1994 NCAA Championship Game: UNC 60, Louisiana Tech 59

Charlotte Smith had to wait for the replay to watch the biggest shot in North Carolina women's basketball history fall through the net. She was the one who released it, just before time expired in the 1994 NCAA Championship game, but ultimately her line of vision was blocked.

"I didn't look at it," Smith said. "And the mob got me before I knew it had gone in."

That mob, made of her teammates, had good reason to be excited. Just three years earlier, when the seniors on that team were freshmen, North Carolina had finished at the bottom of the Atlantic Coast Conference. So to have hit those heights, earning the program's—and the conference's—first NCAA title, was almost too much to be believed.

The success had been building steadily.

Since the 1991 season, when UNC finished 12-16 for its fourth consecutive losing season, the Tar Heels had put together back-to-back 20-win campaigns. Sylvia Hatchell's team headed into the 1993-94 season with five returning starters and an outstanding freshman point guard named Marion Jones, who would go on to gain fame on the track.

First, however, Jones made an indelible mark at UNC in basketball. By the fourth game of the season, Jones was a starter, and she went on to set an ACC record for steals by a freshman. Joining her in Carolina's regular lineup were four experienced players: seniors Sylvia Crawley and Tonya Sampson, and juniors Stephanie Lawrence and Smith.

The Tar Heels opened the 1993-94 season with 11 consecutive wins and climbed to No. 4 in the country before falling at home to Virginia, 77-75 on Jan. 12. The Cavaliers would prove to be the only team to defeat UNC that season, winning again in Charlottesville on Feb. 9, 83-74.

There were a few other close calls, though. At the ACC Tournament in Rock Hill, S.C., the defense stiffened to beat Clemson 65-64 and advance to the final. Having survived that scare, Carolina finally got the better of Virginia, 77-60 in the championship game, to claim its first conference crown since 1984.

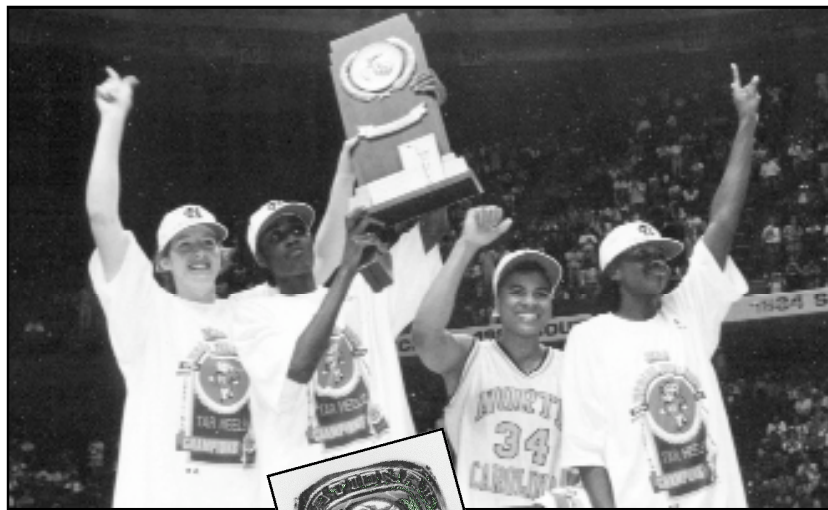

After advancing through first and second-round NCAA Tournament games in Chapel Hill, UNC traveled to the East Regional at Rutgers. There, the Tar Heels beat Vanderbilt 73-69, despite playing without Smith, who served a one-game suspension for fighting during the second round win against Old Dominion. Crawley picked up the slack with a season-high 22 points. An 81-69 victory against Connecticut put North Carolina in its first Final Four.

In Richmond, Va., UNC enjoyed its trip but didn't forget it was there to take care of business. The Tar Heels put on a dunking display at practice, then got serious and won easily in the national semifinal against Purdue, 89-74, to advance to the NCAA Championship game.

