Wake Forest Basketball History

■ The Demon Deacons celebrate their 100th season in 2005-06

Few persons stirred the sport of basketball in North Carolina as much as Horace Albert "Bones" McKinney.

His coaching skills were highly respected. His sideline antics were legendary. His warmth and regard for his fellow-man were without equal.

From his playing days at Durham High School, NC State and North Carolina, to his career as a coach at Wake Forest, to his familiar place behind the microphone of ACC basketball telecasts, McKinney lived his life in basketball before audiences everywhere.

Certainly he is known for leading the Southern Conference in scoring while at NC State, and for helping UNC to the NCAA finals in 1946, but it was as head coach of the Deacons that Bones became a regional hero and nationally regarded personality.

A seminary student in 1951-52, Bones was added to the Wake Forest basketball staff by coach Murray Greason. He sat beside Greason on the Deacon bench for five years and even served as head coach of the Wake Forest golf team.

On March 26, 1957, he replaced Greason as head coach.

Red socks, a seat belt on his chair on the bench, sideline gestures, word games with referees all were part of the Bones McKinney basketball show at Wake Forest. Yet he knew how to motivate young men and teach the game as well.

Much more than a showman, Bones was a winner, raising Demon Deacon basketball to unprecedented heights. His teams captured the 1959 Dixie Classic and played in five consecutive ACC Tournament title games from 1960 through 1964, taking the top prize in 1961 and 1962. That '62 club, of course, advanced to the NCAA Final Four.

Bones retired from his position at Wake Forest in 1965 after compiling a 122-94 record over eight seasons.

The beloved coach died on May 16, 1997 in Raleigh at the age of 78 after suffering a stroke. His magical touch on Wake Forest Basketball, and even the university itself, though, remains very much alive.

Wake Forest's first basketball team in 1906.

Wake Forest participated in the first college basketball game played in the state of North Carolina. The opponent and the result, however, are not clear. Some historical accounts have Wake Forest College losing to Guilford, 26-19, on Feb. 6, 1906. However, the coach of that team, Richard Crozier, remembers the first game coming against Trinity College (now Duke University). In that case, Wake Forest won the first game, 15-5 at the Angier Duke Gymnasium in Durham.

1913-14

A record that remains today, Wake Forest suffered its worst loss -- an 80-16 setback at Virginia.

1916

Ten years after starting basketball at Wake Forest, J.R. Crozier coached one of Wake Forest's first truly successful teams. Captained by Ham Davis, the Deacons put together a sparkling 16-2 record, including a 5-0 mark against future rivals North Carolina, Duke and NC State.

Jan. 20, 1919

The 100th win in the history of the program was a 25-19 victory over the Durham YMCA.

1927

Under first-year Deacon head coach James Baldwin, Wake Forest put together a remarkable 22-3 record -- the most wins ever by a first-year WFU coach.

Feb. 7, 1936

Wake Forest becomes a member of the Southern Conference.

March, 1939

Wake Forest is one of eight teams to play in the very first NCAA Basketball Tournament, losing to Ohio State in the first round.

1944

The only year since 1906 that Wake Forest has not fielded a team came due to World War II.

Hemric was an All-American in the 50s.

March 7, 1953

Wake Forest, behind All-American Dickie Hemric, won the last Southern Conference Tournament before joining the ACC and snapping NC State's run of six consecutive league titles. The Deacons beat 13th-ranked NC State 71-70 in the championship game.

May 8, 1953

Wake Forest becomes a charter member of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Deacon Athletic Director Jim Weaver is selected as the league's first commissioner.

1955

All-American Dickie Hemric was named the ACC Player of the Year for the second straight year -- the first two years of the ACC. He also earned the prestigious honor of ACC Athlete of the Year (for all sports). Hemric remains the all-time leading scorer and rebounder in Wake history.

Feb. 4, 1955

Dickie Hemric grabbed 36 rebounds (still a school record) and the Demon Deacons pummeled Clemson by 55 points, 120-65.

Feb. 19, 1955

Hemric sank 20 free throws -- easily a school record today -- at Duke.

Dec. 20, 1955

Wake Forest sank a remarkable 43 free throws in a non-conference game against Colgate in Charlotte.

Jan. 7, 1956

The Deacons beat rival North Carolina, 76-71, for the 500th win in the history of the program. The win over the Tar Heels marked one of Wake's final games in old Gore Gymnasium.

