About the River Hawk

The River Hawk nickname and logo was selected in the spring of 1994 following a lengthy process, a contest and a final vote by the UMass Lowell student body.

Not representative of any specific bird, the River Hawk is envisioned as a mythical bird of strength, speed and courage. It soars to great heights but never loses its connection to the river and the land below.

Straddling both sides of the Merrimack River, UMass Lowell has been a thriving educational and research center with strong ties to the industries that have lined its shores for over a century.

The University extends sincere thanks and gratitude to Chad Dooley for the suggestion of the River Hawk name and 1980 alumnus Brian Trainor for his creative design.

Dr. William T. Hogan, Chancellor

Dr. William T. Hogan believes that the University of Massachusetts Lowell should serve the needs of the region by educating students, advancing technology and knowledge, and providing service to the community.

This threefold mission has resulted in a reinvigorated campus that has broken down traditional barriers between the community and the University, spurring regional economic development that is sustainable and sensitive to social and environmental concerns. Edward A.

LeLacheur Park, the Paul E. Tsongas Arena as well as the Cushing Athletic Complex are the most visible results of this cooperation with the community.

Dr. Hogan has been associated with the University for more than three decades. Hogan joined the UMass Lowell staff as an associate professor of mechanical engineering in 1963. Over the next 30 years, he chaired the department, served as Dean of the College of Engineering and guided the institution as Vice President of Academic Affairs, President and Chancellor through its evolution into the doctoral-level regional university it is today.

Dr. Hogan's leadership is informed by years of industry and experience. He worked in design and development engineering positions at General Electric, Co., the United States Army Rocket Development Center at Redstone Arsenal, AVCO Research and Development, and Littleton Research and Engineering Corporation.

He also served as Interim Technical Director of the Engineering Gas Dynamics Laboratory in the Division of Sponsored Research at MIT, from which he received his masters and doctor of science degrees in mechanical engineering. He earned a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering at Northeastern University.

Dana K. Skinner, Director of Athletics

Named Director of Athletics in November of 1995, Dana K. Skinner is the third Director to hold the position since the merger of Lowell State College and Lowell Technological Institute in 1975. He follows Dr. James Ciszek (1975-87) and Dr. Wayne Edwards (1987-95). Skinner has served the University during a period of great growth.

He began his tenure by working closely with the University's Athletic Committee to develop and implement a strategic plan that guided progress in the areas of gender equity, facilities, conference affiliations, team competitiveness and fund-raising.

Notable achievements included gaining admittance into the Northeast-10 Conference in 2001, increased funding and coaching opportunities for women's programs, and $65 million in facility projects which enabled all varsity teams to practice and compete on-campus for the first time.

These projects included the 6,500-seat Tsongas Arena, which serves as the home for the UML Hockey team, the 5,000-seat LeLacheur Park, which is home to the River Hawk Baseball team; the $3.5 million Cushing Field Complex for soccer, field hockey and track & field; a softball complex, new locker rooms and office space for coaches; and a $19.5 million Campus Recreation Center.

During Skinner's tenure, much emphasis has also been placed in the area of student-athlete development. The Department's Student-Athlete Advisory Council was started in 1994, and the Champs/Life Skills Program, a program that provides student-athletes with a personalized program of academic support, followed in 1995.

Finally, a strong belief that sports can be utilized as a vehicle to promote much-needed positive social change has resulted in the University's student-athletes performing community outreach activities that impact more than 10,000 young people annually. Skinner and former Faculty Athletics Representative, Dr. Jon Hellstedt, brought the National Youth Sports Program to UMass Lowell in 1992, and the program has been cited for excellence on numerous occasions, including recognition as the nation's outstanding program in 1999.

UMass Lowell's Student-Athletes have also been recognized by the National Consortium of Academic & Sports for outstanding work in the community.

A 1978 graduate of Merrimack College, Skinner has served the University in virtually every aspect of athletic administration since arriving at the school in 1988. He first came to the then-University of Lowell as the Coordinator of Promotions, Marketing and Event Operations. He was named Assistant Athletic Director in 1989, and Associate Athletic Director in 1993.

In addition, Skinner serves as a board member on the Lowell Arena & Stadium Commission, the National Youth Sports Program, and is a member of the Hockey East Executive Committee.

