2009-2010 USC Outlook

USC men's golf has been among the top teams in the nation for the past three years, finishing a close third at the NCAA Championships in 2008 and reaching the quarterfinals of the 2009 NCAA Championships match play final.

In 2010, however, the squad got a face lift with a roster that featured four freshmen and a sophomore with only three juniors and no seniors.

Fourth-year head coach Chris Zambri said goodbye to three All-Americans in 2009 – Tom Glissmeyer, Jamie Lovemark and Tim Sluiter. That trio, along with current junior and 2009 Co-Pac-10 Player of the Year Matt Giles and current sophomore Steve Lim, helped guide the Trojans last year to their third consecutive NCAA Championships appearance.

The Trojans, who won two 2008-2009 events, had to overcome long odds in the postseason when Lovemark, a two-time All-American first teamer in 2007 and 2008, was injured in the NCAA Championships West Region. Playing with only four players in the final round, USC rallied to secure a fifth-place finish and a spot into the NCAA final.

Playing without Lovemark, USC struggled in the opening round of the NCAA Championships, tying for 22nd out of 30 teams. Troy was sitting 17 strokes out of first and 11 shots behind the top 8, the cutoff to advance to the match play final. The tough times continued in the second round with a 12-over front 9 but, after a long rain delay, the Trojans found their groove. A combined 15-under on the back 9 of the second round set up a final round in which USC carded a combined 5-under, best in the field, and good for third place overall and a spot in the match play final. USC's run came to an end in match play where it fell in a close match to Michigan, 3-2.

Lovemark and Sluiter, a junior and a sophomore last year, respectively, turned pro while Glissmeyer graduated. The trio left the Trojans with a big void in the lineup.

Giles' steady presence as USC's top returning player certainly softens the loss of the others. A two-time All-American, Giles returns as one of the top golfers in the NCAA. Joining him as returners are Lim, redshirt junior Bo DeHuff and junior Daniel Park.

Filling out the rest of the roster, however, is one of the top freshman classes in the country. New to the team are freshmen T.J. Vogel from Cooper City, Fla., Martin Trainer from Palo Alto, Calif., Sam Smith from Turlock, Calif., and Stewart Hagestad from Newport Beach, Calif.

Giles came back to USC following an excellent sophomore season that saw him earn GCAA Ping All-American first team and GCAA PING All-Pacific Region honors. He was among 20 players named to the 2009 All-Nicklaus Team and was a semifinalist for the 2009 Ben Hogan Award. Giles spent much of the season as Golfweek.com's top-ranked collegiate player thanks to seven top 7 finishes and nine in the top 11. USC's leader in stroke average (71.35) and rounds in the 60s (10), he was also named to the Golf Australia national team. He was top 7 in the first five events of the season and led USC at the 2008 NCAA West Regional with a 7-under 209, including a first-round 65.

Lim is the other chief returning contributor for the Trojans. He had a strong freshman campaign, working his way into the Trojan lineup and playing well in the postseason. In nine outings with the Trojans, he had four top 20 finishes, highlighted by his tie for eighth at the 2009 USC Collegiate Invitational (when he was playing as an individual). He finished the event at 1-under 212 (71-71-70). His efforts at the 2009 NCAA West Regional were especially important, where he fired a season-best 66 in the final round to help USC qualify for the NCAA final by one stroke. He finished 17th at the regional at 4-under 212 (72-74-66). In the match play portion of the 2009 NCAA Championships, Lim won his head-to-head match against Michigan's Bill Rankin, 4&3. He finished with three rounds in the 60s.

Juniors DeHuff and Park both saw action as sophomores last year as well. DeHuff played in six tournaments, including the 2009 Pac-10 Championships, where he tied for 49th. His final-round 72 was among his best on the season and counted toward USC's total that round. He tied for 14th at the Bill Cullum Invitational and earned 2009 Pac-10 All-Academic honorable mention honors. Park played in two tying for 41st at the Bill Cullum Invitational and tying for 57th at the USC Collegiate Invitational.

Vogel prepped at Heritage High in Cooper City, Fla., where he was the No. 2 ranked prep golfer in the 2008-09 class. Not long before he enrolled at USC, he won a pair of major junior events, claiming titles at the 2009 Rolex Tournament of Champions and the 2009 Junior PGA Championship. He won the Rolex in a playoff and won the Junior PGA by two strokes. Vogel also represented the U.S. at the Toyota Junior Golf World Cup, helping America to second place while finishing seventh individually.