1956-57

Wake Forest began playing all its home games in Winston-Salem during the 1956-57 season after the campus moved from Wake Forest, NC. That same year, Murray Greason stepped down as head coach after 24 years and a school-best 288 victories. Also in 1957, Jackie Murdock earned first team All-America honors.

Dec. 30, 1959

After consecutive losing seasons, 19th-ranked Wake Forest beat North Carolina 53-50 in the finals of the Dixie Classic, and the Deacons went on to capture the ACC regular season title.

Wake scored on a last-second, length of the floor pass and short jump shot by Lee Foye to force overtime. The Deacs won the game in OT on a layup by seldom-used reserve Phil Perry. The Deacons became the first bottom-seed to win a game in the ACC Tournament.

March, 1991
After failing to make the NCAA Tournament in 1990 for the first time since 1984, Wake Forest made the first of seven consecutive appearances and 14 straight postseason berths in 1991. It's no coincidence that freshman Rodney Rogers came on board that season. He went on to earn ACC Rookie of the Year honors, and two years later was named ACC Player of the Year and All-American.

When Norwood Leroy Todmann came to Wake Forest in the fall of 1966, he was known best for two things. He was a high school teammate of Lew Alcindor and more importantly, he was the first African-American to play varsity basketball at Wake Forest.

At Power Memorial Academy in New York City, Todmann not only played on the same team with Alcindor (later Kareem Abdul-Jabbar), he outscored the future Hall of Famer. When Todmann left Power Memorial, he held the school's single-game and single-season scoring records previously held by Alcindor.

Todmann played on Wake Forest's freshman team in 1966-67 and averaged 23.7 points per game.

For the next three years, Todmann was a standout for coach Jack McCloskey's teams. At 6-foot-6, 180 pounds, Todmann played both guard and forward. He averaged 13.3 points as a sophomore.

In three seasons on the varsity team, Todmann played in 69 games, scored 724 points and grabbed 282 rebounds. He shot a solid 74.0 percent from the free throw line.

Todmann was not only the first African-American player at Wake Forest, he was instrumental in convincing Charlie Davis to come to Winston-Salem. Davis went on to be an All-American at Wake Forest and became the first African-American to earn Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year honors.

The 1969-70 Deacon team featured three African-American players -- Todmann, Davis and Gil McGregor.

Todmann later directed the Athlete-to-Resident program in Winston-Salem in an attempt to help the young people of Winston-Salem from low-income areas.

Muggsy Bogues is Wake's all-time assists, steals leader.

Marvin Francis never scored a basket or threw a touchdown pass, yet few people contributed more to Wake Forest and ACC athletics than the man known simply as "Skeeter."

Francis' love affair with sports began in the late 1920s, watching Wake Forest, Duke, North Carolina and NC State establish heated rivalries. In the early 1930s he sold drinks at Duke's football stadium. In high school, he managed the basketball team and worked as a sportswriter for the Durham Morning Herald.

In 1941, Francis attended Wake Forest College, where he was an intern in the sports information department under Walter "Dynie" Holton. His studies were interrupted, however, from 1942 to 1946 when he served in the U.S. Army during World War II. He returned to the military in 1951, spending 21 months as a B-29 aerial gunnery instructor during the Korean War. While serving in the Army, he married the former Ann Fields, with whom he had one son, Marvin Francis, Jr.

Between military stints, Francis graduated from Wake Forest College in 1948.

In 1954, Francis was assistant sports editor at the Herald, where he covered the formation of the ACC. In 1955 he left the Herald to become Sports Information Director at Wake Forest. He was an integral part in the transition of moving the school's campus from Wake Forest, NC to Winston-Salem.

For the next 37 years, Francis publicized ACC sports, first at Wake Forest for 15 years, followed by a 22-year stint as the first full-time media director of the ACC. He was inducted into the USBWA Hall of Fame (1989), the NC Sports Hall of Fame (1993), and the Wake Forest Hall of Fame (1995).

More than a decade after his retirement from the ACC, Skeeter continued to serve valuable roles for both the Wake Forest and ACC media relations staffs. Skeeter passed away on July 6, 2004.

Deacon Award Winners

Wake Forest has recognized a Most Valuable Player since 1957 when the trio of Jack Murdock, Jack Williams and Ernie Wiggins shared the honor. At that time, the MVP award was named the "Murray Greason Award" in recognition of the school's all-time winningest coach.