A Former Division II All-American basketball player and draft pick by the Boston Celtics in 1978, Skinner was inducted into the Merrimack College Athletic Hall of Fame in 1985 and the Danvers High School Hall of Fame in 1990. He resides in Bradford, MA with his wife, Keiko, and their son Alex (15) and daughter Abby (9).

The University

Throughout its 100 year history, the University of Massachusetts Lowell has excelled at providing innovative, responsive programs that meet both the needs of its students for a quality education and the needs of regional businesses for skilled practitioners and managers.

Formed through the merger of a technical institute and a teacher's college, the University is part of the five-campus University of Massachusetts system. The academic experience at UMass Lowell offers students comprehensive, broad-based programs characterized by a continuing effort to break down traditional barriers between disciplines, and between the classroom and the "real world."

Courses typically involve a practical component which can range from the political science team that competed nationally in a United Nations Model Assembly; to the music business majors who went to a recording industry conference in California; to the civil engineering students who helped the city of Lowell inventory and replace all of its street signs.

Members of the faculty are respected researchers who value their commitment to teaching and extend the learning experience beyond the classroom. Undergraduates participate in funded research and college policy committees, and senior faculty are involved in student projects such as building and racing a solar-powered car. Strong links with local businesses, educational systems, and health care providers benefit students through an increasing number of internships, part-time jobs, and grants. In short, students graduate with the hands-on experience and practical problem-solving skills for which employers are looking.

UMass Lowell offers 82 different undergraduate concentrations, including recent popular choices like meteorology, sound recording technology, exercise physiology, criminal justice, and plastics engineering. Most courses incorporate some kind of practical component that gives students hands-on experience in their field. Support services ranging from the University-wide Honors Program to multimedia computer labs to academic tutoring ensure that all students have access to the programs and services that help them succeed. The Graduate School enrolls nearly 3,000 students in 30 master's degree and 11 doctoral programs.

Cumnock Hall

UMass Lowell's 6,000 undergraduate students are ethnically, culturally, and economically diverse. Students are active in a wide variety of community service activities, including athletics-based programs for local high school students; the Assistive Technology Program in which students create and modify devices for the disabled; and volunteer work at local shelters and community programs. There are more than 100 campus organizations to choose from: academic, recreational, and special interest groups; the women's center; marching band; the student newspaper; an FM radio station covering a 20-mile radius; and the Off-Broadway Players. Campus-wide events include University Week and Spring Carnival, and resident hall associations sponsor social and recreational events.

The University's three campuses, spread over 100 acres on both sides of the Merrimack River, include classroom and laboratory buildings, two libraries, a student center, two gymnasiums, multiple dining halls, a Center for the Performing Arts, an art gallery, and numerous residence halls. State-of-the-art laboratories include such special-interest facilities as the six Sound Recording Technology Program studios; an interactive video lab (one of three in the country) that enables nursing students to simulate medical emergencies; and a manufacturing lab where engineering and management students team up to produce micro-electronic components.

In 1998, the University's collaborative relationship with the city of Lowell resulted in the completion of the nearby Paul E. Tsongas Hockey Arena and the on-campus Edward A. LeLacheur Baseball Stadium. Both facilities are shared by UMass Lowell and the Lowell Lock Monsters of the American Hockey League (AHL) and the Lowell Spinners, a class A affiliate of the Boston Red Sox.

These projects and the University's Campus Recreation Center, which opened in the Fall of 2002, are located in the city's Northern Canal area where campus and community meet. Other collaborative projects in this area include a three-mile river walk/canal walk system, and the mixed-use renovation of the 18-acre Lawrence Mills complex.

The Facilities

A commitment to athletics is evident on the UMass Lowell campus, as the university has seen substantial growth in its facilities in recent years.

Costello Gym is home to the Men's and Women's Basketball programs. The three-floor facility houses two basketball courts, a swimming pool, training facilities, and the main offices for the athletic staff. The weight room, located in the basement of the building, contains the latest equipment and a wide variety of free weights suitable for training and exclusive to UML student-athletes.