Trainer prepped at Gunn High in Palo Alto, Calif. He qualified for four USGA events during his high school career, including the U.S. Junior twice (2007, 2008) as well as the 2007 U.S. Public Links and the 2007 U.S. Amateur. Martin also qualified for and made match play in the 2008 California State Amateur and just missed qualifying for the 2008 U.S. Open.

Smith prepped at Turlock (Calif.) High, where he put together a strong junior career and was the No. 1 ranked 2008-2009 prep golfer in California. Smith was a four-time Central California Conference MVP and champion and held an under par average throughout his high school-playing career. In 2008, he tied for fifth at the CIF State Championships and won the 2007 NCGA Junior Championship.

Hagestad prepped at the International Junior Golf Academy in Hilton Head Island, S.C. Among his highlights during his prep career was winning the 2009 Scott Robertson Memorial at the Roanoke C.C. and being a member of the 2009 West Coast Canon Cup Team member.

Chris Zambri

Head Coach • 4th Year

- 2008 GCAA/Pacific Region/Pac-10 Coach of the Year
- 2007 Pac-10 Champions
- Winner of nine tournaments to date
- 10 individual tournament wins to date

Chris Zambri, a former USC All-Pac-10 performer and longtime Nationwide Tour veteran, is in his fourth year as USC's men's golf head coach.

In a short amount of time, Zambri has established himself as among the top coaches and best coaches in the nation and has taken his team to the NCAA Championships final in his first three years. In the 2008-2009 season, Zambri directed a squad that featured three All-Americans in Matt Giles, Tom Glissmeyer and Tim Sluiter. Giles was also the 2009 Pac-10 Player of the Year. The Trojans, who won two tournaments on the year, advanced past the NCAA Championships strokeplay stage into the eight-team match-play competition before falling in the quarterfinals.

After a highly successful 2007-2008 season, Zambri was named the 2008 GCAA National, the Pacific Region and the Pac-10 Coach of the Year. The honors came on the heels of a stellar campaign that saw USC finish just three strokes short of winning its first-ever NCAA title. As it was, USC finished third at the NCAA Championships (something Troy hadn't done since 1975). USC won four tournaments on the season (all within its final seven events), including its first ever NCAA Regional championship. Troy also tied for first at the Pac-10 Championships (but fell in a playoff). Sophomores Jamie Lovemark and Rory Hie were tabbed as All-American first teamers while junior Tom Glissmeyer and freshmen Tim Sluiter and Matthew Giles all earned All-American honorable mention honors. It was the first time in school history USC featured five All-Americans. Lovemark and Hie also marked the first time USC had two All-American first teamers in one season.

In his first season as head coach, Zambri guided USC to an appearance in the 2007 NCAA Championships and the Trojans' 18th Pac-10 team title.

At the NCAA Championships, Lovemark, then a freshman, became Troy's fourth NCAA individual champion. Lovemark earned the Arnold Palmer (national championship individual medalist), Jack Nicklaus (national player of the year) and Phil Mickelson (nation's outstanding freshman) Awards and was tabbed a Ping All-American first teamer. Lovemark earlier became USC's 20th Pac-10 individual champion while four other Trojans finished in the top 10 en route to the team crown. Lovemark was named Pac-10 Co-Golfer and Freshman of the Year honors while fellow freshman Rory Hie was tabbed a Pac-10 second teamer. On the season, the Trojans posted 12 top 5 finishes and six in the top 2.

Zambri, 38, played six years on the Nationwide Tour and was an active teaching professional when he was not competing.

A 1993 USC graduate who played for the Trojans from 1989 to 1993, Zambri played six seasons on the Nationwide Tour between 1997 and 2004. He finished as high as 19th on the circuit's money list in 1998, posting two second-place finishes that year. He competed in four PGA Tour events as well as the 1995 and 1999 U.S. Opens. As a Trojan, he was a two-time All-Pac-10 second team selection in 1991 and 1993.

"This is the opportunity of a lifetime," said Zambri. "I look forward to not only bringing championships to USC, but to influencing the young people on the team in positive ways on and off the golf course."