Since 1990, the Demon Deacon players voted for both a MVP and a "Murray Greason Award" recipient, the latter to honor the individual who had sacrificed the most to the squad with his determination and season-long efforts. In 1997, Tim Duncan became the first individual to receive both honors in the same year.

In 2002, the Deacon coaching staff also began giving awards for the Most Improved Player, Best Defensive Player, Top Rebounder, Highest Free Throw Percentage and Most Assists.

Dickie Hemric

1954 3-AP
1955 1-NABC; 2-AP, UPI; 4-CV

One of the most dominating players in Wake Forest and Atlantic Coast Conference history, Dickie Hemric led the Deacons from 1952-55. He remains the all-time leading scorer and rebounder at WFU and in the ACC. He won back-to-back conference Player of the Year awards in the ACC's first two years of existence.

In addition, he is one of an elite class of players in NCAA history to score more than 2,000 points (2,587) and grab over 1,000 rebounds (1,802). That career rebound total is the fifth-highest in NCAA history and his four-year totals for free throws (905) and free throw attempts (1,359) are still national records.

After concluding his career at Wake Forest, he was drafted by the Boston Celtics where he played for two seasons. His jersey #24 was the first to be retired by Wake Forest and he was inducted into the WFU Hall of Fame in 1974.

Jackie Murdock

1957 2-CV

Jackie Murdock was an outstanding floor leader on Demon Deacon teams of the mid-50s and one of only two players to ever lead the Atlantic Coast Conference in free throw percentage and field goal accuracy in the same season (1956).

He was named All-America and All-ACC in 1957 after earning second-team all-league recognition the preceding campaign. Accuracy from the stripe was his trademark as evidenced by the 39 straight he made one season. That record stood for two decades until Skip Brown bettered it in 1976.

Following his playing days, he returned to Wake Forest and served as an assistant coach under Bones McKinney. He also filled the role as head coach for a single season in 1966.

He was inducted into the WFU Hall of Fame in 1982, and was honored with the basketball team lounge being named in his honor in 1990.

Len Chappell

1961 1-CV
1962 1-AP, CV, BW; 2-NABC, UPI

The first consensus All-American in Wake Forest basketball history, Len Chappell achieved that honor in 1962 when he led the Deacons to their first and only Final Four.

He was named to the NCAA all-tournament team that season after helping the Deacons to a third-place national finish. That honor followed a second straight selection as ACC Player of the Year in which he became the only player in ACC history to average more than 30 points per game for a season (30.1) in 1962.

A three-time first-team all-conference performer, Chappell ranks third on the all-time Wake Forest scoring list, despite playing only three seasons, and is the school's third-leading all-time rebounder as well.

He went on to play for 10 years in the NBA before returning to Wake Forest for the retirement of his #50 jersey and Hall of Fame induction in 1980.

Charlie Davis

1971 2-CV; 4-NABC

Known simply by Wake Forest fans as "CD," Charlie Davis is one of the most exciting players ever to wear the Old Gold and Black.

His 24.9 points per game average is the best in Deacon history and he stands seventh overall with nearly 2,000 points over three seasons (1,970). He was selected to the All-ACC first-team three consecutive years and was voted the league's Player of the Year as a senior in 1971.

One of his many scoring records that still stands is his 51-point outburst against American University in old Memorial Coliseum in 1969. He also holds the Wake Forest and Atlantic Coast Conference career free throw percentage record of 87.3 percent.

Davis played with Cleveland and Portland during his NBA career, and recently served as athletic director at North Carolina A&T. In addition to having his jersey retired, he was inducted into the Wake Forest Hall of Fame in 1984.

Skip Brown

1977 4-NABC

An exciting four-year starter, Skip Brown was one of the nation's premier shooting guards during his career.

He totaled more than 2,000 points in a Demon Deacon uniform, ranking fifth on the school's all-time list with 2,034. His 846 field goals made, however, ranks first among all Demon Deacons, as does his 43 consecutive free throws made.

In addition to being an outstanding shooter, he was also a playmaker who dished out 579 career assists, second-highest at Wake Forest behind only Muggsy Bogues.

An All-Atlantic Coast Conference first-team selection as both a sophomore (1975) and senior (1977), Brown was also elected to the second team in 1976.

He led the Demon Deacons in scoring, field goal percentage, free throw percentage, steals and assists at least once during his career.

