Washington vs. Penn State
Husky Stadium, Saturday, November 7, 2026
UW Postgame Notes

The last time that Washington converted two two-point conversions in a single game, as it did today vs. Penn State, was in the 2022 loss (40-32) at UCLA, when Ja'Lynn Polk and Jalen McMillan each scored PATs in the fourth quarter.

The Huskies scored on their opening drive of the game, on a 29-yard field goal from Tyler Robles. That score marked just the second time this season and Washington scored on its first drive of the game. The other was also on a Robles field goal, in game three vs. Eastern Washington.

Hunter Greene had a 63-yard punt today, his seventh 60-yard punt of the season, breaking he UW single-season, previously held by Race Porter (2021). The UW career record is 10.

Husky wide receiver Trez Davis became the 14th different player to be credited with a rushing play this season. He's one of four different WRs (plus one tight end) to have carried the ball this season.

Penn State scored on four of six first-half possessions (which includes one that was ended by the end of the half), and then didn't score on any of its five in the second. By contrast, Washington scored on two of six first-half possessions and then did score on three of four in the second.

Penn State increased it series advantage over Washington to 5-0 with the win. The Nittany Lions earned prior wins over UW in Seattle in 1921, in the 1983 Rose Bowl, the 2017 Fiesta Bowl, in 2024 at Beaver Stadium.