Zambri is married to Kim Zambri and they have three children: Wyatt, 11, Joseph, 7, and Laney, 5.

SCHUETTE ON ZAMBRI:

"Coach Zambri has already made an impact on our team and the players' games. His experiences in tournament competition has helped him become an outstanding coach. He is passionate about helping our players improve and having USC at the top of the leader board. He has focused on recruiting and coaching in a way that will lead to developing champions and championships for Trojan golf."

Josh Brewer

Assistant Coach • Second Year

Josh Brewer, who owns more than a decade of collegiate golf experience as a successful player, instructor and recruiter, is in his second year as a USC men's and women's golf assistant coach.

Brewer came to USC after spending the previous six seasons (2003-08) as an assistant men's golf coach at his alma mater, Indiana.

"Josh has a wide array of competitive, coaching and recruiting experience at the Division I level," Schuette said. "His experience and commitment will immediately contribute to our mission of developing champions and championships.

"Now that NCAA rules allow us to have two coaches recruiting and coaching simultaneously, he will complete our staff of four coaches in a combined program. I am confident Josh will prove to be a tremendous asset to our men's and women's golf teams."

In his short time at USC, Brewer has helped guide three women's and three men's All-Americans as well as a men's and women's Pac-10 Player of the Year and a men's and women's Pac-10 Freshman of the Year.

During Brewer's six years with the Hoosiers, Indiana made four trips to the NCAA Championships (2004-06, 2008). Its berth in the NCAA Finals this past season was its first since 1996.

Also during Brewer's tenure at Indiana, the Hoosiers won 11 team titles and claimed a runner-up finish at the 2005 Big Ten Championships. He helped guide Jorge Campillo and Jeff Overton to Big Ten Championships individual titles and Big Ten Player of the Year and All-American honors in 2008 and 2005, respectively. Campillo tied for second at the 2008 NCAA Championships while Overton has been a PGA Tour member since 2006.

Brewer played four years at Indiana (1995-98), helping the Hoosiers reach the 1996 NCAA Finals, the 1997 NCAA Regionals and the 1998 Big Ten Championship crown. He was a two-time All-American Scholar Team selection (1997-98) and a three-year Academic All-Big-Ten honoree (1996-98).

The Hoosier-state native graduated from Indiana in 1998 with a degree in Business Management. Following graduation, he erased a nine-shot deficit to win the Indiana Amateur Championship that year and then began a three-year stint as a financial advisor before beginning his career as a coach. He also recently completed a Master's of Kinesiology from Indiana.

Born Sept. 17, 1975, Brewer is married to the former Selena Of-fredo and they reside in Long Beach.

Kurt Schuette

USC DIRECTOR OF GOLF • 16TH SEASON

2001 Pac-10 Coach of the Year • Winner of Three Pac-10 Championships

19-time NCAA qualifier (15 NCAA finals with teams or individuals)

The 2009-2010 season is Kurt Schuette's 16th season at USC. He began his career at USC as the men's team head coach and was quickly promoted to Director of Golf to oversee the men's and women's teams. It is with great ambition and purpose that Schuette took the new position. From the beginning, his goal has been for Trojan Golf to be the program by which all others are measured. Each year both teams have steadily made progress towards this goal.

In 2009, the men's and women's golf programs were among the top in the nation for the second year in a row. The women's squad finished third at the NCAA Championships after fighting for the title all tournament and Jennifer Song, Lizette Salas and Belén Mozo all earned All-American honors. The men's squad featured three All-Americans in Matt Giles, Tom Glissmeyer and Tim Sluiter. The Trojans advanced past the NCAA Championships strokeplay stage into the eight-team match-play competition before falling in the quarterfinals.

The 2008 season was perhaps the finest combined men's and women's campaigns in school history. The women's team won its second NCAA title, its third consecutive NCAA Regional title, its first Pac-10 title in almost two decades and featured five All-Americans (Mozo, Dewi Claire Schreefel, Paola Moreno, Salas and Stefanie Endrasser). Moreno also won the individual Pac-10 title while USC won its final four events of the season.