On April 3, Louisiana Tech led through most of the first half, but never by more than five. The Tar Heels trailed by two when they got the ball out of bounds on a possession arrow with a mere 00:00.7 showing on the clock. After two timeouts, Lawrence inbounded the ball to Smith on the right wing. The rest, as they say, is history.

"It makes it even more special to know that we came from the bottom to the top," Crawley said after the game. "This is the way I've always dreamed about it, and my dreams have finally come true."

Sylvia Crawley, Sylvia Hatchell and Tonya Sampson celebrate the victory. At right, Crawley and Charlotte Smith field questions at the postgame press conference.

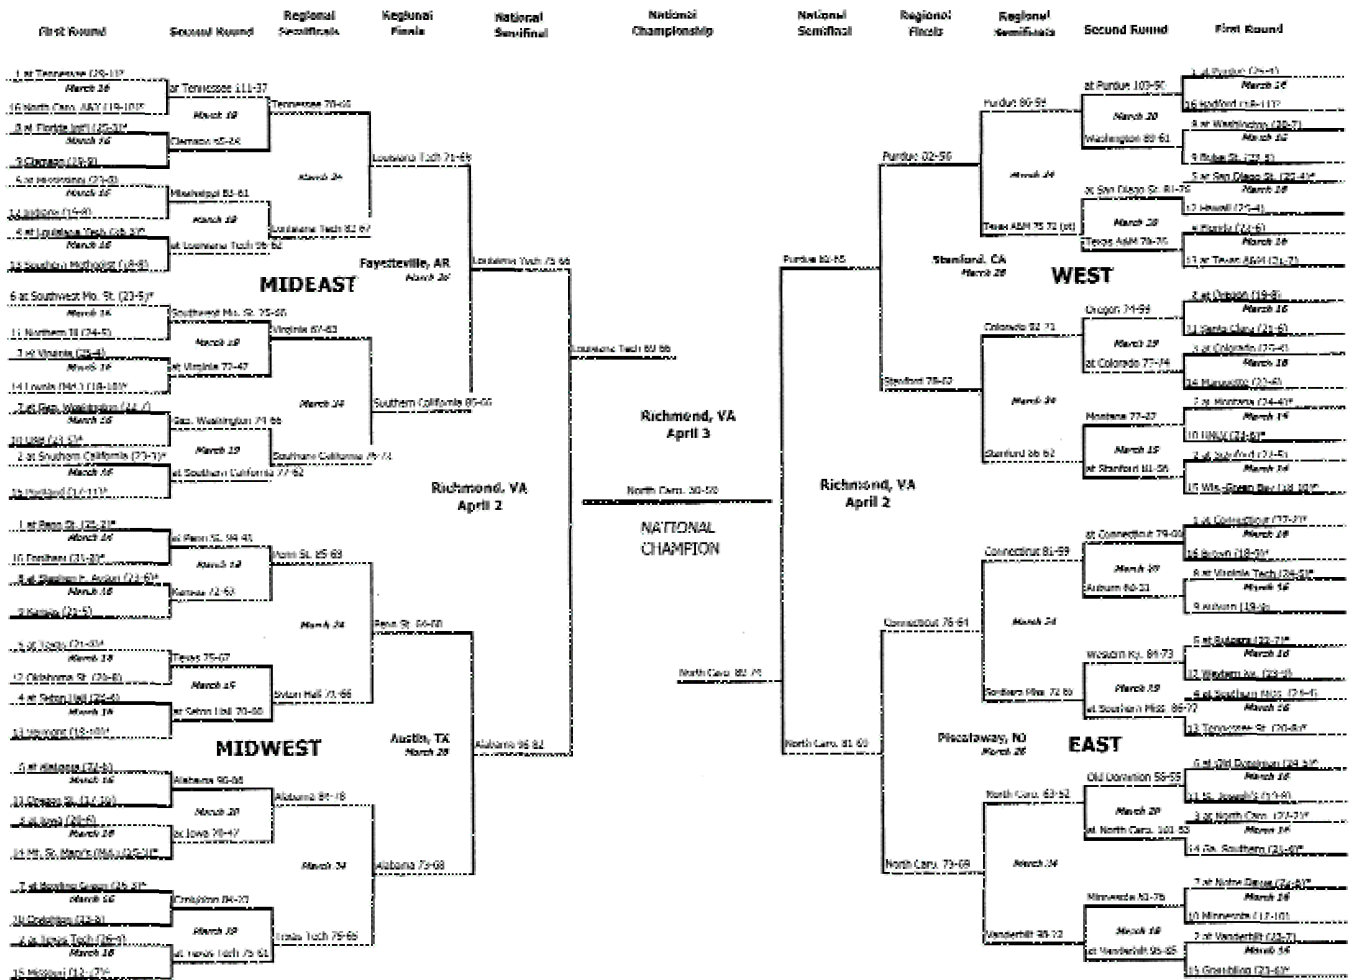

“When I was recruited out of high school, the team had only won a few conference games the year before I attended. UNC was not the powerhouse of today. In just a short three-year span, Coach Hatchell took that team from last in the conference (or close to it) to National Champions. It brings tears to my eyes to relive that moment. As each player, each coach, and each manager knows, it was a journey. A journey that started years earlier. A journey that ended in a special moment for each of us. It was not an easy season nor an easy journey. “We fought for every opportunity that was afforded us. But what meant the most for each of us was that we truly believed – believed in ourselves, believed in our coaches, believed in our university. We believed it was our turn.

“This team holds a bond to one another that no one can ever break. No matter the miles between us, the months between phone calls, or the years between visits, we are still connected by a great moment in time.”

– Stephanie Lawrence Yelton (Junior on the '94 team)

The 1994 Title Team: 10 Years Later

A Gathering of Tar Heel Champions

At An Evening With Champions, a Rams Club gathering in Nags Head, N.C., in September, UNC women's basketball coach Sylvia Hatchell was just one of numerous attendees sporting Carolina NCAA basketball championship rings. Present were representatives of every UNC national championship basketball team except the 1924 men's squad.

