Cougar Historical Highlights

From College Basketball's Game-of-the-Century to five NCAA Final Four appearances, to one of college basketball's most famous teams, to producing three of the greatest players of all time, to winning conference championships in four different leagues...

How could a group of World War II veterans attending the University of Houston on the GI Bill know a meeting with former Physical Education chairman Harry Fouke would have such an impact? They went to the meeting determined to convince Fouke that the University should field an intercollegiate athletics program.

Persuaded to begin a program, Fouke talked fellow Physical Education professor Alden Pasche into serving as head coach for the Cougars. Tryouts were held in September 1945, and three months later Houston was competing as a member of the Lone Star Conference.

1940s

The Cougars played their first game against defending LSC champion, North Texas. The starting lineup that night consisted of team captain and center Guy V. Lewis, forwards Jack Wagner and Dick Pratt, along with guards Willie Wells and Charlie Carpenter.

The Cougars served notice early that they would be tough to handle as they defeated North Texas, 62-35. Lewis led the Cougars with 19 points. Wells added 16 points and Pratt, who scored Houston's first field goal, ended the game with 12.

Houston went on to finish the season with a 10-4 record and won the Lone Star Conference with an 8-2 league record. Lewis set a conference record with 210 points in 10 league games and ended the year with an overall 21.1 scoring average.

Proving that their first conference championship wasn't a fluke, the Cougars won a second LSC championship the following year as Lewis averaged 19.7 points per game and Wells added 10.2 points per contest. Houston finished the 1946-47 season with a 15-7 overall record and was 11-1 in LCS play.

After spending three years as a member of the Lone Star Conference, Houston joined the Gulf Coast Conference in 1949-50 and won its third conference championship in five seasons. The Cougars ended that year with a 16-7 overall record and were 6-0 in the GCC before joining the Missouri Valley Conference in 1950.

1950s

One of the nation's best leagues in the 1950s, the Missouri Valley Conference featured teams that were ranked nationally among the top five 13 times between 1950-60. The Cougars played their first game against a nationally-ranked team in 1950-51, when they played fifth-ranked Bradley. Later that season, Houston faced top-ranked Oklahoma State, which was coached by the legendary Henry Iba on February 21. The Cougars also faced top-ranked Cincinnati and second-ranked Bradley in back-to-back games twice in 1959-60.

In 1955-56, Houston was ranked in the national wire service polls for the first time. The Cougars were ranked 18th on February 18, climbed as high as number 14 and finished the season ranked 17th by the Associated Press.

In addition to its outstanding teams, the Missouri Valley Conference was full of outstanding players and produced 28 All-American performers during the 1950s. Those players included Houston's Gary Phillips, three-time national Player-of-the-Year Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati and former Chicago Bulls star Chet Walker of Bradley.

Houston's best finish in the league's standings came in 1955-56, when the Cougars won their only MVC championship in Pasche's final season as head coach. That team finished with a 19-7 overall record and was the school's first team to play in the NCAA Tournament.

After the 1956 NCAA Tournament, three-year assistant coach and former team captain, Guy V. Lewis, replaced Pasche and spent the next 30 years helping revolutionize intercollegiate basketball.

Houston left the Missouri Valley Conference in 1960 and became a national powerhouse as an independent during the next decade. The Cougars played in six postseason tournaments between 1960 and 1968.

Houston opened the decade playing in the NCAA Tournament in 1960-61 and played in the NIT in 1961-62. Houston returned to the NCAA Tournament in 1965 and began a streak of four consecutive NCAA berths.

In 1964, Lewis signed two of the first three African-American athletes in school history: Elvin Hayes and Don Chaney. Hayes, the only three-time, first-team All-American in school history, combined with Chaney, a 1968 All-American, to lead Houston to its first two NCAA Final Four appearances in 1967 and 1968.

In 1968, the Cougars played in college basketball's most significant game of the 20th century, when second-ranked Houston played defending national champion UCLA in the Astrodome on January 20, 1968.

Not only did the game have two outstanding teams, but it also featured two consensus All-Americans and future Naismith Hall of Fame players in the first nationally televised regular season game. If that wasn't enough, it also marked the first game played in a domed stadium with an attendance over 50,000 people.

The contest lived up to all of its pregame hype, as Hayes sank two free throws in the final 29 seconds to give the Cougars a 71-69 victory. After beating the Bruins, Houston finished the 1968 regular season with a 28-0 record and was named the Associated Press and UPI wire service national champion.

Playing without their starting point guard George Reynolds in the NCAA Tournament, the Cougars advanced to their second straight NCAA Final Four before falling to UCLA in a semifinal game, 101-69, as the Bruins used a box-and-one defense to handcuff Hayes. Houston ended the season as the first team in school history to win 30 games with a 31-2 record.

Houston's national success continued in the 1970s as the Cougars opened the decade with four straight NCAA Tournament appearances before 1975-76.