Adjacent to the Costello Gym is the Cushing Field Complex. This newly constructed complex features an artificial field and bleacher stadium for field hockey and football, a competitive track and field complex, and a new natural grass soccer field.

A joint-venture with the city of Lowell led to the construction and completion in 1998 of the Paul E. Tsongas Arena and Edward A. LeLacheur Baseball Stadium on the north campus. Open and dedicated on January 27th, 1998, the arena proudly bears the name of the late Senator Paul E. Tsongas, a Lowell native.

The 6,500-seat arena is home to the NCAA Division I UMass-Lowell Hockey team, the Lowell Lock Monsters, and a variety of concerts and family shows. LeLacheur Park, only a few blocks from the arena, offers a dramatic view of both the Merrimack River and the Aiken Street Bridge. The 4,700-seat natural grass facility is home to the River Hawk baseball team and the Lowell Spinners, a Class A affiliate of the 2004 World Series Champion Boston Red Sox.

Overlooking the Merrimack River, River View Field, located on the University's south campus. One of the premier softball complexes in New England, River View Field is home to the Northeast-10 Conference Tournament each year.

The newly constructed Campus Recreation Center caters to the needs of the student-athlete. The two-story, 80,000 square-foot facility offers a wide variety of fitness and fun activities.

The CRC contains three basketball courts with a one-eighth-mile seamless rubber compound running track overlooking the courts from the second floor. Adjacent to the basketball courts are two racquetball courts and a squash court. In addition, there is a 6,500 square-foot dual-level fitness area that contains a variety of cardiovascular equipment, free weights, and selectorized machines.

Multi-purpose studios offer space for aerobic and fitness classes, and a wellness room provides information and help on how to eat and exercise better. Locker rooms offer a sauna for relaxation, and pool and table tennis tables give students a chance to unwind in the Atrium.

Lowell, Massachusetts

Named after the innovative businessman Francis Cabot Lowell, the city became home to the nation's first great industrial center. A massive complex of mills sprung up during the textile boom of the 19th century, harnessing the power of the nearby Merrimack River. By the 1840's, the mills were turning out almost one million yards of cloth a week.

Today, Lowell is a crossroads of commerce and creativity, offering an environment highly favorable to business. The city's history is a source of its vitality, and Lowell has regained its position as a thriving cosmopolitan center.

Combining a highly productive workforce with an aggressive commitment to business development, Lowell is an ideal place for new and established companies. From high growth markets such as cyber technology to traditional manufacturing, industrial research to financial services, dozens of industry sectors call Lowell home. Strategically located, Lowell is just minutes from major interstates and less than an hour from Boston's Logan International Airport.

In Lowell, the past – rich in architecture and history – blends artfully with the present. In a special downtown district, talented artists live and work in renovated mill buildings, bringing new energy and creativity to the historic heart of the city.

Laced by a network of canals, its cobblestone streets illuminated by Victorian lights, the restored 19th century downtown offers a thriving commercial area and a variety of cultural attractions. An eclectic collection of shops, emporiums, and boutiques sit alongside galleries and historic sites.

An arts hub north of Boston, Lowell is notable for its constellation of small museums and galleries, big-name concerts, cultural celebrations, and the largest free folk festival in the country.

With the Merrimack and Concord Rivers intersecting the city, fishing, sailing, canoeing, water skiing, and some of the country's best white-water rafting are right outside your door. Over eight miles of interconnected river and canal pathways loop through the city center and along the banks of the Merrimack, providing scenic and varied routes for a jog, stroll, or a bike ride.

A quiet oasis from the bustle of the city center, the thousand-acre Lowell-Dracut-Tyngsboro State Forest offers six miles of trails for backpacking, horseback riding, cross-country skiing, or nature walks.

From its start as the first great industrial city in America, Lowell has provided the tools, the talent, and the environment for creation, invention, and innovation. There is a pervasive attitude that anything can be accomplished. Spend time here – you'll see that Lowell boasts some of the best amenities any city has to offer.

Historic Boston

One of the oldest cities in America, Boston is just 30 miles from the UMass Lowell campus, and can be reached by a short car, train, or shuttle from Lowell. Beautifully blending old-world charm and modern convenience, the city of Boston offers a wide variety of activities and events for everyone.