The men's squad came within three strokes of winning its first-ever NCAA title. As it was, USC finished third at the NCAA Championships (something USC hadn't done since 1975). USC won four tournaments on the season (all within its final seven events), including its first ever NCAA Regional championship. Troy also tied for first at the Pac-10 Championships (but fell in a playoff). Sophomores Jamie Lovemark and Rory Hie were tabbed as All-American first teamers while Glissmeyer, Sluiter and Giles all earned All-American honorable mention honors. It was the first time in school history USC featured five All-Americans. Lovemark and Hie also marked the first time USC had two All-American first teamers in one season.

In 2007, the Trojans returned to the NCAA Championships final for the fourth time in the past five years, enjoying NCAA postseason action for the 18th year in a row. Lovemark, as a freshman, became USC's third NCAA Championship individual title winner and also led USC to its 18th Pac-10 Championship while winning the conference individual crown as well.

In 2006, Taylor Wood represented the Trojans at the 2006 NCAA Championships when he finished tied for 27th while competing individually.

In 2005, USC made it to the NCAA Championships for the third straight season. Its sixth-place finish that year was the Trojans' best since taking fifth in 1995.

In 2002, USC won its first back-to-back conference championship since 1972-73. It was yet another milestone in the re-establishment of USC as a national golf power.

The Trojans have been moving up from the moment Schuette came to USC in 1994-95. That year, Schuette directed the USC men's golf team well beyond expectations, all the way to a fifth-place finish at the 1995 NCAA Championships, and he earned District VIII Coach of the Year honors (Pac-10, Big West and WCC).

It was USC's highest national finish in 20 years and the eight strokes that separated USC from the championship matched the closest Troy has ever been to the national title. Then in 1995-96, he led the Trojan men's team to its second consecutive Top 10 finish with a ninth-place showing at the NCAAs. And under his guidance, Brian Hull earned first-team All-American honors. Schuette was also honored by being selected to serve on the NCAA District VIII Advisory Committee.

In 1996-97, Schuette kept the Trojans ranked between No. 3 and No. 7 all year with three All-Americans in the lineup and eventually finished 14th at the NCAAs.

After graduating six players, his young men's teams didn't qualify for the NCAA Finals in 1997-98 or 1998-99 (Jorge Corral did qualify as an individual in '99), but they rebounded nicely in 1999-2000, finishing fourth at the NCAA West Regional to qualify for the NCAA Finals at Opelika, Ala. Although they missed the cut at that tourney, the Trojans showed the mettle once again to compete at the highest levels of collegiate golf.

In 2001 and 2002, Schuette led the Trojans to consecutive Pac-10 titles, while helping coach Hunter Mahan--the 2001 Pac-10 Freshman of the Year--and Kevin Stadler--the 2002 Pac-10 Golfer of the Year--to All-American honors.

Schuette was elevated to Director of Golf at USC in 1996. Under his direction and the hard work of outstanding women's coach Andrea Gaston, the USC women's golf program has also blossomed into one of the top programs in the country. USC has made 12 straight NCAA Championship final appearances, winning the team title in 2003 and 2008, finishing among the top four five of the past seven years and among the top 10 in eight of the past 10 years.

In 2007, junior Paola Moreno earned All-American first team honors while freshman Belén Mozo was tabbed an All-American honorable mention pick.

In 2006, sophomore Dewi Claire Schreefel became USC's third NCAA individual title winner and joined 2006 Women's Golf Honda Award winner Irene Cho as an All-American first team selection. Schreefel was also an All-American honorable mention pick in 2005.

In 2003, the Women of Troy had a magical season, winning the first-ever NCAA team golf title, senior Mikaela Parmlid won the NCAA individual title, while Cho was an honorable mention All-American selection.

In 2002, the Women of Troy placed 14th at the NCAAs and both Parmlid and Becky Lucidi were named to All-American teams. In back to back summers, Candie Kung won the U.S. Women's Pub Links and Lucidi won the U.S. Women's Amateur Championship. In 2000-01, the USC women finished seventh again as Kung made All-American for the second season.

In 2000, the Women of Troy finished fourth at the NCAAs and were led by All-American and Pac-10 Champion Kung, then a freshman.

In 1999, the Women of Troy won the NCAA West Regional, then finished seventh at the NCAA Finals. Sophomore Jennifer Rosales placed fourth and was named Collegiate Player of the Year.

The 1998 Women of Troy finished seventh at the NCAA Championships, but the highlight of the season was Rosales, then a freshman, winning USC's first-ever women's NCAA individual title in only her sixth collegiate tournament.

