FACILITIES

THOMPSON-BOLING ARENA AT FOOD CITY CENTER

Thompson-Boling Arena at Food City Center is the third largest on-campus basketball arena in the country and a very tough place for visitors to win. The Lady Vols own a 519-60 (.896) record at the facility through 37 years entering the 2024-25 season.

The venue, located along the Tennessee River and named for B. Ray Thompson and retired UT President Edward J. Boling, debuted during the 1987-88 season. On Aug. 23, 2023, corporate partner Food City added its name via a 10-year rights agreement. The building is 448 feet long and 310 feet wide. It contains more than 411,000 square feet of floor space and more than 17 million cubic feet overall.

Following renovations in 2007, the facility has an official seating capacity of 21,678. As part of a $19 million renovation of the arena prior to the 2007-08 season, 32 luxury suites were added to the existing north balcony along with a loge area just below the suites that includes 166 side court seats. A $3 million center-hung scoreboard, new black seats and several concourse refurbishments also were part of the renovation. The distance from the playing floor to the roof is 120 feet, the equivalent of a 12-story building. The structure contains 142,000 square feet of roof area, which is approximately three and one-quarter acres.

The enormous facility houses the Tennessee women's and men's basketball offices. The UT Ticket Office is located on the Phillip Fulmer Way level on the west end of the building. A continuous-ring concourse encircles the building, permitting entrance to eight restrooms, six concession areas and 32 portals that lead to the arena. The playing floor level provides access to the media room and storage areas as well as the very impressive Larry Pratt Basketball Locker Room Complex and the visitor dressing rooms, constructed from 2017 to 2018.

Since the building opened on Dec. 3, 1987 (the Lady Vols beat Stetson, 102-59), UT women's basketball has enjoyed a number of lengthy home winning streaks. On Dec. 28, 2003, Texas snapped a 24-game run that dated back to the 2001-02 season. A previous streak of 26 consecutive wins in the home confines ended on Jan. 5, 2002, with an 86-72 loss to Connecticut. The Lady Vols broke the NCAA homecourt winning streak record with 69 consecutive victories before Connecticut spoiled the streak with a 59-53 win in game number 70 on Jan. 6, 1996. Tennessee claimed 64 straight home SEC victories before third-ranked LSU snapped the streak with a 72-69 victory - its first ever in Knoxville - on Feb. 9, 2006. The Lady Vols took a 36-game home winning streak into the 2011-12 season before Baylor snapped it at 38 on Nov. 27, 2011.

UT won all 18 contests in Knoxville in 2014-15, setting a school and arena record for most home wins in a season and best record in a season. Coupled with winning its last four home games of the 2013-14 season and the first five in 2015-16, UT strung together 27-consecutive victories before falling to Texas on Nov. 29, 2015.

In 1998-99, the Lady Vols played before the largest average home crowd in the history of women's collegiate basketball, as 16,565 spectators per game clicked through the turnstiles. In all, 231,915 fans viewed home games in Knoxville. During the 1997-98 season, Tennessee set several collegiate attendance records. On Jan. 3, 1998, the Lady Vols entertained a new women's collegiate record 24,597 fans for the game with Connecticut. A month later, the first advance sell-out in UT women's basketball history occurred when the Lady Vols were set to meet Old Dominion in Knoxville. For the record, 24,373 fans attended the UT-ODU game.

The all-time attendance mark was reset during the 2001-02 season when 24,611 fans visited the arena for a #1/#2 clash between UT and Connecticut. It was again reset on Jan. 7, 2006, when the Huskies came to Knoxville in front of 24,653 spectators. The women's basketball attendance mark was established at the 2002 NCAA Final Four when 29,619 people filled the Alamodome in San Antonio, Texas, for the championship game.

The Lady Vols started the record-breaking trend in women's collegiate basketball attendance in 1987. That season, the Lady Vols broke the (then) world record for single game attendance at a women's basketball game with 24,563 at the Tennessee versus Texas game on Dec. 9, 1987. Three years later, UT established new NCAA Women's Final Four attendance marks on March 30 and April 1, 1990, with a total paid attendance of 39,490 for the three-game event. The turnstile count of 34,196 (17,601 semis/16,595 finals) also broke all other attendance marks.