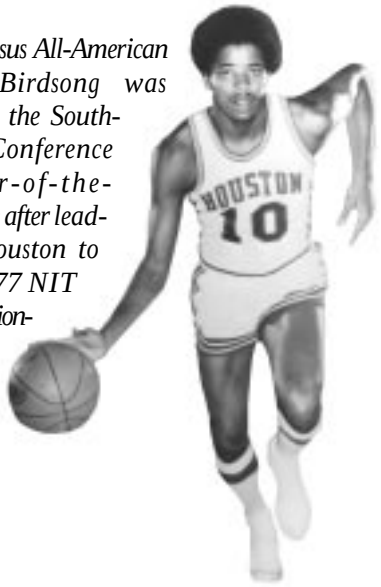
Early in the decade, the Cougars featured a lineup of perennial All-Americans that included Ollie Taylor, point guard Poo Welch, 6-8 standout Dwight Davis and Louis Dunbar. Taylor led the Cougars to the NCAA Sweet 16 finish in 1969-70. Welch and Davis led Houston to another NCAA Sweet 16 the following year.

Houston played in its third straight NCAA Tournament in 1971-72, and Dwight Jones played for the U.S. Olympic team later that summer. In 1972-73, Houston played in the NCAA Tournament for a fourth straight year. That team was led by Jones and Dunbar, a 6'10" player who helped redefine the meaning of versatility because he could play all five positions on the court. He took those skills and played 25 years with the Harlem Globetrotters.

In 1975-76, Houston began playing in the Southwest Conference and competed against Arkansas, Baylor, Rice, SMU, Texas, Texas A&M, TCU and

A three-time, First-Team All-American, Elvin Hayes put the UH basketball program on the national map when he led the Cougars to two NCAA Final Four appearances in 1967 and 1968. He also scored 29 points to help Houston upset UCLA January 20, 1968 at the Astrodome.

Cougar Historical Highlights



Consensus All-American Otis Birdsong was named the Southwest Conference Player-of-the-Decade after leading Houston to the 1977 NIT Championship game.

Texas Tech. The Cougars went on to win three SWC regular season championships and five SWC Postseason Tournaments during the next 20 years.

Houston also continued producing All-American players. Otis Birdsong was named a consensus All-American in 1977 after leading Houston to the NIT championship game. Birdsong also was named the SWC Player-of-the-Year after setting the SWC scoring record with 30.3 points per game and leading the Cougars to a second-place finish in the league standings. Later, he was chosen the league's Player-of-the-Decade.

After playing in the NIT championship game in 1976-77, Houston won its first SWC Postseason Tournament title in 1977-78 to earn the league's automatic berth to the NCAA Tournament.

1980s

The Cougars returned to the NCAA Tournament in 1980-81 and began one of the most successful runs in school history during the next three years, when the Cougars played in the 1982, 1983 and 1984 NCAA Final Fours.

Houston's most famous team during that span was the 1982-83 squad, which was coined "Phi Slama Jama" by Tommy Bonk, a former Houston Post and current Los Angeles Times columnist.

Led by All-Americans Clyde Drexler and Hakeem Olajuwon, Phi Slama Jama finished the season with a 31-3 record after putting together a 26-game winning streak and ending the regular season ranked Number One. Phi Slama Jama also recorded a perfect 16-0 Southwest Conference record while winning the league's regular season and SWC Postseason Classic championships. After earning the AP and UPI wire service championships, Houston advanced to the NCAA Championship game for the first time in school history before being upset by North Carolina State.

Houston also was a NCAA Tournament finalist in 1983-84 after the Cougars set a school record with 32 wins. Olajuwon was named a Consensus All-American after leading the nation in field goal percentage, rebounding and blocked shots. The following season, the Cougars played in the NIT.

After the 1985-86 season Lewis announced his retirement as coach and ended his career with a 592-280 record. He also led the Cougars to 14 NCAA Tournament appearances and two NIT berths.

Pat Foster took over the helm in 1986-87 and led the Cougars to another NCAA Tournament berth that same year. A year later, the Cougars played in the 1988 NIT and advanced to the second round with a victory over Fordham. Houston closed out the decade with another NCAA Tournament appearance in 1989-90, as all-SWC forwards Carl Herrera and Craig Upchurch led the Cougars to a 25-8 record.

Foster led Houston to one more NCAA Tournament and two NIT berths during the 1990s. After a season-ending back injury to all-SWC performer Craig Upchurch, Houston recovered to play in the 1991 NIT. The Cougars returned to the NCAA Tournament in 1991-92, as Houston reloaded with SWC Newcomers-of-the-Year Sam Mack and Bo Outlaw. They joined Upchurch and led the Cougars to a 25-6 record.

Following a 1993 NIT appearance, Foster resigned as head coach, and Alvin Brooks replaced him after serving as an assistant coach at UH for seven years. Brooks enjoyed his best season as a head coach in 1995-96 when he led Houston to a 17-10 record and a second-place finish in the final season of the Southwest Conference. Houston also upset third-ranked Memphis that year.

The following year, Houston joined Conference USA and began competing again in one of the nation's top leagues. In its first six years of existence, C-USA has produced 43 postseason tournament teams, including four Sweet 16 teams and two Elite Eight squads in the NCAA Tournament.