The UNC program celebrated the 10-year anniversary of the 1994 NCAA Championship with a gala banquet and ceremony on Feb. 28, 2004. The players, coaches and staff from the title team enjoyed catching up and reliving old memories during the evening event and at the Carolina game the next day, when the former players were introduced at halftime and UNC beat Virginia 70-64.

All but one player from the title team was in attendance for the weekend's activities. Sylvia Crawley could not be there because she was playing professional basketball in Korea.

The University of North Carolina's strong women's basketball tradition dates back to 1930, when UNC fielded its first team. The student newspaper, The Daily Tar Heel, reported that a group of women using the moniker "Tar Heettes" played basketball games against high school teams from Greensboro and Chapel Hill.

Three years later, in March of 1933, Carolina played its first inter-collegiate game. Gladys Beard, director of women's physical education, combined teams from Phi Beta Phi and Chi Omega sororities with an already-existing freshman squad to play Campbell College. Campbell won that contest 36-12.

The first official UNC women's basketball varsity team was established in 1971 and competed as part of the Department of Physical Education until 1974, when basketball and seven other women's sports came under the direction of the UNC athletic department. Angela Lumpkin coached the 1974-75 Tar Heel squad to a 15-3 overall record and sixth place in the National Women's Invitational Tournament. Tar Heel senior Marsha Mann earned NWIT All-America honors, becoming the first in an ever-lengthening string of UNC All-America picks.

In 1975, Carolina awarded its first women's basketball scholarship to Cathy Shoemaker, who would go on to be a three-time AIAW All-State selection. During Shoemaker's freshman season, the Tar Heels recorded another first, their premier television appearance. On Jan. 26, 1976, local public station WUNC broadcast NC State's 68-58 win in Raleigh.

