NOTEBOOK REVIEW

Terps Finish Season 5-6; Friedgen Named New Coach

The University of Maryland football team finished its 2000 season with a 5-6 overall record and a 3-4 mark in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Following the season, it welcomed one of its own back into the fold as it announced the hiring of former Terrapin player and coach, Ralph Friedgen, as its head coach.

Friedgen was named the 33rd head coach in Maryland history on November 29 after the release of Ron Vanderlinden. Friedgen most recently served as offensive coordinator at Georgia Tech, but he has strong ties to the university as he played for the Terps in the mid-'60s and coached under Bobby Ross during the school's most recent ACC glory days from 1982-

For the 2000 season, the Terps matched their overall record from a year ago and improved on their conference record by one game, but were unable to become bowl eligible after working their way to a 5-4 record with two games remaining in the season.

Senior tailback LaMont Jordan (Forestville, Md.) completed his spectacular career at Maryland as the school's all-time leading rusher with 4,147 yards. He led the Terrapins in rushing and scoring in 2000 and worked his way up to third on the Atlantic Coast Conference career rushing chart. In addition, he finished his career as the school's all-time leader in all-purpose yards with 4,960.

Looking ahead, the Terrapins have a bright future in store as they return 17 starters from the 2000 club including eight players on offense and eight on a defense that got better as the season progressed in '00. In particular, Maryland's linebacking corps could be one of the best in the country as this past season's group of starters (Marlon Moye-Moore, E.J. Henderson, Aaron Thompson and Mike Whaley) combined for 366 tackles, 39 TFLs and 15.5 sacks, and all will return in 2001.

Jordan Caps Record-Breaking Career

LaMont Jordan's four-year career at the University of Maryland came to a close in the Terrapins' season finale versus Georgia Tech, but his name will resound throughout the school's record books for years to come.

Jordan finished his career with 4,147 yards rushing, the most in school history and the most by any back in the ACC in 20 years. That total also puts him in third on the all-time ACC list as he will go down trailing just Amos Brown of North Carolina (1977-80; 4,391 yards) and all-time leader Ted Brown (1975-78) of NC State who finished his career with 4,602 yards. He became the Terrapins' career leader in rushing in the West Virginia game on September 16.

The highlight of Jordan's career was his 1999 season as he ran for 1,632 yards, most ever by a Maryland player in a single season. In that season, he added school records for touchdowns (16) and yards in a game (306 vs. Virginia). For his career, Jordan's name is plastered all over the Maryland record books. He leaves as the school's all-time leading rusher in terms of yards (4,147), attempts (807), 100-yard games (18), allpurpose yards (4,960) and all-purpose attempts (889) In the conference, Jordan finishes third in rushing and seventh in allpurpose yards. He owns the third-best rushing day in conference history (306), the third-most single-season rushing yards (1999; 1,632), the fifth-LaMont Jordan was a most TDs scored in second round pick by the a season (1999; New York Jets in the 2001 17) and the 11th-NFL Draft. most touchdowns scored in

Farewell to Seniors

A total of 18 Maryland seniors suited up in Terrapin gear for the last time with the close of the 2000 season.

The group includes many faces that will remain familiar to Maryland fans, including the school's all-time leading rusher (LaMont Jordan), one of its top defensive backs (Shawn Forte) and one of its best kickers (Brian Kopka). The following is a list of those seniors (* = letters earned):

Barnard Fourth in NCAA

Brooks Barnard (Arnold, Md.) finished his sophomore campaign ranked fourth in the NCAA Division I-A standings in punting. Barnard, who began the season with a school-record performance (53.8 yards on six attempts) vs. Temple, and continued to lead the nation after the WVU game, finished the 2000 season with a school-record average of 44.7 yards per punt. His mark - which bested Scott Milanovich's 43.8-yard average from 1993 - finished the season just under two yards behind the nation's leader, Preston Gruening of Minne-

- For his efforts in '00, Barnard was named an honorable mention All-ACC selection and honorable mention All-America by the Football News.
- For the season, Barnard had punts of 85 (a career long and three short of the UM record), 71, 67 (twice), 66, 63 and 61 yards. All told, he had a total of 13 punts that were 50 yards or more.
- In the season's final game (against Georgia Tech), Barnard punted five times for a 44.0-yard average. His long on the day was 58 yards and he placed one punt inside the 20.
- Against North Carolina, Barnard contributed in another way - with his arm. On 4th-and-5 in the second quarter, Barnard completed an 11-yard pass to Shawn Forte out of punt formation to keep a Maryland drive
- Barnard, who walked on to the team in 1999, posted Maryland's best punting average (42.1 yards) since 1993 as just a freshman.