History can be found in many forms throughout Boston. The city is steeped in tradition from its major sports franchises, and was recently named the '2002 Best Sports City' by The Sporting News. Friendly Fenway Park is home to 2004 World Series Champion Boston Red Sox. One of the oldest parks in the league, Fenway has been home to legends such as Babe Ruth and Ted Williams.

Students from all over the country and the world come to Boston for higher education. In the greater metropolitan area there are more than 50 four-year colleges and universities, including Harvard, the oldest university in the United States, MIT, Boston University, and Boston College. There are schools, colleges, and medical centers, research and cultural institutions wherever one looks. Approximately 250,000 students attend classes in the greater Boston area, making it America's number one college city.

Given its large population of students and young professionals, Boston has every form of entertainment imaginable. A wide variety of concerts occur year-round at various venues, and restaurants and nightclubs of all types can be found in Boston.

Boston was the birthplace for the American Revolution, and a number of historic buildings and monuments dot the city landscape. The grounds of Beacon Hill are known for many of its famous structures, including the Old State House, from the balcony of which Bostonians first heard the Declaration of Independence read.

The Old South Meeting House held a famed discussion in 1774, when a grievance session about a new tax turned into the Boston Tea Party. Some of the finest headstone carvings in New England are on view at the Old Granary Burying Ground, where Paul Revere, John Hancock, and Samuel Adams rest in peace. The 1798 State House houses the state legislature.

Located in the heart of downtown Boston, Faneuil Hall Marketplace is the nation's premier urban marketplace. It combines the glories of the past and vitality of the present, with over 70 shops, 14 full service restaurants, 40 food stalls, and Boston's most popular comedy nightclub. Ethnic foods, unique gifts and street performers are just a few elements that make the cobblestone streets of Faneuil Hall Marketplace such a festive and special attraction.

The Clock Tower

The North End is Boston's oldest neighborhood and home to much of the city's Italian population. The heart of the Italian section is Salem Street, crammed with bakeries, cafes, delicatessens, candy shops, and some of the finest Italian food you can find anywhere. Among the remnants of Boston's early days are the Paul Revere House, which is the oldest house in Boston, and the Old North Church, where two lanterns were hung in the steeple to signal the British arrival by sea.

Boston is the big city which draws bright young people from all over the world to live and work.

2004-05: Another Banner Year for River Hawk Athletics

It has been noted that the last two years have been the finest for the UMass Lowell athletic department. The 2004-05 season certainly did not disappoint. Between the 16 River Hawk teams, 18 student-athletes were crowned All-Americans, including one two-time honoree, while more than 45 earned All-Northeast-10 Conference recognition and two garnered All-Hockey East accolades.

Six UML teams – including five in the fall season alone – earned trips to the NCAA Tournaments while 21 student-athletes represented UML at the NCAA indoor and outdoor track and field championships in 16 different events.

Three UML head coaches – Shannon Hlebichuk (field hockey), Gary Gardner (cross country/track and field) and Harry Sauter (softball) – earned multiple coach of the year honors.

Fall 2004: Another for the Ages

Highlighting the fall season again were the field hockey, cross country and men's soccer teams, which have ascended to record levels and have maintained their places among the elite.

- In a splendid encore to the 2003 season, the field hockey team posted a record of 19-3 (12-2 NE-10) and repeated as NE-10 Tournament champion which won them the privilege to host the NCAA Tournament semifinals and championship a second straight year.

Despite falling in the semifinal round, the River Hawks crowned five All-Americans and six All-NE-10 standouts.

- Another highly successful season was had by the men's cross country team which won its fifth straight NCAA Northeast Region championship and placed 13th at the NCAA Championship. At the NCAA's, the River Hawks were led by Chris Kapfer, who placed 13th overall and was crowned UML's first All-American since 2002.

Also notable was UML's eighth-place result at the New England Championships, which included colleges from all three NCAA Divisions.

- With repeat second-place finishes at both the NE-10 Championship and NCAA Northeast Regional Championship meets, the women's cross country program solidified itself as one of the premier programs in the Northeast Region.

With three juniors, two freshmen, a senior and a sophomore as its top seven, the aforementioned championships are realistic goals for 2005-06 and beyond.