Lumpkin completed her three-year tenure with a 39-26 record and Jennifer Alley took over as coach prior to the 1977-78 season. In Alley's nine seasons as coach, Carolina never had a losing season and surpassed 20 wins five times.

The Tar Heels won their first Atlantic Coast Conference title in 1984 and only once in Alley's Carolina career did they fail to advance at least as far as the tournament semifinals. Tresa Brown, who led the Tar Heels to that first conference championship, earned MVP honors at the '84 ACC Tournament. That season, she also became Carolina's first ACC Player of the Year and Kodak All-America selection. Other key members of that league championship team were ACC Rookie of the Year Dawn Royster and Pam Leake, who would go on to earn ACC Player of the Year honors in 1985 and '86. Leake was a Kodak All-America selection in 1986.

The program struggled through a few less-successful seasons in the late 1980s, but current head coach Sylvia Hatchell brought Carolina back into the national spotlight in the 1990s. The rebuilding process culminated in the Tar Heels winning the 1994 NCAA Championship, the first ever by an ACC school. Carolina claimed the title with a 60-59 win over Louisiana Tech on April 3 in Richmond, Va. Charlotte Smith's buzzer-beating three-pointer gave UNC the margin of victory and helped earn her Final Four Most Outstanding Player hon-

UNC posted a 33-2 record that season, the best in college basketball, and won the ACC Championship en route to the national title. Tonya Sampson, a senior in 1994, earned Kodak All-America honors and finished her UNC career with 2,143 points, then the most in the program's history.

Smith, a junior on the championship squad, completed her UNC career in 1995 as the program's most decorated player to date. A consensus first-team All-America as a senior and a finalist for the Naismith Award, she became only the third woman in ACC history to compile 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds in her career. She was named National Player of the Year by ESPN and is the only Tar Heel women's basketball player to have had her jersey, number 23, retired.

In the five-season span from 1994 to 1998, UNC won four ACC Tournament crowns and boasted four tournament MVPs: Smith in 1994 and '95, Marion Jones in 1997 and Tracy Reid in 1998. In 1997, Carolina finished 15-1 in league play to add the regular-season title to the team's list of accomplishments. That season, Hatchell was named ACC Coach of the Year.

Reid earned Kodak All-America and ACC Player of the Year honors in 1997 and '98, her junior and senior seasons. As a senior, she set a school record with 42 points in a game against Virginia and finished her career as the program's all-time scoring leader with 2,220 points.

The Tar Heels went seven years between conference titles, but reached the championship game five times in the intervening six seasons. Nikki Teasley, who was named to the All-ACC Tournament first team in each year of her career, was the tournament MVP in 2000.

UNC won its sixth ACC Championship in 2005, beating Duke 88-67 in the title game as sophomore Ivory Latta earned tournament MVP honors. The North Carolina program ranks second in conference titles won, behind only Maryland, which has eight.

The Tar Heels reached the NCAA Tournament Elite Eight in 2005, marking the third time in program history that the team had reached that point. UNC has made a total of 17 appearances in the NCAA Tournament, 12 in the past 14 years. Carolina has reached the Sweet 16 in nine of the past 13 years.

Against Georgia Tech on Feb. 13, 2000, the Tar Heels earned the 500th victory in the history of UNC's varsity program. The victory on Jan. 31, 2002, at Maryland was Carolina's 200th ACC win. UNC finished the 2004-05 with exactly 600 total wins. The Tar Heels reached that landmark with the win over NC State in the ACC Tournament semifinal game.

On Feb. 4, 2005, UNC beat Clemson at home to give Hatchell her 400th win as coach of the Tar Heels. With a career record of 684-266, she ranks fourth among active coaches in career victory and is poised to reach the 700-wins mark. She was inducted into the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame in June of 2004.

