

Post-Game Notes

Washington vs. Washington State

Alaska Airlines Field at Husky Stadium, Nov. 25, 2023

Washington finished the regular season unbeaten and untied for the first time since 1991, when the Huskies ran the table and finished 12-0 (11-game regular season, followed by a win over Michigan in the 1992 Rose Bowl). UW also finished unbeaten and untied six other times, all more than 100 years ago: 1909-1913, 1915. None of those seasons consisted of more than seven games.

Washington has reached 12 wins for just the third time in program history. As noted, the Dawgs went 12-0 in 1991. They also finished 12-2 in 2016. The Huskies have never won more than 12 games in a season, but will have the chance for at least two more victories in 2023.

Washington has won 19 straight games, the second-longest active streak in the country, behind Georgia, and the third-longest in Husky history (longer UW streaks: 40 straight wins 1908-16; 22 straight wins 1990-92).

The Huskies have never gone 7-0 at home in back-to-back seasons (they didn't play that many seven-game home schedules until the last couple of decades). The last time that Washington was undefeated at home in back-to-back seasons was 2000-2001, going 6-0 on Montlake in each of those two seasons. The streak was broken with a loss in the fourth home game of the 2002 season.

UW has won nine of the last 10 Apple Cup games, as well as 12 of the last 14.

This season, through 12 games, Washington has never trailed by more than seven points. The Huskies never trailed at all in seven of 12 games (including today vs. WSU). Over a total of 720 minutes this season (12 games x 60 minutes = 720 minutes), the Huskies have trailed for just 95 minutes and 38 seconds, meaning they've been tied or ahead for 624 minutes and 22 seconds.

Washington has allowed a total of just 24 fourth-quarter points over its last seven games, and just 10 points in the fourth over the last four games (Oregon State scored three; WSU scored seven, while USC and Utah were both held scoreless in the fourth).

UW receiver Rome Odunze notched the eighth 100-yard receiving game of the season, finishing the game with seven catches for 120 yards, and two touchdowns. For the season, Odunze now has 1,326 yards, second in UW single-season history.

Odunze's 13 touchdowns this season (he had two today) are fourth-most in UW single-season history. With 24 in his career, he's tied for third on the Husky career top-10 (record is 30, Mario Bailey, 1988-91).

Michael Penix Jr. finished the day with 3,899 passing yards this season, third-most in UW history (behind only his 2022 total – 4,641; and Cody Pickett's 4,458 in 2002). He also has 32 TD passes for the season, passing last year's total of 31, good for No. 3 in UW history. His 63 career TDs are also good for third.

After a key fourth-down conversion late in tonight's game, the Huskies are 11-for-14 (79%) on fourth-down attempts this year. Opponents are 13-for-33 on fourth down (39%).

Washington head coach Kalen DeBoer is now 102-11 as a head coach, and is 23-2 at UW, including 14-0 at home. He is 31-1 in games in the month of November as a head coach.