Rod Griffin

1977 1-BW; 3-AP, UPI; 5-NABC
1978 1-CB, BW; 2-NABC; 3-AP; UPI

The term power forward never fit a player better than Rod Griffin, who helped Wake Forest to the NCAA regional finals for the first time in 15 years during the 1977 season.

He was named ACC Player of the Year that season as a junior, then, was a first-team all-league pick again the following year when he obtained a rare double-double as he led the ACC in both scoring and rebounding in 1978. He is one of only two Deacs ever to accomplish that feat (Len Chappell was the other).

During that magical 1977 season, he topped the conference in field goal percentage with a 62.1 mark -- a Wake Forest record that still stands. He was drafted by the NBA Denver Nuggets but enjoyed a successful professional career in Europe.

His jersey #32 is one of nine that has been retired in the history of Wake Forest basketball.

Frank Johnson
1981 2-CV

Frank Johnson rates as not only one of Wake Forest's top all-time players, but one of its most popular as well. Nicknamed "the Smiling Deacon" for his on-the-court personality and natural flair, he was able to achieve a number of impressive milestones.

He currently ranks eighth in career points (1,749), second in steals (204) and sixth in assists (460). All of that was achieved in 120 games and 116 starts, the second-highest total in school history behind only Tim Duncan.

After gaining second team All-ACC honors as a sophomore and junior, he was chosen to the first-unit as a senior (1981). A first-round draft pick by the Washington Bullets later that year, he retired in 1994 after helping the Phoenix Suns win the Western Conference title and reach the NBA Finals.

He was inducted into the Wake Forest Hall of Fame in 1998.

Rodney Rogers
1993 2-AP, NABC, UPI, BW

Perhaps no Deacon ever combined the qualities of power and speed as this hulking superstar who led Wake Forest to three straight NCAA appearances during his career.

Rodney Rogers started as a freshman (1991) and was named ACC Rookie of the Year, receiving 103 of 104 votes, and was a second team All-ACC pick that year. As a sophomore, he joined four seniors on the all-conference first-team, then was the only unanimous all-league selection in 1993 when he topped the ACC in scoring (21.2 ppg).

In 1993, he became the first Deacon to be chosen ACC Player of the Year since Rod Griffin. He ranks 10th on the all-time scoring list and second in field goal percentage.

Selected by the Denver Nuggets in the first round of the 1993 NBA Draft, he was traded to the Los Angeles Clippers following the conclusion of the 1995 season. He has played with the Los Angeles Clippers, Denver Nuggets, Phoenix Suns, Boston Celtics, New Jersey Nets and currently for the New Orleans Hornets. He was inducted into the WFU Sports Hall of Fame in September, 2004.

Randolph Childress
1995 2-AP, NABC, BW; 3-UPI

The 1994-95 Wake Forest basketball season will go down as one of the most exciting in school history and Randolph Childress will be remembered as the main reason why.

His sterling performance in the ACC Tournament, which included the game-winning jumper in overtime to beat North Carolina in the title game, will forever be etched in the memory of all Deacon fans.

That last basket with only four seconds remaining was also significant because it broke the tournament record for total points. Childress ended with 107 points for three games, one better than Lennie Rosenbluth's mark, which had stood for 38 years.

His 2,208 career points rank second behind only Dickie Hemric's total of 2,587. In addition, Childress is the school's all-time leader in three-point field goals and ranks second in ACC history with 329 three-point field goals made.

Tim Duncan
1995 3-AP, NABC
1996 1-AP, NABC, UPI, BW, TSN
1997 1-AP, NABC, UPI, BW, TSN

Tim Duncan is one of the most decorated players to wear the Old Gold & Black. He led Wake Forest to four straight 20-win seasons and is the winningest player in school history.

At the 1997 NBA Draft, the San Antonio Spurs made him the No. 1 overall pick in the draft. In his rookie season he was named the NBA's Rookie of the Year, in addition to earning a spot on the All-NBA First Team. Three times he has led the Spurs to the World Championship while being named the NBA Finals MVP. Duncan played in the 2004 Olympics.

In 1997, he earned first-team All-America honors for the second straight season and was the consensus National Player of the Year. During the year, he became the 10th player in NCAA history to reach the 2,000 points/1,500 rebounds plateau. His skills did not end at scoring and rebounding as he owns 481 career blocks to rank second in the NCAA annals. He recorded a block in 127 of his 128 career games and was also one of the Deacs' leading passers as he led the team in assists in 1997 with 98.