Houston produced three all-Conference USA performers during its first three seasons as a league member. Gee Gervin was named a first-team all-Conference USA player in both 1998-99 and 1999-00. Galen Robinson was a third-team all-C-USA player in both 1996-97 and 1997-98. Kenny Younger also earned third-team all-Conference USA honors in Hakeem Olajuwon helped lead Houston to three straight NCAA Final Four appearances. Houston had an 88-16 record during Olajuwon's three seasons as a Cougar.

1998-99.

Clyde Drexler replaced Brooks as head coach in 1998-99, and led Houston to its first C-USA Tournament victory over Marquette in 1999-00. George Williams also became the first Cougar in school history to earn C-USA all-freshman team honors in that season.

The Second Millennium

Drexler resigned after the 2000 Conference USA Tournament, and Ray McCallum was named Houston's sixth head coach on April 20, 2000.

In McCallum's first season, McDonald's High School All-American Alton Ford earned C-USA All-Freshman Team honors and was named a Fourth-Team Freshman All-American in 2000-01, before being selected by the Phoenix Suns in the second round of the 2001 NBA Draft.

In 2001-02, Houston enjoyed its most successful year in nearly a decade as the Cougars finished the season with an 18-15 record. They also finished second in Conference USA's National Division with a 9-7 mark, advanced to the semifinals of the C-USA Tournament and earned a bid to the NIT. Individually, Louis Truscott became the fourth Cougar to garner All-Conference USA honors when he was selected Third-Team, All-C-USA.

Last season, Houston earned its third straight berth into the C-USA Tournament and Truscott was named a First-Team, All-C-USA selection after finishing sixth among national leaders in rebounding and registering 20 double-doubles.

"Phi Slama Jama" won the Southwest Conference title with a 16-0 record, won the SWC Postseason Classic, defeated second-ranked Louisville in the NCAA Final Four and was a NCAA Finalist before suffering a 54-52 loss against North Carolina State in the NCAA Championship game.

A 1977 consensus All-American, Otis Birdsong was the SWC Player-of-the-Decade for the 1970s. He was the only SWC player to average 30 points in a season, ending the 1976-77 season with a 30.3 average. A 1984 consensus All-American, Hakeem Olajuwon was named the SWC Player-of-the-Decade for the 1980s after leading the Cougars to three consecutive Final Four berths. Young, Michael - Current assistant coach Michael Young is one of three Cougars to score 2,000 points in their collegiate careers. Young, who scored 2,043 points during his UH career, is the only Cougar player to start on three NCAA Final Four teams and four NCAA Tournament squads. Houston had a 109-25 overall record during his collegiate career.

He was the scoring leader for two of Houston's most successful teams. Young led "Phi Slama Jama" with a 17.3 scoring average in 1982-83, and the 1983-84 NCAA Finalist with 19.8 points per game. He also led the 1983-84 squad in steals with 1.8 per game.

Houston vs. UCLA
College Basketball's Game of the Century

On paper, it will go down as one of college basketball's greatest upsets. But, second-ranked Houston's 71-69 victory over top-ranked UCLA on January 20, 1968 had a much deeper meaning. It helped shape the way fans watch college basketball's biggest games today.

Houston head coach Guy V. Lewis originally conceived the idea of playing a game between the college basketball's top two teams and two greatest players in the Astrodome. The Cougars had just returned from their first NCAA Final Four and returned two-time All-American Elvin Hayes. UCLA was the defending national champion and had one of its greatest players, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, returning.

Lewis was convinced a game between the two schools in the Astrodome would attract the largest audience to ever watch a college basketball game. But, even he didn't realize how many fans the game would attract as 52,693 people attended the game and millions of others watched on national television.

UCLA entered the game with a 13-0 record and a 47-game winning streak, while Houston had a 16-0 record and had won 48 consecutive home games.

The crowd hoped for an epic battle, and the two teams fought back and forth as they traded leads during the first six minutes of the contest. Houston took a 13-12 lead with 13:45 left to play in the first half on a bank shot by George Reynolds.

The Cougars extended their lead to 37-28 before UCLA fought back to within 46-43 at halftime.

The second half opened with both heavyweights giving each other their best shots and waiting for the other team to fall. Both teams were still standing with 44 seconds remaining with the game tied, 69-69.

Houston had possession and raced down court ahead of UCLA's famed full-court pressure defense, hoping to work the ball inside to Hayes for a final shot. But, UCLA's Jim Nielson fouled Hayes with 28 seconds remaining. Hayes went to the free throw line hoping to do what every kid dreams about when playing in his backyard — a chance to score the winning basket.

A 60-percent free throw shooter on the season, Hayes made both free throws for two of his game-high 39 points to give the Cougars a 71-69 lead.

UCLA had one last chance to tie the score, and the Bruins set up a play for forward Lynn Shackelford to shoot a shot on the left baseline against Houston's 1-3-1 zone defense. Shackelford never got a chance to shoot because the Bruins turned over the ball , giving Houston what some call one of college basketball's greatest upsets.

More than 52,000 fans witnessed Houston's 71-69 victory over UCLA in the Astrodome. It was the first time that more than 50,000 people attended a collegiate basketball game.