- In another splendid season, the men's soccer team (15-3-2, 11-2-0 NE-10) enjoyed its second straight NE-10 Tournament crown and trip to the NCAA Tournament while shattering a slew of defensive records, including shutouts in a season (10).

In the NE-10 Tournament, the River Hawks defeated Franklin Pierce in the ninth round of a penalty shootout and advanced to the NCAA Tournament. Unfortunately, the Ravens exacted revenge in the first round by handing UML a 3-0 loss.

- It was schedule strength which lifted the UML volleyball program to its third straight appearance in the NCAA Tournament (fourth bid in five years).

The River Hawks won 11 of their first 14 matches as victories over Bridgeport (3-0), New Haven (3-1) and Saint Rose (3-0) proved pivotal during the stretch. Eight of UML's 11 losses were to teams ranked higher in the AVCA Northeast Region Poll while one loss was to a nationally-ranked foe (Tampa, 0-3).

- With a 9-10-1 overall record (6-7-1 NE-10), the women's soccer team enjoyed its best-ever season as well as its first-ever appearance in a postseason match in the program's 10-year history.

Victories over traditional powers Merrimack (2-0, ranked No. 14), Southern Connecticut (1-0), Stonehill (4-2) and Le Moyne (1-0) proved vital as the River Hawks clinched the No. 8 and final seed for the NE-10 Tournament. UML suffered a 2-0 loss at No. 1 Franklin Pierce.

- Returning after a seven-year hiatus, the golf team endured the struggles of a brand new program, but highlighting the year was the play of sophomore Tom Lamond who placed third at the NE-10 Championship to earn a spot on the All-Conference first team.

Winter 2004-05: The Kings of New England

Under head coach Gary Gardner's three-year reign, each season's accomplishments by the men's and women's track and field teams seem to surpass the previous year.

- Highlighting the 2004-05 men's indoor track season was UML's second-place finish at the New England Championships, in which the 4X400 meter and distance medley relay teams each captured New England titles and led 16 River Hawks to earn All-New England honors.

Additionally, the UML men sent 10 athletes to the NCAA Championship where nine – junior miler Patrick Morasse and the 4X400 and distance medley relay teams – captured All-American honors.

Highlighting the men's outdoor track season was Morasse (5,000 meters), the 4X400 meter relay team and freshman Jahmone Duhaney (400 meter hurdles) each qualifying for the NCAA Championship.

- The 2004-05 women's indoor track season was another stellar one as eight athletes qualified for the NCAA Championship. Leading the way was Josette Pierre-Louis who earned All-American honors in the 400 meter dash.

At the New England Championship, UML placed third – making for the best combined (men's and women's) finish of any team – and was led by Shannon Seidel, who captured her second straight New England Pentathlon title.

- Selected to finish eighth in the NE-10 Preseason Coaches Poll, the women's basketball team did the poll two places better, placing sixth with a 12-10 conference clip. Following a 3-5 start, the River Hawks won 11 of their next 15 games entering the final stretch, but fell victim to a ruthless schedule to end the regular season.

The River Hawks defeated Assumption (61-58) in the NE-10 first round, but lost to finalist Bentley (64-50).

- What was a significant test for the men's basketball program, the 2004-05 season was certainly a success. After losing three of the best players in program history, including NCAA Division II Player of the Year Elad Inbar, UML rebounded with a stellar 18-10 record and a 14-8 clip in the NE-10 (seventh).

Among the several highlights was the play of junior forward Stacey Moragne, who was named an All-American, NE-10 and ECAC Player of the Year; as well as the NABC and Daktronics (SIDs) Northeast Region Player of the Year.

Spring 2005: Baseball Returns to NCAA Tournament

- In Ken Harring's first season as head coach, the baseball team returned to the NCAA Tournament for the eighth time in nine years after a one-year absence. UML received the No. 4 seed where it defeated No. 1 Franklin Pierce (8-2) before losing to No. 2 Southern Connecticut (10-3) and Franklin Pierce (16-11). UML raced to an 18-7 start, which included a 6-3 clip in Fort Myers, FL, its best showing in the south since 1999.