In 2013-14, UT led the NCAA in attendance for the 11th-straight season and the 17th time in the last 18 years. The Lady Vols have finished a season No. 1 in average attendance 19 times overall.

STOKELY ATHLETICS CENTER ►

Stokely Athletics Center was home to the Lady Volunteer basketball team from 1976-87. The facility, which still housed UT Athletics offices long after its days of hosting games, was closed for good in December 2012 and demolished during the summer of 2014.

The Stokely Arena, which was encircled by a four-lane Tartan indoor track, seated 12,700, while the building housed the former men's and women's athletics department offices. The building was originally called the UT Armory Field House in 1958 and seated just more than 7,000 spectators. Through the generosity of the late William B. Stokely, Jr., further construction was completed and on Dec. 1, 1966, the facility was renamed to honor the Stokely family.

In 1986, Stokely took on a new look as a wood playing surface replaced the old tartan court. The Horner "Pro King" hardwood was painted with the traditional outline of the state of Tennessee in the center of the floor and the familiar end line markings. The court was special-made for the University by the same manufacturer who supplied the basketball court to the Forum for the 1984 Los Angeles Olympic Games.

Stokely Athletics Center was the site of some historic games for the Lady Vols. The first women's contest played in SAC pitted Tennessee versus Kentucky on Nov. 13, 1976. The Lady Vols not only trounced the Lady Kats, 107-53, but UT's Patricia Roberts tossed in a Field House record 51 points. That mark stands as the Lady Vol record to this day.

Along the way, Tennessee hosted the great gold medalist USSR Olympic Team in 1979, the USA All-Star team in 1979 and the first Southeastern Conference Championships in 1980.

The last Lady Vol game in Stokely, before moving to Thompson-Boling Arena, was a 77-61 win over Auburn in the finals of the NCAA Mid-east Regionals on March 21, 1987. A week later, the Lady Vols returned to Stokely to celebrate UT's first NCAA basketball title with thousands of fans in attendance.

Although no formal attendance figures were kept prior to 1982, Tennessee most-assuredly was among the nation's elite in fan support.

ALUMNI GYM ►

Constructed in the 1930's, Alumni Gym was the first real home to the inaugural Lady Vol team in 1974, which was coached by Pat Summitt. The court in the tiny arena (seating 3,000) was the centerpiece of an encircling tri-balcony seating arrangement.

PRATT PAVILION

In October 2006, Tennessee Athletics had a ground-breaking ceremony to officially recognize construction on the Pratt Pavilion, the state-of-the-art basketball practice facility named in UT alumnus Larry F. Pratt's honor for his $5 million lead gift to the basketball programs. The Pratt Pavilion, which opened in the fall of 2007, houses two full-size gymnasiums, one each for the men's and women's basketball teams, as well as space for an athletic training room, weight room, film study room and a recruiting lounge.

Directly connected to Thompson-Boling Arena at Food City Center, Pratt Pavilion has convenient ground level parking. The 70,000-square-foot structure has four short courts within each of the two full-size courts. The facility is equipped with secured practice facilities, spacious locker rooms and recruiting rooms as well. Balconies at the south side of the building overlook the practice courts.

Pratt Pavilion had a total project cost of $16 million, funded entirely through private gifts. Lead donor Pratt's commitment in April 2006, coupled with leadership gifts from other campaign donors, including Jim Haslam, Brenda Lawson and Robbie Nutt, enabled UT to move forward with the project.

This was not Pratt's first donation. In the 1990s he honored his father Floyd by creating an endowed scholarship in his name as a member of the Nathan Dougherty Society. He also was recognized at the Tennessee vs. Georgia football game in 2003 for a $1 million donation to the STEP-UP Campaign. Pratt, an Athens, Tenn., native, currently resides in McLean, Va. He graduated from the University of Tennessee in 1972 from the UT College of Business and serves as president and CEO of First Savings Mortgage Corporation, the largest private mortgage banker in Washington D.C.