Retired and Honored Jerseys at UNC

On Oct. 4, 1994, the Athletic Council of the University of North Carolina adopted a set of criteria for honoring the jerseys of women's basketball players. In order to have her jersey honored and hung in the Carmichael Auditorium rafters, a player must have been a member of a first-team All-America squad, been a member of an Olympic team as an undergraduate or been selected by the coaches as MVP of a national championship team. Under these guidelines, the UNC women's basketball program announced the first five honored jerseys in a ceremony on Feb. 5, 1995. They belong to Tresa Brown, Pam Leake, Marsha Mann, Bernadette McGlade and Tonya Sampson. On Feb. 27, 2000, Carolina honored three more, belonging to Sylvia Crawley, Marion Jones and Tracy Reid.

The University's criteria for retiring a jersey, which applies to all UNC varsity athletes, requires a player to be named national player of the year in his or her sport. Only one Tar Heel women's basketball jersey number has been retired. That number is 23, last worn in 1995 by Charlotte Smith. Her jersey was retired on Feb. 24, 1996.

Charlotte Smith #23

The starting forward for the 1994 NCAA Championship team, Charlotte Smith was ESPN's National Player of the Year for the 1993-94 season.

Smith was named the Most Outstanding Player of the 1994 NCAA Tournament after hitting one of the most dramatic shots in collegiate basketball history. With 0:00.7 left in regulation of the '94 NCAA title game and UNC trailing Louisiana Tech 59-57, Smith drilled the championship-winning three-point basket. She also pulled down a career-high 23 rebounds in that game setting an NCAA Championship game record and tying the NCAA Tournament record.

As a freshman in 1992 she was named the ACC Rookie of the Year. Smith was named All-ACC and ACC Tournament MVP in both her junior and senior seasons.