COUGAR LEGEND

Guy Lewis

How many times have you sat on the edge of your seat watching a good, but unheralded college basketball team upset a highly ranked team in the month of March? Isn't that what makes the NCAA Basketball Tournament so special? Few people realize the bold, daring and monumental steps that Guy V. Lewis took to help make "March Madness" one of America's favorite pastimes.

Even fewer will know the obstacles he had to overcome to put the University of Houston's basketball program on the national map in the first place. Who could have known that a former Army flight instructor would play such a significant role in almost every memorable event in the school's history? Nevertheless, that's exactly what he did.

As a player, he helped the program get off to a winning start when he and a group of returning World War II veterans formed Houston's first intercollegiate team.

Houston faced a daunting task from the outset as the Cougars were scheduled to play their first game against a defending conference champion on January 10, 1946. At 6-3, Lewis was one of the tallest and most experienced players on the roster. He scored 19 points and led Houston to a convincing 62-45 victory against North Texas. This was only the beginning. He finished the season as the team's scoring leader with a 21.1 average. He also became the first Cougar to score 30 points in a game when he netted a season-high of 34 points came against Southwest Texas State on February 2, 1946. Twenty days later, he scored 33 points against Stephen F. Austin.

The Cougars finished the season with a 10-4 record, won the Lone Star Conference championship, and earned a berth into the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball (NAIB) Tournament.

The following year, Lewis closed out his playing career and led the Cougars to a 15-7 overall record, a second straight Lone Star Conference title with an 11-1 league record and second NAIB Tournament appearance. He averaged 19.7 points per game as a senior and scored a career-high 38 points against Southwest Texas State on February 15, 1947.

In 1953, Lewis returned to his alma mater and began his coaching career as an assistant coach. The Cougars were in one of the nation's toughest basketball leagues, the Missouri Valley Conference, and had never finished higher than fifth place. He helped guide Houston to its first NCAA Tournament appearance and only MVC championship in 1955-56.

Following the NCAA Tournament, Lewis replaced Alden Pasche as Houston's head coach and began one of the most storied careers that changed the course of collegiate basketball.

During the next 30 seasons, his teams won 592 games played in five NCAA Final Fours, and won 31 or more games three times. The Guy V. Lewis won 592 games and led Houston to 14 NCAA Tournaments in his 30 seasons as head coach.

Cougars also won two Southwest Conference regular season championships and four SWC Postseason Tournament titles. He also coached the school's first All-America player and 14 All-Americans overall.

Yet, a couple of daring steps distinguish his head-coaching career.

The first step was in 1964, the year Martin Luther King won the Nobel Peace Prize, and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act was enacted. This was also a time when Lewis approached school administrators to gain permission to recruit two black players from the state of Louisiana.

It wasn't about color. It was about talent. Lewis knew Elvin Hayes and Don Chaney were great players, but little did he know that they would help him shape the history of Houston's program.

Just after the Cougars played in the NCAA Final Four for the first time in school history in 1967, Lewis approached athletic director Harry Fouke with the idea of the Cougars playing top-ranked UCLA the next season—in the Astrodome. After all, the teams were regarded as two of the nation's best . Hayes and UCLA's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar also were regarded as the two best players in the country.

"Preposterous," was the initial reaction from Houston athletic director Harry Fouke. How would you play basketball in the Astrodome? Lewis was undaunted and argued that the game would attract the largest audience ever to see a game. So sure of the success, he offered his own salary to fund the idea.

To even consider the idea, Fouke had to get agreement with UCLA. Fouke and Lewis also had to persuade Judge Roy Hofheinz to allow the game to be played in the Astrodome. Described as "a visionary architect", even Hofheinz was slow in coming around. However, Lewis persisted, "If people can see a tiny baseball in the Astrodome, then surely they could see a ball 10 times its size."

The preposterous proposal by a then little-known coach was penned by college basketball historians as, "The Game of the Century," because it shaped the way we watch collegiate basketball today.

Lewis' salary was safe. As he predicted, over 50,000 people attended the game that night. Millions of others watched on national television. The hard-fought battle between two giants wasn't decided until the final few seconds. It was truly one of the greatest games of all time. This was the first nationally televised regular season game, and it was played on a Monday night.

Largely because of the popularity the Houston-UCLA game, the NCAA changed the format for its Final Four and moved its championship game from a Saturday afternoon game to Monday night.

Yes, games would be nationally televised in years to come, but it took almost 20 years for another regular season game to attract as large an audience.

During the next 18 years, Lewis continued developing his program. In 1972-73, his team featured five players measuring 6'8" and taller playing on the floor at the same time. Then, he led Houston into the Southwest Conference in 1976-77 with a freshman guard Otis Birdsong. Birdsong was named the SWC "Player-of-the-Decade for the 1970s" even though he only played two years in the league.

In 1982-83, made up of some lightly recruited players from the City of Houston, Lewis developed one of the most exciting college basketball teams ever when Phi Slama Jama burst onto the national scene. Stratospheric in its style of play, the team went on to defeat Louisville, 96-83, in the national semifinals to reach the national championship game for the first time in school history.