- With a splendid record and its best-ever finish in the NE-10 (second), the softball program enjoyed one of its best year's in the program's 30-year history. Over the last three seasons, Head Coach Harry Sauter has guided the River Hawks to an 83-54 clip. The sole goal to elude UML this season was the NCAA Tournament, in which UML was one place shy in the selection, placing seventh in the NCAA Northeast Region Poll.

- Topping the outdoor track and field season, sophomore Nicole Plante was UML's sole All-American – men's or women's – in the women's outdoor track season as she earned the honor in the 10,000 meters. Plante was one of four UML women to compete in the NCAAs.

The NCAAs came after a splendid second-place showing at the New England Championships, in which the River Hawks crowned champions in five events.

For the men, Morasse (5,000 meters), freshman Jahmone Duhaney (400 meter hurdles) and the UML 4X400 meter relay team each qualified for the NCAA Championship. The River Hawks had 17 athletes on the NE-10 All-Star Teams, including 13 on the first team, led by Morasse and Duhaney who were voted the Athlete and Freshman of the Year, respectively.

THE COACHING STAFF

Head Coach Kathy O'Neil

Kathy O'Neil enters her 21st season as head coach of the UMass Lowell women's basketball team and has enjoyed eight appearances in the NCAA Tournament over the last 15 years.

Under O'Neil's tutelage, UMass Lowell has become one of the perennial powers in New England women's college basketball. With a record of 344-232 (.597), O'Neil has registered more wins than any other coach in UMass Lowell basketball history. Over the past 15 years, she has guided UML to an average of 20.5 victories per season.

O'Neil's many accomplishments include eight NCAA tournament appearances over the past 15 seasons; six New England Collegiate Conference (NECC) championships between 1991 and 1999; and winning the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Division II championship in 1989-90.

UML's sterling 141-46 record over the last 11 seasons in the NECC was the best won-loss clip in the league during that span. Over the final 10 years of the NECC's 18 year illustrious history, O'Neil amassed a .709 winning percentage (210-86).

Along with her teams success, O'Neil has also been honored by her peers throughout her career. She was voted the NECC Coach of the Year three times (1991, 1995, 1997).

UMass Lowell enjoyed a stellar season in 2002-03 – its third year in the Northeast-10 Conference – in which the River Hawks were the runners-up in the regular season and tournament.

UML advanced to the NCAA Tournament that year for the eighth time in 13 years.

O'Neil's teams have also been very active within the City of Lowell community. Several players volunteer for the UML Mentoring Program at the Lowell City Magnet School and babysitters at a local homeless shelter. Additionally, members of the women's basketball team has been a fixtures at the Merrimack Valley Region Special Olympics.

One of the best women's basketball players in Saint Michael's history, O'Neil still holds a slew of school records, including most points in a game (36 vs. Bates, 1980), scoring average in a season (22.1), rookie season (16.2) and a career (17.9). She also holds the mark for steals in a season (147) and career (475) and was the first-ever player to score 1,000 points.

O'Neil's jersey, No. 11, was retired in October 1988, when she became the first women's basketball player inducted into the St. Michael's Athletic Hall of Fame. She was one of nine charter members.

A three-time team most valuable player and two-year captain, O'Neil was also a standout in the classroom. A political science major, she was named to the College Division Academic All-American Second Team by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA). In addition to her basketball success, she was also a four-year standout in field hockey.

On Sept. 24, 2004 O'Neil was inducted into the New England Basketball Hall of Fame for her accomplishments at Saint Michael's.

O'Neil received her master's degree in business administration from UMass Lowell in May of 1999. She resides in Nashua, NH.

THE COACHING STAFF

Assistant
Aliya Cox

Aliya Cox begins her sixth year with the River Hawks and second year as the top assistant coach.

Cox's coaching career followed a stellar playing tenure at UMass Lowell in which she earned All-New England Collegiate Conference (NECC) honors as a senior. She went on to play in a variety of leagues around the world following graduation, including China and Puerto Rico.

A three-year starter, Cox was one of the most versatile players in UML history and played a large role in leading UML to three NCAA Tournaments, three NECC tournament championships and one NECC regular season title.

A versatile 5-foot-9 guard/forward, she had her best year as a senior in 1999-2000, leading UML to its third NECC Tournament title and third NCAA Tournament berth over four seasons. In 29 games, she registered 11.7 points and 5.9 rebounds per game and was named to the All-NECC Second Team.