Defense Stands Up

It may come as a surprise when looking at the final national rankings, but the Maryland defense was one of the driving forces behind the 2000 squad's late-season success. It was a defense that held Duke, Wake Forest and North Carolina to a combined total of 29 points and made enough big plays down the stretch to hang on for the upset win over NC State.

- In the loss to North Carolina, Maryland held the Tar Heels without a touchdown until the fourth quarter. Going into the Georgia Tech game, the Terps had held their opponents out of the end zone in 12 of the previous 16 quarters of regulation football they had played, a feat that spanned four games.
- Maryland's defense had an innate ability to hold its opponent in check to start the second half in 2000. For the season, Terp opponents averaged 4.4 points in the third quarter and they were shut out in the frame six times by Maryland's defense. In addition, the defense got better in the quarter as the season progressed as it shut out its opponents in the period in five of the last seven games and did not allow a touchdown in the last four games of the season.
- The Terrapin defense held UNC to 10 first downs for the entire game and four through the first three quarters. The Tar Heels also were only able to convert two of 14 third downs for the game.
- Safety Shawn Forte had one of the highlight plays for the defense this year in the second quarter of the

- In the upset win over NC State, the Terps broke up six passes, a total that accounted for nearly one-third of Maryland's season total for PBU's (17) at that time.
- Maryland also held NC State to just 119 total yards in the second half after yielding 282 in the first
- In the win over Duke Oct. 28, Maryland held the Blue Devils to a field goal and a touchdown (on a gadget play). The Terps limited Duke to just 266 total yards, including just 13 rushing yards on 40 carries.
- Against Wake Forest Oct. 21, Maryland nearly registered its first shutout of the season before yielding a touchdown with 6:07 remaining in the game and the Terps in front 37-0.

Five Terps Play in Postseason

Five seniors from last year's Terrapin team participated in postseason all-star games in hopes of improving their chances of playing at the next level.

Tailback LaMont Jordan and defensive tackle Kris Jenkins played in the Senior Bowl January 20.

Maryland was also represented well in the Hula Bowl as FS Shawn Forte and FB Matt Kalapinski played in the game, also on January 20, in Maui.

Jenkins pulled double duty as he also played in the Blue-Gray Classic on Christmas Day, 2000, in Montgomery, Ala.

The final Terrapin who played in a postseason allstar game was kicker Brian Kopka. Kopka returned to his home state of Florida to play in the Rotary Gridiron Classic at the Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Florida, on January 13.

O-Line Experience

Maryland returned three starters from its offensive line which led the ACC in fewest sacks allowed in 1999 and four starters (including those three) will return next year from a group that finished second in the conference in fewest sacks allowed (21) in 2000.

Included in the mix are a trio of youngsters who have already combined for a substantial amount of starting experience: junior center Melvin Fowler (Wheatly Heights, N.Y.), sophomore left guard Todd Wike (Lebanon, Pa.) and sophomore right tackle Matt Crawford (Moravia, N.Y.). Wike and Crawford have combined to register 41 starts in their two-year collegiate careers, with Crawford earning second team Freshman All-America honors by The Sporting News in 1999. Although Crawford injured his knee toward the end of 2000 (he started the first nine games), he remains a force to be reckoned with for the future. Meanwhile, Wike was as dependable as they come in '00, starting all 11 games at guard for the Terps.

Fowler goes into the 2001 season having started every game (33) of his collegiate career, and is one of the top centers in the ACC. He earned an honorable mention All-ACC nod and was dubbed first team all-conference by Collegefootballnews.com. Add to the mix redshirt freshman Lamar Bryant (Clinton, Md.), who was a fixture at right guard down the stretch in 2000, and the Terps have a strong base of linemen to work with in

Pass Protection Impressive

Despite losing a pair of starters on the offensive line and a two-year starter at tight end, Maryland's offensive line allowed just 21 sacks (and only 20 of a QB) in the 2000 season. That number was second-best in the ACC and it continues an impressive trend begun four seasons ago.

In 1997, the Terps yielded a whopping 56 sacks as the offensive line was being converted from a run-and-shoot blocking unit to one of a more conventional offensive scheme. In 1998, that figure was nearly cut in half, with Maryland allowing 30 sacks in 11 games.

Last season, sacks were dramatically reduced again, with Terp QBs caught behind the line of scrimmage just 11 times in 251 throwing situations.

Prior to allowing a safety in the second quarter against Florida State, the Terps had run a string together of six straight quarters without allowing a sack.

*one sack was on TB LaMont Jordan as he tried to pass on an option play against Florida State.

Gary Terps' Go-To Receiver

Junior WR Guilian Gary (Horseheads, N.Y.) became the Terrapins' top receiving threat in 2000 and has become one of the better receivers in the Atlantic Coast Conference. With his three-touchdown performance in the season's final game, he also has put himself in the Terp record books.