Lewis led the Cougars to a third straight NCAA Final Four and to a second consecutive NCAA Championship game in 1983-84 before announcing his retirement two years later. He ended his career with 27 seasons without a losing record and a 592-279 career record.

Lewis also coached 15 All-America players, 26 players who scored 1,000 points in their careers, 11 First Round and 29 overall NBA Draft selections, and three of the greatest NBA players—ever. While his teams averaged 19 wins per season and played in five NCAA Final Fours, it was his daring and innovation that helped revolutionize the way college basketball is viewed today.

He and his wife, Dena, are two of the program's most loyal supporters and attend most home games. Lewis was honored by UH when the basketball floor in Hofheinz Pavilion was named the "Guy V. Lewis Court" in 1995. In 2002, the City of Houston Athletic Committee presented him with the "Texas Basketball Lifetime Outstanding Achievement Award."

The University of Houston also planted an azalea garden along Cullen Boulevard in honor of one of his favorite off-court hobbies.

In 2003, Lewis was a Finalist for induction into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame, the University of Houston honored him with a Doctor of Humane Letters degree and the State of Texas honored him with a special proclamation.

Lewis signed Houston's first two black basketball players, Elvin Hayes and Don Chaney, in 1964. They went on to lead the Cougars to their first two NCAA Final Four appearances in 1967 and 1968.

NAISMITH BASKETBALL HALL OF FAME PLAYER

Elvin Hayes

Quite simply, he's the best. That's the best way to describe Cougar All-American Elvin Hayes. Not only does he hold Houston's scoring and rebounding records, Hayes put the University of Houston's basketball program on the national map when he led the Cougars to a 71-69 upset over top-ranked UCLA on January 20, 1968, in the Astrodome.

One of the first two African-American basketball players at Houston, Hayes is the only Cougar to earn All-American honors three times and consensus All-American accolades twice. He also was named the National Player-of-the-Year after leading Houston to the AP and UPI wire service national championships. However, for many college basketball fans, he will always be remembered for his spectacular performance against UCLA.

A native of Rayville, La., Hayes came to Houston in 1964-65. He joined current New York Knicks head coach Don Chaney as Houston's first two African-American basketball players. The third, Warren McVea, played for the Cougar football team.

Elvin Hayes holds all of Houston's scoring and rebounding records.

In 1965-66, Hayes earned various All-America honors after ranking nationally in three different statistical categories. He was fifth among rebounding leaders with 16.9 rebounds per game, 10th in field goal percentage leaders with .567 and 11th in scoring with 27.2 points per contest. The Cougars played in the 1996 NCAA West Regional at Pauley Pavilion.

The following year, Hayes was named a Consensus All-American after leading Houston to its first NCAA Final Four appearance and a 27-4 record. He ranked fourth among the national scoring leaders with 28.4 points per game and was sixth in rebounding with a 15.7 average.

In 1967-68, Hayes was named the Consensus National Player-of-the-Year after leading Houston to a 28-0 record in the regular season. The Cougars also finished the season atop the AP and UPI polls after upsetting defending national champion UCLA in the Astrodome.

Hayes capped off his collegiate career as the nation's third-best scoring and rebounding leader with averages of 36.8 points per game and 18.9 rebounds per contest. He also ranked 25th nationally in field goal percentage with .549.

Named the "The Big E" after the famed World War II aircraft carrier, the U.S.S. Enterprise, by former Houston Post columnist John Hollis, Hayes led Houston to an 81-12 record during his collegiate career.

After his epic career at UH, Hayes was the top pick in the 1968 NBA Draft by the San Diego Rockets. He began his NBA career leading the league in scoring with 28.4 points per game, and was named to the All-Rookie Team. The franchise moved to Houston and Hayes played one season in the Bayou City before being traded to the Washington Bullets in 1972. He played in Washington for nine seasons and teamed with Wes Unseld to form a dominating frontcourt combination. Hayes and Unseld led the Bullets to three NBA Finals and the 1978 NBA Championship over Seattle. He averaged 21.8 points per game during the 1978 playoffs.

He returned to Houston in 1981-82 and played with the Rockets for three seasons before ending his career in 1984. He averaged 21 points and 12.2 rebounds in his 16 seasons as an NBA player.

Three-time All-American Elvin Hayes put Houston's basket-ball program on the national map on January 20, 1968. Hayes scored 29 points and grabbed 15 rebounds versus top-ranked UCLA in the Astrodome.

Upon his retirement, Hayes ranked among the NBA's all-time leaders in many statistical categories, including scoring (27,313 points), games played (1,303), minutes (50,000) and rebounds (16,279).

He was named to the All-NBA First Team and Second Team three times each, and played in 12 consecutive NBA All-Star games from 1969 to 1980.

He was enshrined as a player into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame on May 15, 1990 and became the first UH student-athlete to have a jersey retired on December 18, 1993.

In 1996-97, Hayes was named to the NBA's All-Time Top 50 Team as the league celebrated its 50th year anniversary.