In four years, Cox helped the River Hawks to a sterling record of 77-38 (.670). She graduated in 2000 with a degree in health education.

Cox resides in Lowell, MA.

Assistant
Dahima James

Dahima James enters her third year in the coaching ranks following a splendid four-year career at UMass Lowell.

A three-year starting center, James ranks among UML's all-time leaders in games played in a career (115, tied for seventh); career field goal accuracy (.454, ninth); and career rebounds (684, ninth).

In James' four years, the River Hawks advanced to the NCAA Tournament twice (2000, 2003), won the New England Collegiate Conference regular season championship and tournament (1999) and posted a four-year clip of 68-47 (.591).

Along with her basketball prowess, James was a mainstay in the UML community and volunteered for various charity causes. She spent six years as a counselor in UML's National Youth Sports Program, the top NYSP program in the country three years. Since graduation she has become a project coordinator with NYSP Girls' Clinics.

James was also a Special Olympics volunteer and UML Basketball Camp clinician for four years. She now serves as the camp coordinator.

In addition, James was the women's basketball representative on the Student-Athlete Advisory Council three years and cochaired the committee as a senior.

James graduated with a degree in psychology. She lives in Lowell, MA.

Assistant
Enjoli Edwards

Enjoli Edwards moves from the floor to the sideline as she joins the UML coaching staff for her first season.

A standout player from 2001-05, Edwards was a two-year starter and enjoyed standout seasons as a junior and senior. As a junior, Edwards compiled averages of 11.3 points and 6.6 rebounds per game, ranking among Northeast-10 Conference rebound leaders.

As a senior, Edwards registered 10.0 points and 7.8 rebounds per game, and ranked among NE-10 leaders in three categories: field goal accuracy (third (.532), rebounding (fifth, 7.8) and defensive rebounds (5.8, fourth).

She capped her career among UML's all-time leaders in field goal accuracy (fourth, .490) and steals (fourth, 190).

During the spring, Edwards is a thrower on the track and field team. She highlighted her senior year by qualifying for the NCAA Championship and placing second at the New England Championship, which includes NCAA Divisions I, II and III.

Edwards will compete in her final year of eligibility for track and field this spring while she completes her degree in civil engineering.

A native of Philadelphia, PA, Edwards lives in Lowell, MA.

MEET THE RIVER HAWKS

Four Starters, Nine Vets Back for River Hawks in 05-06

With six seniors, seven newcomers, two sophomores and a junior entering the 2005-06 season, UMass Lowell head coach Kathy O'Neil is hoping the upperclassmen set an example and the newcomers learn fast.

Healthy, available bodies will not be a problem this season as O'Neil has one of the largest rosters in her 21 years – 16 players – while three will redshirt the 2005-06 season.

Among the seniors, five play either guard position, leaving plenty of competition for the frontcourt.

"I think our transition game will be very good," said O'Neil. "We have some good experience in the backcourt. Our guards may have to carry us because we are not that big."

Entering the season, UML's biggest strength is in the backcourt with senior guards Mariette Guillaume and Sacha Simms, both of whom are capable of scoring in clusters.

Guillaume posted averages of 11.8 points, 3.7 rebounds and 2.0 assists per game last year, but equally important was her defense on opposing guards. She ranked sixth in the NE-10 last year with 2.4 steals per game and also connected on 47 shots from 3-point range.

Simms (8.3 ppg) scored in double digits in eight games last year, including seven times over UML's final 10 games in which she averaged 12.7 points.

Seniors Tammy Haulcy and Lindsay Woodfield, each of whom saw a share of starts last year, will be ready when called upon. Specializing in the intangibles, Haulcy chipped in 3.0 rebounds and 2.4 assists in addition to 6.1 points last year while shooting .764 from the free throw line.

Woodfield had averages of 5.0 points and 2.0 assists in addition to some stellar defense a year ago.

Senior Erica Gunn and sophomore Tonya Perry will provide plenty of spark. Gunn is a deft shooter off the dribble while Perry displayed a knack for slicing through defenses and finding the basket or a teammate, as a freshman.