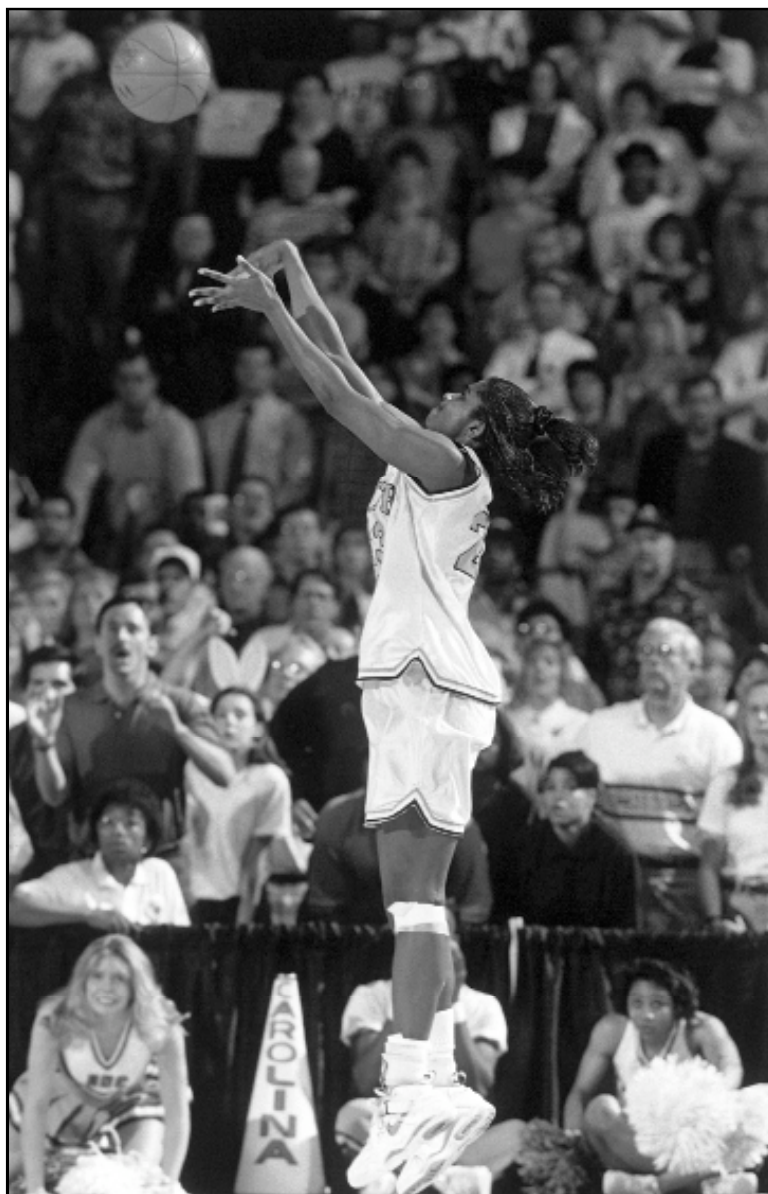

A consensus first-team All-America and Naismith Award finalist as a senior in 1994-95, Smith led the ACC in scoring and rebounding, averaging 19.6 points and 10.7 boards per game. She totaled 21 double-doubles in Carolina's 35 games, including a 10-game streak. As a four-year starter for the Tar Heels, she led Carolina in rebounding every year of her career.

On Dec. 4, 1994, against North Carolina A&T State, she became the second woman in collegiate basketball history to dunk in a game.

Smith was the first Tar Heel woman and the third women's player in ACC history to record 2,000 career points and 1,000 career rebounds. Her career total of 2,094 points ranks third in UNC history and eighth in the ACC. Her 1,200 rebounds rank second at UNC and fourth in the ACC.

In addition to her ESPY as Women's Basketball Player of the Year, she received an ESPY for Most Outstanding College Basketball Player of the Year. Smith's honors were given at the 1995 ESPY Awards, recognizing her play in the 1993-94 season.

Smith's Honors: 1995 ESPY Award as ESPN Player of the Year (recognized for 1993-94 season) • First-team All-America by Kodak, The Associate Press and the U.S. Basketball Writers Association in 1995 • Final Four MVP in 1994 • ACC Tournament MVP in 1994 and 1995 • All-ACC and All-ACC Tournament in 1994 and 1995 • ACC Rookie of the Year in 1992 • Third in scoring at UNC with 2,094 career points • Second in rebounding at UNC with 1,200 in her career

Carolina's Honored Jerseys

Marsha Mann • 1972-75

#44 • Marsha Mann

Marsha Mann was Carolina's first women's basketball All-America selection, by the National Women's Invitational Tournament in 1975.

Her senior season, 1974-75, was the first year in which the women's basketball team fell under the direction of the UNC athletic department. Mann paced the team in both scoring (17.0 points per game) and rebounding (9.8 per game) and led the Tar Heels to the NWIT in Amarillo, Texas. Under coach Angela Lumpkin, UNC went 1-2 there to finish the season 15-3.

Mann also competed for the United States team that won a silver medal at the 1973 World University Games.

Bernadette McGlade • 1977-80

#14 • Bernadette McGlade

Bernadette McGlade, Carolina's career leader in rebounds, was a National Women's Invitational Tournament All-America selection in 1980. She led the Tar Heels in rebounding in all four seasons she played for Carolina and finished with a school-record total of 1,251. Her career average of 10.3 rebounds per game is the best in UNC history.

#24 • Tresa Brown

In 1984, Tresa Brown became the first UNC player to earn ACC Player of the Year honors. She also earned Kodak All-America honors that season after helping the Tar Heels to a 24-8 record and the school's first conference championship. Brown, who was MVP in scoring (20.8 points), field goal percentage (56.1) and free throw percentage (81.6) that season, her senior year. She also earned All-ACC honors.