2001-02 NABC SILVER ANNIVERSARY ALL-AMERICA TEAM

Otis Birdsong

While he was often recognized by his lethal outside jump shot, Otis Birdsong was one of the the University of Houston's best all-around players ever. Only Elvin Hayes scored more points than Birdsong at Houston, but Birdsong also proved to have excellent passing and defending skills.

Birdsong became the first freshman to start for the Cougars in 1973-74 when he joined All-American Louis Dunbar, Sidney Edwards and Maurice Presley in the starting lineup. He finished third behind Dunbar and Edwards among the team's scoring leaders with 14.3 points per game.

As a sophomore, he led Houston and ranked 15th nationally with 24.6 points per game and shot a remarkable .583 from the field. He also etched his name into the UH record books that year by becoming the first sophomore in school history to register 1,000 career points. He ended his sophomore season with 1,012 points.

During the summer of 1975, Birdsong played a key role in the USA winning a Gold Medal at the Pan American Games with a perfect 9-0 record in Mexico City. One of the team's youngest players, Birdsong was named the Most Valuable Player at the Pan Am Games after leading the USA's balanced scoring attack with 14.4 points per game. His best game came against the Virgin Islands when he scored 14 of his 18 points in the second half.

1976-77 Consensus All-American Otis Birdsong was named to the NABC's Silver Anniversary Team in 2001-02.

After his outstanding play in Mexico City, Birdsong returned for his junior season in 1975-76 and Houston began playing in the Southwest Conference. Quickly, Birdsong established himself as the dominant scoring leader in league history. In his first year as a SWC player, Birdsong led the league in scoring and finished eighth nationally with a 26.1 average. He also led the Cougars to a second place finish in the SWC standings.

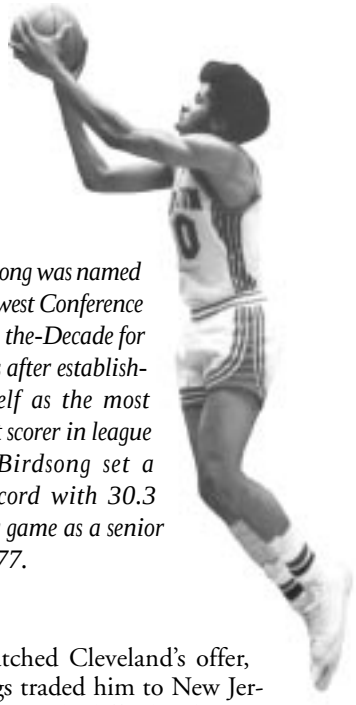
During his All-American season in 1976-77, Birdsong was named the Southwest Conference Player-of-the-Year after leading the Cougars to a 29-8 record and the NIT championship game against St. Bonaventure. He ranked fourth nationally and set the SWC scoring record with 30.3 points per game.

He was the only player in SWC history to average 30 points per game, and joins Elvin Hayes as the only two Cougars to accomplish the feat. His outstanding performances resulted in Birdsong being named SWC Player-of- the-Decade for the 1970s.

Birdsong holds Houston's school record for most free throws with 480 and is second in field goals made with 1,176. In addition to his scoring exploits, he ranks third in steals with 217 and sixth in assists with 329.

Birdsong became the second player chosen in 1997 NBA Draft by the Kansas City Kings. As a rookie, Birdsong averaged 15.8 points per game. The following year, the Kings drafted Phil Ford, and they formed one of the NBA's best backcourt combinations. Birdsong averaged more than 20 points per game in each of the next three seasons. His best year with the Kings was in 1980-81 when he was named a Second-Team All-NBA team selection after ranking sixth among the NBA's scoring leaders with 24.6 points per game and shooting 54 percent from the floor. The Kings also reached the Western Conference Finals in the 1981 Playoffs as Birdsong averaged 15.5 points per game.

After the season, Birdsong was a free agent and signed a five-year deal with the Cleveland Cavaliers that made him the first NBA guard to earn $1 million. After Kansas City matched Cleveland's offer, the Kings traded him to New Jersey for forward Clifford Robinson.



Otis Birdsong was named the Southwest Conference Player-of- the-Decade for the 1970s after establishing himself as the most dominant scorer in league history. Birdsong set a league record with 30.3 points per game as a senior in 1976-77.

Birdsong played the next seven seasons with the Nets and had his best seasons with the Nets from 1983-86. He averaged 19.8 points in 69 games in 1983-84, 20.6 points in 69 games in 1983-84 and 20.6 points in 56 games during 1984-85.

He played three more seasons with the Nets before finishing his career with the Boston Celtics in 1988-89. He ended his 12-year NBA career with 12,544 points and averaged 18.0 points in 696 regular season games.

Houston honored Birdsong on January 18, 1997, when the school retired his number 10 jersey. He also was named to the Silver Anniversary All-America Team by the National Association of Basketball Coaches at the 2002 NCAA Final Four.

NBA TOP 50 TEAM MEMBER

Clyde Drexler

The most versatile basketball player to wear a Cougar uniform, Clyde "The Glide" Drexler is the only Cougar to amass more than 1,000 points, 900 rebounds, 300 assists and 250 steals in a career. His 268 career steals is still a UH record.