Freshman Jennifer O'Rourke (Chelmsford, MA), is a welcome addition and a deft shooter who could see immediate minutes. O'Rourke was a three-time Merrimack Valley Conference all-star at Chelmsford H.S.

While UML is well-stocked in the backcourt, the loss of center Enjoli Edwards leaves the River Hawks somewhat new under the basket.

Back is senior center Emily Kordas, who chipped in 9.7 points and 6.2 rebounds per game. Kordas will be manning the posts with someone new, likely sophomore Liron Asher, freshmen Shaina Berry (Friendswood, TX) or Antonnea Robinson (West Haven, CT).

Senior Mariette Guillaume

Asher, who transferred to UML after one semester at Division I Southwest Missouri State, saw action over the final 18 games. She posted averages of 2.4 points and 1.7 rebounds in 10.4 minutes per game, but played an average of 16.0 minutes over UML's last four games.

The 6-foot-0 Berry comes to UML off a splendid three-year career at Friendswood H.S., in which she was a district all-star all three years. Versatile and very intelligent, Berry could have an immediate impact.

Robinson, at 5-11, is fresh off a decorated career at Kolbe Cathedral H.S. in Bridgeport, CT, where she scored more than 1,000 points and led the Cougars to state championships as a junior and senior.

Junior forward Linda Knowler gave key minutes last year off the bench in all 29 games (two starts) and will likely play a similar role in 2005-06.

Also battling for minutes will be freshman forward Bridgette Hooker (Belmont, NH), who will give key minutes at the small forward position. Hooker was a four-year starter at Belmont H.S. – which also produced former UML standout Diane DiRoma – where she earned all-state honors three years.

"It is definitely a good freshman class," O'Neil said. "I think Antonnea and Shaina will help us up front. Bridgette and Jen will help us in the backcourt."

Three players – Revital Carmon (Bat-Yam, Israel), a 6-4 sophomore; and freshmen Lindsay Gundy (Concord, NH) and Andressa Giacomini (Malden, MA) – will redshirt the year.

Carmon comes to Lowell from Cochise (AZ) College where she averaged 9.9 points and 5.4 rebounds per game in leading the Apaches to their best season (19-10) in 25 years.

Gundy, who originally committed to the U.S. Naval Academy as a senior at Concord H.S., will sit out the year due to a knee injury. At Concord, Gundy was an all-state and all-conference standout as a senior.

Giacomini, a 6-0 center, was a Greater Boston League all-star at Malden H.S., where she played four years.

"I expect Lindsay to be a very good player for us," O'Neil added. "Andressa and Revi will definitely be factors as well. It would have been nice to have them this year with the seniors. We definitely would have had a bigger inside game."

The Northeast-10 Conference

Currently in its third decade, the Northeast-10 Conference has established itself as one of the premier all-around NCAA Division II conferences in the nation.

The NE-10 is now the second largest Division II conference in the country and is comprised of 15 institutions: six from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, three each from New York and New Hampshire, and one each from Vermont, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Founded in 1980 as the Northeast-7, the charter members were American International College, Assumption College, Bentley College, Bryant College, the University of Hartford, Springfield College and Stonehill College.

Saint Anselm was admitted to the conference in 1981 and Merrimack joined the fold in 1984, replacing Hartford, now a Division I institution. The conference expanded from eight to 10 teams with the addition of Quinnipiac and Saint Michael's in 1987.

Springfield left the conference for Division III following the completion of the 1994-95 academic year. The conference returned to 10 teams in 1996-97 with the addition of Le Moyne College and then expanded to 11 in 1997-98 with the inclusion of Pace University. In 1998-99, the conference reverted to 10 schools when Quinnipiac shifted its programs to Division I.

The NE-10 expanded to 15 institutions beginning with the 2000-01 academic year. The five new institutions included Franklin Pierce College, the UMass Lowell, Southern New Hampshire University (formerly New Hampshire College), The College of Saint Rose and Southern Connecticut State University.

In addition, the Northeast-10 Conference sponsors 20 championships: men's and women's soccer, field hockey, volleyball, men's and women's tennis, men's and women's cross country, golf, men's and women's basketball, baseball, softball, men's and women's lacrosse, football and men's and women's indoor and outdoor track and field.
