tournament berths and 45 student-athletes received All-America honors.

CAA member institutions are committed to excellence in the classroom. The Colonial Academic Alliance was created in 2002 by the league's presidents with a goal of expanding their partnership to all aspects of university life outside of intercollegiate athletics. Among the programs already established are an undergraduate research conference, coordination of study abroad programs and granting visiting academic status to student-athletes traveling to an away contest so that they have access to libraries, academic resource centers and computer labs.

In 2002, two faculty members from CAA institutions were awarded academia's most coveted distinction – the Nobel Prize. John B. Fenn, a research professor in the Department of Chemistry at Virginia Commonwealth University, received the Nobel Prize for chemistry, and Vernon Smith, a professor of economics and law at George Mason University, shared the Nobel Prize in economic sciences.

Commissioner Thomas E. Yeager has guided the CAA since its inception. The conference traces its roots back to 1983 when three of its current members- George Mason University, James Madison University, and the College of William and Mary - were aligned with East Carolina University, the United States Naval Academy and the University of Richmond as a basketball league (ECAC South). During the next two years, the league added 11 sports, acquired two new members (the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and American University) and decided to form a new association. The transformation from ECAC South to CAA took place on June 6, 1985.

Charter members George Mason, James Madison, UNC Wilmington and William and Mary were joined by Old Dominion University in 1991 and by Virginia Commonwealth University in 1995. The conference added the University of Delaware, Drexel University, Hofstra University and Towson University in 2001. Georgia State University and Northeastern University became members of the conference on July 1, 2005.

Celebrating its 25th Anniversary, the CAA takes great pride in producing student-athletes who stand out on the playing field and in the classroom.

Towson University Nickname

Towson University is one of 28 NCAA member institutions using The tiger is the most popular mascot among American colleges and universities.

However, its obvious popularity was not the real reason the Tiger was selected to represent Towson.

When Towson was a two-year normal school the Baltimore media referred to its teams as the "Teachers." As the school expanded to three and four year programs, the newspapers granted Towson student athletes tenure, calling them the "Professors" and even shortening it to "Profs." Later, it was changed again to the "Schoolmasters."

The "Indians" and "Golden Knights" were other nicknames used over the years. But as the tale goes, the moniker was finally decided after a soccer match.

One autumn afternoon a sportswriter was covering the Towson soccer team in an uphill struggle. The next day the writer wrote that although the team had lost the game, "...they played like tigers."

The soccer team appreciated the comment and adopted "Tigers" as its nickname. Enthusiasm for it spread throughout the campus and the tiger eventually became the official designated mascot.

The Towson Tiger logo has also experienced change. Several years ago, the new "stylistic" tiger was unveiled, replacing the upright caricature that had been used since the mid-80's. That took the place of the old block tiger which served as the logo from 1979. The present logo was altered slightly this past July, deleting the word "State" in keeping with the University's renaming of Towson University from Towson State University.

The Towson logo is registered. Approval for its use commercially is required. For color reproduction purposes, please contact the Towson Sports Information Office for separation instructions.

Other schools across the country who are also members of the "Tiger" fraternity include Auburn, Bishop, Clemson, Colorado College, DePauw, Doane, Grambling, Hampden-Sydney, Jackson State, Lincoln (Mo.), Livingston, LSU, Memphis, Missouri, Morehouse, Occidental, Pacific, Princeton, Rochester Tech, St. Paul's, Savannah State, Sewanee, Tennessee State, Texas Southern, Trinity (Tex.), Tuskegee and Wittenberg.

According to the NCAA, other popular nicknames include Bears (16), Wildcats (12) and Eagles (12).

TOWSON UNIVERSITY

In the decades following the Revolution, Americans clamored for free public schooling for their children. Maryland's elected officials and others who valued a literate citizenry also recognized that public school systems would require qualified, dedicated teachers. They pressed for a systematic, reliable means of producing teachers, and in 1865 - the final year of the Civil War - the legislature allocated funds for Maryland's first teacher-training school. On January 15, 1866, the State Normal School opened its rented quarters in Baltimore with a principal, M.A. Newell, 11 students and three faculty ("Normal School" is the English translation for Ecole Normale, the term used by the French teacher-training schools that served as models for U.S. educators). Today, Towson University is an institution of higher learning with a president, Dr. Robert Caret, an enrollment of 21,111 and a faculty numbering over 1,400.

Strength and Conditioning

The philosophy of the Towson University Strength and Conditioning department places an emphasis on bridging the gap between training and competition. The athleticism of each student-athlete is continuously evaluated and programs are implemented to match every imposed demand, specific to the sport and position.

Scientific evidence demonstrates that the combination of explosive weight lifting, plyometric activity, and movement efficiency prevails throughout the development of athletes. Each training session for every Tiger athlete incorporates these principles in a progressive overload, forcing the body into positive adaptation. Additional repetition-based exercises are utilized to develop the muscle activation patterns and coordination associated with decreased injury potential, as well as increased muscle mass. The yearly training program at Towson University not only emphasizes speed, strength, mobility and fitness, but also the proper nutrition and recovery habits for optimal performance.

The Tiger Weight Room is located on the first floor of the Towson Center and is fully equipped to meet the demands of each athlete, no matter what the sport. Over 20,000 pounds of weight, two full sets of dumbbells ranging from five to 150 pounds, 10 lifting platforms, and 10 power racks provide each group of athletes with the opportunity to develop a foundation of strength with compound, multijoint exercises. A full complement of Hammer Strength machines, along with reverse hyper, glute/ham benches, plyometric boxes, and two sets of medicine balls round out the room.

Jesse Judy directs the day-to-day operation of Towson's Strength and Conditioning Department, Jeremy Pick and Hunter Treuchet oversee the programming of several teams and all three coaches work collaboratively in training the 20 Tiger athletic programs.

"At Towson, we expect our athletes to train throughout the year, every year of their athletic career," says Judy. "Our philosophy places an emphasis on doing the little things well and working to get better at what we do. In most cases, more is not necessarily better, better is better, and that's what we strive for in every session."