A graduate of Ross Sterling High School in Houston, Drexler was named the 1980-81 Southwest Conference Newcomer-of-the-Year after averaging 11.9 points and 10.5 rebounds per game. His rebounding average was the highest average by a Cougar since the 1974-75 campaign. The Cougars finished that season with a 21-9 overall record, tied for second in the SWC race and played in the NCAA Tournament for the first time in three years.

In 1981-82, Drexler led Houston to its first NCAA Final Four appearance in 14 years and a 25-8 season record. He was an honorable mention All-America selection and a Second-Team All-SWC choice after averaging 15.2 points and 10.5 rebounds per game.

The Cougars were a NCAA Finalist and won their first SWC regular season championship in 1982-83 with a 16-0 record. Houston also won the SWC Postseason Classic and ended the year with a 31-3 record.

Drexler averaged a career-high 15.9 points per game and 8.8 rebounds while earning First-Team All-American and U.S. Basketball Writer's District VI Player-of-the-Year honors.

After his All-America campaign, Drexler relinquished his final year of eligibility and was selected in the first round of the 1983 NBA Draft by the Portland Trailblazers with the 14th overall pick.

He enjoyed an historic 15-year NBA career. His feats included joining Oscar Robertson and John Havlicek as the only players in league history to accumulate 20,000 points, 6,000 rebounds and 6,000 assists in their careers.

He ended his career 17th on the NBA's career scoring charts with 22,195 points and fourth on the steals list with 2,207. Drexler also recorded 25 triple doubles throughout his career.

In 1996-97, Drexler was named one of the NBA's 50 greatest players, and he was a member of the original "Dream Team" that won the 1992 Olympic Gold Medal in Barcelona, Spain.

In November 1996, Drexler joined fellow Cougars Hakeem Olajuwon and Elvin Hayes as the only three players from one school to score 20,000 career points in the NBA.

Drexler was selected to play in 10 NBA All-Star games and appeared in nine. He was named to the All-NBA First Team in 1992, the All-NBA Second Team in 1988 and 1991 and the All-NBA Third Team in 1990 and 1995. In 1992, Drexler was runner-up for the NBA's MVP Award.

Drexler played 11 1/2 seasons with the Trailblazers, and became the franchise's all-time leader in 10 different statistical categories while leading the team to 11 straight NBA Playoff berths and two NBA Finals in 1990 and 1992.

The Houston Rockets reunited Drexler with Hakeem Olajuwon on Valentine's Day 1995, and the former Cougar stars played pivotal roles in leading the Rockets to their second consecutive NBA Championship in 1995. Two years later, Drexler and Olajuwon helped Houston reach the Western Conference Finals.

In 1997-98, Drexler was leading the Rockets in scoring with 18.4 points per game, and averaged 4.9 rebounds, 5.5 assists and 1.8 steals before surprising the world on March 18, 1998. He jointly announced that he was retiring as an NBA player and becoming the head basketball coach at his alma mater. He led the Cougars to their first Conference USA road wins at Memphis and South Florida in 1998-99, and their first C-USA Tournament victory in 1999-00. Drexler also signed All-Greater Houston Player-of-the-Year George Williams and McDonald's High School All-American Alton Ford.

Following his second season, he resigned as Houston's head coach. Currently, he serves as a special assistant to general manager Kiki Vandeweghe and a team scout with the Denver Nuggets.

Clyde Drexler averaged 10.5 rebounds per game as a freshman and sophomore.

The University of Houston honored Drexler by retiring his number 22 jersey on February 12, 1997, and he was inducted into the school's Hall of Honor in 1998. Drexler also was inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame and the City of Houston's inaugural Hall of Fame in 1999.

SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE PLAYER-OF-THE-DECADE

Hakeem Olajuwon

Hakeem Olajuwon arrived on the University of Houston campus without fanfare, but within three years, he developed into one of college basketball's greatest players and took the Cougars to three straight NCAA Final Four appearances.

He came to Houston from Lagos, Nigeria, as a raw and inexperienced player. Nevertheless, Olajuwon improved so quickly that he was playing significant minutes on Houston's 1981-82 team that advanced to the NCAA Final Four. The Cougars lost against a North Carolina team that included perennial NBA All-Stars Michael Jordan, James Worthy and Sam Perkins.

Olajuwon played in 29 games and was in Houston's starting line-up six times that year while averaging 8.3 points and 6.2 rebounds per game. He also led the Cougars with 72 blocked shots.

In 1982-83, Olajuwon was a member of Houston's famed "Phi Slama Jama" team that was a NCAA Finalist and finished the year with a 31-3 record. The Cougars also won their first Southwest Conference regular season championship with a16-0 record and were SWC Postseason Classic champions as well.

Hakeem Olajuwon was named the MVP of the 1983 NCAA Final Four.

Olajuwon averaged 13.9 points per game and led the SWC with an 11.4 average. He also helped set up many of the team's fast breaks with 175 blocked shots.

He was named the Most Valuable Player at the 1983 NCAA Final Four after recording 41 points and 40 rebounds against Louisville and North Carolina State.