Schuetten has laid a great foundation for Trojan Golf. However, he views it as just that -- a foundation. Schuetten feels that the opportunities for Trojan Golf are limitless, and that both the men's and women's programs will continue to grow stronger every year.

In a recent annual ranking, Golf Digest ranked the USC women's golf team 3rd and the men's golf team 5th in their balanced ranking, which accounted for strength of both the academic and golf programs. Furthermore, USC ranked No. 1 among private universities in the balanced category for men and No. 2 for women. The Trojans have created a standard of excellence both on the golf course and in the classroom.

By maintaining an environment that fosters learning and development for team members and coaches, Trojan Golf will become the program by which all others are measured.

The growth of Trojan Golf during the Kurt Schuetten era:

- Established cornerstone coaching standards for Trojan Golf:
 - * The best interests of our team and our student-athletes are considered first and foremost.
 - * Create a competitive and fun environment in practice and with a national tournament schedule.
 - * Create a culture of learning that is comprehensive in nature and to develop student-athletes into confident decision makers which will allow them to ambitiously pursue their dreams and career objectives.
 - * Create a gameplan to achieve short and long-term goals. Evaluate progress, make necessary adjustments, be persistent with core values and beliefs.
 - * Use experiences to challenge, learn and grow as a person and as a competitor. Be prepared mentally and physically to deal with all challenges.
 - * Operate as a family and team, being respectful, yet determined and steadfast in our goals.
 - * Play a smart, aggressive brand of golf, tailored to each player's individual strengths and work to minimize challenges.
 - * See obstacles as an opportunity to build and improve. There is no challenge too great to conquer when you approach it intelligently and from the best possible perspective.
- Created an on campus practice green, bunker and chipping area for exclusive use by golf team members
- Secured sponsorships which enabled Trojan Golf to purchase memberships for team members at Riviera Country Club and Wilshire Country Club, two of Los Angeles' finest private golf clubs
- Started the Trojan Golf Club (Booster Club)
- Organizes an annual fundraiser, the Trojan Golf Classic
- Developed the 'Coaches Council,' which raises $300,000 or more annually. Schuetten has raised more than $10 million during his tenure at USC.
- Facilitated the growth of the Trojan Golf Fantasy, a tournament in which donors get an opportunity to play with current team members and former USC Golf Team Members who are now competing on LPGA, PGA, and Champions Tours. This event is also fantastic for team members in that they get a tremendous opportunity to talk with and ask questions of the golf professionals.

"We are very serious about elevating both our programs to a championship level," Schuetten said. "Our goal here is to succeed at whatever we do. We are striving to continue to win Pac-10 titles and our first men's team NCAA Championship. We are also proud to say we have recently had success with former players earning both PGA and LPGA Tour cards. All this is part of our mission to become the program by which all others are measured. Our philosophy is to develop smart, aggressive competitors who are confident, independent decision makers."

Schuetten, 48, came to USC after six successful seasons (1988-94) at Pepperdine. During his tenure in Malibu, he led the Waves to four WCC crowns and was the 1993 WCC Coach of the Year and Pepperdine athletic department Coach of the Year. His teams were ranked as high as 16th in the nation and the 1993 team participated in the school's first-ever NCAA Golf Championship. Schuetten recruited four of the five players on the Pepperdine team that won the 1997 NCAA championship.

In 1986 and 1988, Schuetten served as an assistant coach for the Waves, while gaining experience in the private sector, working as an instructor at the Santa Barbara Golf Club and the North Ranch Country Club. In 1994, he was hired as USC head coach and he quickly built the program into not only the top team in Southern California, but a national contender.

One of the greatest benefits of USC is that the relationship with the players goes far beyond their years at USC. Schuetten has graduated the lion's share (over 90%) of his athletes, including one Valedictorian at Pepperdine and he wants to see his players succeed at whatever career path they choose.

He is proud to have former players who have chosen to pursue successful careers as doctors, lawyers, authors, coaches, stock brokers, bankers, professional golfers and even an intelligence agent.

Schuetten attended Santa Barbara City College, where he rapidly progressed, earning All-Western State Conference honors. He earned a scholarship to Pepperdine, serving as captain in 1984 and 1985. Schuetten was an All-West Coast Conference selection in 1985 and graduated in 1986 with a bachelor's degree in communications and marketing.