Brown is UNC's career leader in field goal percentage (54.7) and ranks fifth on Carolina's career scoring chart with 1,931 points. She also is among the school's top 10 in career scoring average, total rebounds, rebounding average, free throw percentage and blocked shots.

#20 • Pam Leake

Pam Leake was a Kodak All-America selection in 1986 when she led the Tar Heels in scoring with 22.4 points per game, the highest season scoring average in school history. With 2,001 career points, she ranks fourth on UNC's career scoring list.

She earned ACC Player of the Year honors in 1985 and '86 and is one of only six players to have been so named twice in their careers.

Leake holds Carolina's career mark for steals (401) and ranks second in assists (545). Her career scoring average of 16.14 ranks sixth on the school's all-time chart and she is also among the top 10 in field goal percentage and free throw percentage.

#34 • Tonya Sampson

As a senior, Tonya Sampson earned Kodak All-America honors while leading the Tar Heels to the 1994 NCAA Championship. She paced the team in scoring in each of her four years, averaging a career-best 21 points per game in 1992-93. She graduated as Carolina's all-time leading scorer with 2,143 points, a total that was surpassed in 1998 by Tracy Reid.

Pam Leake • 1983-86

Sampson was a member of the ACC's All-Freshman team in 1991, then earned All-ACC honors as a sophomore, junior and senior. She also earned All-ACC Tournament honors in 1994.

Sampson ranks in UNC's career top 10 in points, scoring average, total rebounds, rebounding average, free throw percentage, assists and steals.

#00 • Sylvia Crawley

Sylvia Crawley was the starting center on the 1994 NCAA Championship team, averaging 13.6 points and 5.2 rebounds that year as a senior. She was also a co-captain for that team and selected by the coaches as its MVP.

As a senior, she earned All-ACC Tournament honors as UNC won the conference title. En route to the NCAA championship, she was named to the East Region All-Tournament team after scoring a career-high 22 points against Vanderbilt in the semifinal. She ranks fourth on UNC's career blocks chart with 123 and led the team with 40 in 1994.

Crawley was an alternate on the U.S. Olympic team in 1996.

#20 • Marion Jones

Marion Jones made an instant impact on the UNC program, helping the team to an NCAA championship as a freshman point guard. She averaged 14.1 points that season and in 1995 became the first Carolina sophomore to reach the 1,000-point mark.

Jones was 9-0 in Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament play as a member of championship teams in 1994, '95 and '97. She was an All-ACC pick in 1995 and '97, and earned ACC Tournament MVP and All-America (Basketball America) honors in 1997.

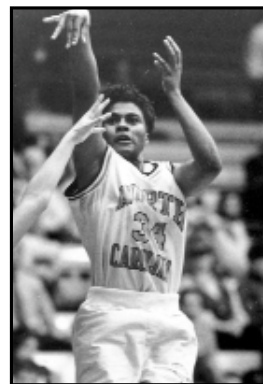

Despite playing just three seasons, she ranks 11th all-time in scoring at UNC with 1,716 career points. She ranks third in career scoring average (16.8), third in field goal percentage (53.0), third in steals (334) and sixth in assists (403).

#00 • Tracy Reid

The all-time leading scorer in Tar Heel history, Tracy Reid amassed 2,200 points during her career. She was selected as the ACC Player of the Year in her junior and senior seasons and as a senior was named All-America by the Associated Press, the USBWA and Kodak/WBCA.

Reid earned All-ACC honors in 1996, '97 and '98 after leading the conference in scoring in all three of those years. She was voted to the All-ACC Tournament team in 1997 and '98.

In addition to leading the program in points scored, Reid boasts the highest career scoring average (18.2), the fourth-highest field goal percentage (52.8) and the fourth-highest rebounds total (1,065). She and Charlotte Smith are the only UNC players to total more than 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds in their careers.

Tonya Sampson • 1991-94

Sylvia Crawley • 1991-94

Marion Jones • 1994-95, '97

Tracy Reid • 1995-98