Josh Howard
2003 1-AP, NABC, TSN, ESPN, CNIISI, BD, Wooden

One of the most athletic and versatile players in Wake Forest history, Josh Howard was a consensus first team All-American in 2003.

Howard was named ACC Player of the Year in 2003 and was the first unanimous selection since NC State's David Thompson in 1975. He was named to several All-American teams including the Associated Press team and he was named national player of the year by four different sources.

Howard left Wake Forest as one of just four players in the history of the ACC to accumulate 1,000 points, 500 rebounds, 200 assists, 200 steals and 100 blocked shots. Howard and Duke's Shane Battier are the only players to produce those numbers and also make 100 career three-point field goals.

After helping Wake win the 2000 NIT title, Howard led the Deacons to three straight NCAA Tournament appearances. In 2003, Wake Forest won the ACC regular season title outright for the first time in 41 years. He was selected in the first round of the 2003 NBA Draft by the Dallas Mavericks and became a starter for the Mavericks in 2004-05.

Chris Paul
2005 1-AP, USBWA, NABC, TSN, ESPN, Rupp, BT, Wooden

In just two seasons -- 2004 and 2005 -- Paul led Wake Forest to new heights and established himself as one of college basketball's top players.

Paul, who grew up 10 miles from the Wake Forest campus in Lewisville (NC), was the ACC Rookie of the Year in 2004 after leading the Deacons to a 21-10 mark and a spot in the Sweet 16 round of the NCAA Tournament.

In 2005, Paul and the Demon Deacons won a school record 27 games and rose to No. 1 in the national polls for the first time in school history.

Paul's career free throw percentage (.838) ranks fifth in Wake Forest history. His career three-point percentage (.469) is the second-highest in Wake history. Paul also ranks seventh in school history with 395 career assists and seventh in career steals with 160.

Paul declared for the NBA Draft after his sophomore season -- the first Deacon to do so since Rodney Rogers in 1993 -- and was the No. 4 overall pick by the New Orleans Hornets.

NBA DRAFT NOTES

Ten Demon Deacons have been first-round selections, most recently Chris Paul, the No. 4 overall pick in 2005.

The NBA team which has selected the most Wake Forest players is the Washington Bullets (now the Wizards). The Washington franchise has previously drafted four Deacons - Bogues, Green, Johnson and Jerry Schellenberg.

Since 2002, three Wake Forest players have been drafted - Darius Songaila by Boston in the second round of the 2002 Draft, Josh Howard by Dallas in the first round of the 2003 Draft and Paul by New Orleans in 2005.

Three Deacons - Tim Duncan, the first overall pick in 1997, Paul, the fourth pick in 2005, and Len Chappell, the fifth pick in 1962 - have been taken in the top five.

Wake Forest had a record three players drafted in 1982 - Guy Morgan (2nd round), Jim Johnstone (3rd) and Mike Helms (7th).

Five times in draft history have two Deacons been selected in the same year -- 1977, 1971, 1985, 1978 and 1984.

The 102 individuals listed at left represent Wake Forest University's Sports Hall of Fame, established in 1970 with the induction of former basketball coach Murray Greason, late football star Brian Piccolo, former football coach Peahead Walker, and former director of athletics Jim Weaver, who later became the first commissioner of the ACC. Thirty-five individuals associated with the Deacon football program have been enshrined in the Hall of Fame, starting with Brian Piccolo and Peahead Walker, who were inducted in 1970.

The Hall of Fame Committee, which meets annually to determine worthy candidates for induction, consists of director of athletics Ron Wellman, senior associate athletic director/senior woman administrator Barbara Walker, faculty athletic chair (and committee chair) Dr. Richard Carmichael, Jim Abernathy, Bryan Andrews, Steve Bowden, Dot Casey, Ashby Cook, Leon Corbett, Al DeForest, Murray Greason, Jr., Dave Harris, Jane Jackson, Brad Kendall, Jim Morgan, Amy Perko, Jody Puckett and Frank Wyatt.

Anyone can nominate a person to the Hall of Fame. Eligibility for Hall of Fame members is defined by 10 criteria, which include being out of school for 10 years (or deceased); receiving national recognition as an athlete, coach or administrator; being of good character and reputation; and having no stronger connection with another university.

Tyrone "Muggsy" Bogues was inducted in 2001.

Skip Brown was inducted in 1992.