As a junior, Olajuwon was named a Consensus All-American after leading Houston to its second straight NCAA Championship game and a 32-5 record. The Cougars won their second straight SWC regular season crown with a 15-1 record and second consecutive SWC Postseason Classic title. Olajuwon was named the MVP of the Tournament after recording 20 points and 11 rebounds in Houston's 57-56 victory over Arkansas in the championship game.

That year, he became just the third player in NCAA history to lead the nation in two statistical categories, as he was the NCAA leader in field-goal percentage (.675) and rebounding (13.5 per game). He also led all players in blocked shots (5.6 per game), but the NCAA did not officially recognize those statistics until 1985-86.

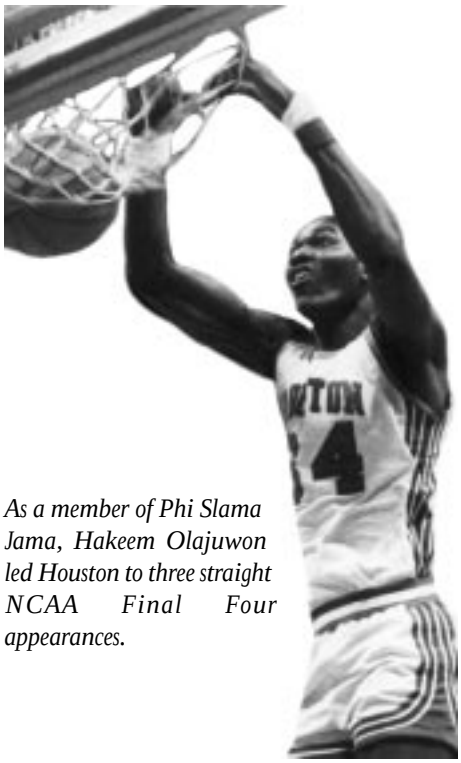
Following his collegiate career, Olajuwon was named the SWC Player-of-the-Decade for the 1980s.

Following his junior season, the Houston Rockets took Olajuwon as the first player in the NBA Draft. He was the second Cougar to be selected as the top player by the Rockets, joining Elvin Hayes, who was drafted in 1968 while the team was in San Diego.

Olajuwon spent 17 seasons with the Rockets before being traded to the Toronto Raptors in 2001. He is one of only eight players in NBA history to accumulate 20,000 career points and 12,000 career rebounds. He was the first NBA player to record 2,000 blocked shots and 2,000 steals.

He led Houston to the 1994 and 1995 NBA Championships and earned NBA Finals MVP both years. Olajuwon also holds the team's records in points, rebounds, blocked shots, steals and ranks third in assists.

Olajuwon was named the NBA's MVP in 1993-94 and NBA Defensive Player-of-the-Year in 1992-93 and 1993-94. He also has been chosen to the First-Team, All-NBA six times, Second-Team, All-NBA three times and Third Team All-NBA twice. Olajuwon also played in 12 NBA All-Star Games and started eight of those games.



As a member of Phi Slama Jama, Hakeem Olajuwon led Houston to three straight NCAA Final Four appearances.

In 1996-97, he was named one of the 50 Greatest Players in NBA History and the University of Houston honored Olajuwon on February 12, 1997, when UH retired his number 34 jersey.

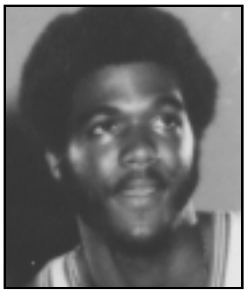
One of the top rebounding leaders in UH history, Ken Spain was the first Cougar to play for the United States Olympic team. Spain was a member of the 1968 U.S. team that won an Olympic Gold Medal in Mexico City. Earlier that year, Spain earned second-team All-America honors after helping the Cougars advance to their second straight NCAA Final Four. During the Olympics, Spain played in all five games and averaged 4.1 points per game as a reserve center.



DWIGHT JONES
Center
United States, 1972

Dwight Jones led Houston in rebounding and was a starting center for the Cougars in 1971-72 and 1972-73. He also was the starting center for the United States in the 1972 Olympic Games at Munich, Germany. Jones was the USA's scoring leader with 9.2 points per game and ranked second on the team with a 5.7 rebounding average.

ROLANDO FERREIRA

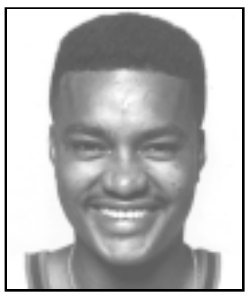
Rolando Ferreira was a two-year starting center for Houston in 1986-87 and 1987-88, and earned all-district honors as a senior. A member of the Portland Trailblazers in 1988-89, Ferreira returned to his homeland and was a member of Brazil's 1992 Olympic Team.



DAVID DIAZ
Guard
Venezuela, 1992

David Diaz was a point guard for Venezuela's first Olympic team in 1992 after playing on Houston's 1992 Southwest Conference championship team. One of the most exciting players ever to play for the University of Houston, Clyde Drexler was a member of the original United States "Dream Team" in 1992 that won the Olympic Gold Medal in Barcelona, Spain.
