1971 In Review

"We enjoyed more success in 1971 than we had expected we might. The primary factors that influenced our success were the small number of injuries – we stayed pretty healthy – and the maturity our experienced kids showed."

And so Chuck Mills analyzed his team's 1971 campaign, capsulizing alot of accomplishment into a few words.

The state collegiate title, a 3-1 record against WAC teams and wins over two conference winning clubs highlighted a fine season.

"Winning that first one (Kansas St.) with a fourth quarter field goal was most important to the entire season," said Mills. "It gave us alot of confidence."

That's how it went for most of the remainder of the season: a confident bunch of U-Staters who, in the words of All-American candidate Tony Adams, "... pulled together 100 percent all the time."

It was a season that saw State reel off wins in the first three games – winning five of the first six – and culminating the year with the first ever Utah collegiate championship title and a whirlwind football tour of Japan.

"As I said, the poise and maturity of the experienced athletes really steadied the team," said Mills. "Offensive poise, of course, is mandatory for continued progress. We had it, and we had some depth, too.

"The development of Tommy Forzani as a receiver added another dimension to our offense, a very important one," continued Mills. "And, in all fairness, some of our proficiency on offense was made possible by a defense that got us the ball 30 times on interceptions alone.

"We had the misfortune of having a few more injuries on the defense than we did offensively. But our cornerbacks stayed healthy for the most part and that was really crucial.

"I'd say we played three poor quarters all year," said Mills, "and if you can maintain consistent play like that you can't be too disappointed with your season."

Mickey Doyle's first collegiate field goal ever – a 43-yarder midway through the final quarter – was the difference in the all-important KSU win to open the season.

The small, but mobile Aggie defense gave the offense time to get untracked and that was all she wrote in the 34-0 win the following week over New Mexico St.

The Ags scored 27 points in the first quarter a week later against Nevada-Las Vegas and then, prematurely, started thinking about Nebraska the following week. UNLV fell, 27-7; Nebraska didn't. The national champion Huskers beat the Ags, 42-6.

Again the following week, the Aggie defense spent most of its time giving the offensive unit good field position and that meant a great deal in USU's 29-7 wagon wheel win over BYU.

Bob Bloom's big block of a PAT kick a week later made him the hero in a rain-drenched 7-6 win over Memphis State in Romney Stadium that ran the Aggie record to 5-1.

After losing a 20-7 lead and, eventually, the game (36-20) to San Diego St., the Utags came off a week of practice in the fieldhouse to beat CSU, 18-17, due mainly to the stylish late game heroics of Tony Adams and a crucial catch by John Strycula during the final drive.

The 31-29 loss to Wyoming marked the greatest quarterback battle ever on Utah college soil as Adams hit 27 of 46 passes for 3 TDs and 381 yards and outdueled Wyoming's great Gary Fox.

Five school records fell as the Ags forced several Utah errors and scored on three of them for a 21-17 win, Nov. 13.

Adams erased nine more records, the defense intercepted seven passes and Idaho missed a bowl bid in USU's big season-ending win at Moscow, 42-13.

1972 In Review

Utah State's 8-3 season in 1972 (9-2 technically, with a forfeit over Oklahoma) brought to 91 the number of wins the Aggies have chalked up since 1960.

It is, by far, the most of any of Utah's big 4 in that period and, too, the Utags are threatening to retire the "Beehive Boot", the symbol of football supremacy in the state. They have won it both years of its' existence.

1973 was the swan song season for at least three individuals who etched their names into U-State football history: Chuck Mills, "Touchdown" Tony Adams and Tom Forzani.

Mills took his six-year Aggie record (39-22-1) with him to become head coach at Wake Forest University. Only Dick Romney coached longer at USU.

Adams set a ton of records in 1972 – virtually every Aggie passing record that was "settable" – while finishing second in the nation in total offense (268.5 yards a game) and third in passing (18.5 completions a game).

In the 100-plus years of collegiate football, Adams' standing on some of the all-time statistical charts includes: 4th in TD passes and 8th in completions and passing yardage.

Forzani, the third of USU's great Forzani footballers of Calgary, Canada, led the country in pass receiving with 85 catches. He, too, set scores of receiving records.

Another pair of graduating seniors finished high on the national charts. Running back Jerry Hughes was 21st in all-purpose running and Mickey Doyle was 15th in kick-scoring.

Both Adams and Forzani played in the Blue-Gray and Senior Bowl post-season games. Tony co-captained his team in both of those games and Tommy was chosen the outstanding back in the Blue-Gray game.

Senior free safety Phil Shelley also played in Miami's North-South Shrine game.

Nearly 100 Aggie student-athletes have signed contracts with professional teams since the late 1950s and, again following the 1972 season, the pros took a good look at USU prospects.

Those drafted were Adams, Forzani, Shelley and Elton Brown, a defensive tackle. In addition, several other U-Staters will tryout as free agents in the NFL and Canadian leagues.

As seasons go, 1972 provided the old-timers with some good fodder for their memories.

Mills had said pre-season that his '72 bunch could be better than the 8-3 team of '71. In face of a more demanding schedule, history will judge that they were.

By mid-season of '72 the Ags had really hit their stride. Early season wallopings of New Mexico State and BYU indicated it was coming. And the brilliance of their tenacious play in the tough loss to Texas was a good sign.

The frustrating sixth-game loss to Memphis State evened the record at 3-3. But what followed were wins over Wyoming, Idaho and then the NCAA passing records fell in one of USU's most satisfying wins in years: 44-16 over Utah.

Everything from there on was anti-climactic, although USU made it five straight with close calls against Southern Miss and Weber St.