- With his three TDs against Georgia Tech, Gary tied a school record for receiving touchdowns in a game, matching the mark set by Jermaine Lewis in 1993 and James Milling in 1986.
- Gary also added to his season total for touchdown receptions, leaving him with seven for the 2000 season. That mark ranks tied for fourth on the Terp single season list and is the most by a Maryland player in seven
- For the game, Gary had six receptions for 85 yards. With his scoring catches, Gary made it threestraight games that he had caught a scoring pass and five in that same time period (one against NC State; one against UNC; three against Georgia Tech).

- Through 11 games, Gary is eighth in the ACC in receptions per game (3.6) and 10th in the conference in receiving yards per game (51.6). Both totals are also team hiahs.
- Gary's two touchdowns against Middle Tennessee in week three marked the first time a Terrapin wideout had two TD receptions since Omar Cheeseboro accomplished the feat versus NC State in 1997. He later topped the feat with his three touchdowns against the Georgia Tech.

> - After a near record-setting season returning punts in 1999, Gary is quietly making his way up the career charts for punt returns. His 312 yards a year ago were the fourthhighest figure in Terrapin history > > and his 35 returns matched the second-highest total. Going into 2001, Gary is within reach of Terp career records for both yards and returns.

Jenkins Finishes With Big Year

Senior defensive tackle Kris Jenkins (Ypsilanti, Mich.) spent much of his career trying to live up to the expectations set for him. In his final season as a Terp, he went above and beyond those expectations.

- Prior to 2000, Jenkins had single-season bests of 39 tackles, four TFLs and one sack. In fact, his career totals were 92 tackles, seven TFLs and one-and-a-half sacks.

In 2000, Jenkins destroyed his previous season bests and put up numbers that looked more like his career numbers as he led all Maryland defensive linemen and finished sixth on the team with 62 tackles. More impressively, he led the Terrapins for the season with 17 TFLs and eight sacks.

- Against Duke (10-28-00), Jenkins had 12 tackles (nine unassisted), four for loss and three sacks. All three totals were single-game career highs.
- At 6-5, 292 pounds, it was a given that Jenkins would be a force against the run. His ability to get in the opponents' backfield is what earned him second team All-ACC honors and the team's lineman of the year award.
- Jenkins' sack total tied him with Ernie Salley for 10th on the single season list as Salley also notched eight in 1975.

Thompson Has Strong Season

Junior Aaron Thompson completed the 2000 football season the same way that he had completed his previous two - as a starter in every game the Terrapins played and one of the team's top playmakers.

- After having a few performances that could be considered sub-standard for Thompson to start the season, the career 33-game starter picked up the pace and went on a big-play rampage. The Terps' defensive improvement seemed to coincide.

He finished the season fifth on the team in tackles with 81, was second in sacks with 6.5 and had nine TFLs to go along with it.

- Thompson had a sack, a TFL and a huge fumble recovery to go along with five tackles against North Carolina.

- Against NC State, Thompson had a career-high 17 tackles, one TFL and one forced fumble.

 The outstanding play began against Duke, as Thompson registered seven tackles, three TFLs and three sacks. The three sacks were a single-game career-high for Thompson and equaled the most by a Terp in any game this year.

- In his three-year career, Thompson has amassed near-record numbers in tackles for loss (35). He paced Maryland with nine TFLs as a freshman and 17 in 1999 as a sophomore – and added nine tackles for loss in – His 17 TFLs in 1999 were the best at Maryland since Charles Johnson posted Freshman All-American in 2000. 18 in 1978.

- His efforts include a career-high 15 stops in the 1999 opener vs. Temple and double-figure efforts in eight of 11 games in 1999. Overall, he has registered doubledigit tackles in 11 of his last 21 games.

 Thompson has started every game of his major college career (33), and is averaging 7.9 stops per game (259 total).

A Whale of a Freshman Effort

Redshirt freshman Mike Whaley was one of the Terrapins' top defensive playmakers in 2000 and one of the reasons the Maryland defense will be a force to be reckoned with in 2001.

- Whaley had 68 tackles in his freshman campaign and was one of the team leaders in sacks (5) and tackles for loss (12).

- For his efforts, Whaley was honored by The Sporting News as a third team Freshman All-America.

Homebovs

Establishing the Maryland-D.C.-Northern Virginia area as the primary recruiting base for the development of the Terrapin program has been an overriding goal in recent years. It is a trend that Ralph Friedgen has insisted will continue as his reign as Terrapins coach begins. In 1997, just 23 players on the Terrapin roster hailed from either Maryland, D.C. or Northern Virginia, with six of those serving as openinggame starters.

Since that time, however, numbers in both categories have doubled - 46 players from the region were on the 2000 roster, with 12 of those starting on opening day versus Temple.
