Looking Ahead

Tulsa will play their first American Athletic Conference road matches this week, taking on Houston on Thursday before battling Tulane on Saturday. The Hurricane hold a 14-7 series advantage over the Cougars, splitting a pair of matches last season as both road teams emerged with wins away from home. Tulsa is tied in the all-time series with Tulane dating back to 1986, 13-13. The Hurricane and Green Wave split their matches last season while TU has taken three out of the last four from Tulane.

Last Time Out

The Hurricane opened up American Athletic Conference play at 1-1, dropping a five-set battle to preseason conference favorite Cincinnati before defeating East Carolina in four at the Reynolds Center. TU used a late run in the second set against Cincinnati to knot the match up at 1-1, outscoring the visitors 14-5 over the final half of the set. Tulsa won the fourth set to tie it up once again before falling in a tightly contested match-deciding fifth set, 15-13.

After a slow start against ECU in which they lost the first set, TU came out in the second set with a 9-2 run and never looked back on their way to taking the match, 3-1, outscoring the Pirates by 23 in the final three sets.

Erica Bohannon led the way against the Bearcats (6-7, 1-1 AAC) as one of four Hurricane to reach double-digit kills, racking up 22 kills for the third time this season. Rebecca Reeve provided a spark in the four-set win over ECU (10-2, 0-2 AAC), tallying 16 kills including six in the second set to knot the match at 1-1 while hitting .407 on the day.

2,000 Club

Senior libero Brooke Berryhill became the second Hurricane player in program history to reach 2,000 career digs in the first set against Cincinnati on Thursday evening. Berryhill currently sits second on the all-time career digs list at TU with 2,032 digs, 405 digs behind Jessica Adams' (2009-12). With 18 guaranteed matches remaining on the Hurricane schedule, the senior will have to average 22.5 digs per match to surpass Adams.

Defensive Dominance

The Hurricane sit atop the national list for digs per set for the second straight week, leading the nation with 18.42 digs per set. Tulsa ranks 15th in the nation in opposing hitting percentage (.144) through 14 matches this season while Brooke Berryhill sits 21st in digs per set (5.22) and 25th in total digs (287).

Hot Start

Tulsa's 12-2 start to the season marks their best start since 2010 through this point in the season. The Hurricane have out-hit their opponents .211 to .144 to open the season while going 10-1 in matches that reach the fourth set. The 2010 squad opened the season 12-2 on the way to finishing 31-3 and earning an NCAA Tournament bid.
