SIMPLY THE BEST — March 21, 1998

To be the best, you have to beat the best. Washington University's 1997-98 women's basketball team followed that truism to the 'T' or more like 'W', as the Bears produced five big victories over some of the best teams the NCAA Division III had to offer during a two-week span in March. The result: the first basketball national championship in school history.

The Bears, who defeated host University of Southern Maine 77-69 in the national title game in front of a capacity crowd of 1,950 fans at the Walter G. Hill Gymnasium, ran the gauntlet that season to give head coach Nancy Fahey her first national title in three trips to the Division III semifinals/finals.

On the way to the title, the Bears, who finished the season with a school-record 28-2 ledger, twice defeated defending NCAA champion New York University to win the University Athletic Association (UAA) title. Then the Bears had to open the NCAA tournament by knocking off the nation's only unbeaten team (Millikin); defeat the top-ranked team in the country (Wisconsin-Oshkosh) on the way to the semifinals; and then pull off their biggest win of the year by beating Southern Maine on its home floor.

The Bears advanced to the championship game by defeating a Rowan University (N.J.) team that featured a pair of All-America candidates. The next night, Washington U. became only the second team in the 17-year history of the tournament to defeat the host school on its own floor in the title game. During its five-game run to the title, the Bears defeated teams with a composite record of 131-15 (.897).

While senior tri-captains Amy Schweizer, Angie Kohnen, and Erica Stagen paved the way, sophomore center Alia Fischer no doubt took the Bears down the path to a championship. Honored as a Kodak First-Team All-American and GTE First-Team Academic All-American, Fischer became the first non-senior to be named the Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) Division III Player of the Year.

Fischer was named the UAA Player of the Year after leading the conference in scoring (20.1 ppg) and field-goal percentage (.645) as the Bears posted a 13-1 record to win the league title. She eclipsed school records for points (626), scoring average (20.9 ppg), free throws made (152) and attempted (192) and broke her own record for field-goal percentage (.609).

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP #1 — 1998

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP #2 — 1999

SWEET REPEAT — March 20, 1999

For Washington University's women's basketball team, the only way to top its magical 1997-98 season — a season in which the Bears captured their first NCAA Division III national championship — was to do it all over.

And not only did WU do all those things again in 1998-99 —including winning its second-consecutive national title March 20 in Danbury, Conn. — the Bears also won all 30 games to become just the third team in Division III women's history and the 19th team ever in any NCAA division — men's or women's — to finish the season unbeaten.

Washington defeated the University of Scranton (Pa.), 74-65, in the national semifinals and knocked off the College of St. Benedict (Minn.) by the same 74-65 score in the championship game the following night to claim the second basketball national championship in school history and the school's ninth national crown in the last 10 years.

"Wow," said Fahey. "It's hard to describe the feeling. When you win the first one, it's an unbelievable feeling, but to win this one the way we did — going undefeated — it's just amazing."

Amazing would be a good way to describe the Bears' run through the first undefeated season in school history. Despite losing the team's all-time leading scorer and rebounder and just the fourth player in school history to record more than 300 assists, WU finished the season with its school-record 38-game winning streak intact and posted the second undefeated conference season in UAA history — matching the feat accomplished by Fahey's 1989-90 club.

Probably the biggest reason the Red and Green didn't lose was because of Fischer. Honored as a Kodak first-team All-American for the second-straight year and a GTE first-team Academic All-American, Fischer became the only player to be named the Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) Division III Player of the Year two years in a row. She also was named the UAA Player of the Year for the second-straight year after leading WU in scoring, rebounds and blocked shots.

"People will ask how we are going to top this, but you really can't," says Fahey. "You enjoy it, then turn the page and start over. We may not be able to top it, but we will enjoy it. We'll enjoy it for a while."

THRICE IS NICE — March 18, 2000

It may not be the most publicized national champion in history, but the Washington University women's basketball team certainly can lay claim to being one of the greatest.

With a 79-33 win over the University of Southern Maine, the Bears became the first team in NCAA Division III history to win three-straight national championships. Washington U., which also wrapped up a second straight 30-0 season, became just the second team in NCAA basketball history — any division, men or women — to post back-to-back undefeated national championship seasons. Only the UCLA men of the early 1970s accomplished the feat.

If the entire 1999-2000 season had to be summed up in one word, that word would be convincing. Washington U. won by an average of 28.2 points per game and allowed no team to get closer than 11 points. The Bears never trailed at halftime, and were behind in the second half just once ... for 17 seconds.

Talented, deep, and experienced, the Bears entered the 1999-2000 season with four starters and the top four subs from the 1998-99 squad that also went 30-0 en route to the title.

Leading the way for the Bears was Fischer. One of the most decorated student-athletes in WU history, Fischer became the first player to win three-consecutive WBCA Division III Player of the Year awards. Fischer, the only other player to win the award more than once, also won UAA Player of the Year honors for a third-straight season and first-team All-America as well as all-NCAA Tournament honors for the second year in a row.

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP #3 — 2000

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP #4 — 2001

FOUR PEAT — March 17, 2001

It has been said that the more things change, the more they stay the same. Such was the case for the 2000-01 Washington University women's basketball team as the Bears became the first team in Division III and just the second team in NCAA women's history to win four-consecutive national championships.

While the destination was the same, the path was a little bumpier than the one that led the Bears to back-to-back undefeated national championship seasons the previous two years. For the first time in four seasons, Washington U. was without the services of three-time national player of the year Alia Fischer.

Things were as smooth as ever through the first 13 games as the Bears stretched their NCAA women's all-divisions record winning streak to 81 games heading in the Jan. 16 matchup at next-door neighbor Fontbonne College, a team that hadn't beaten the Bears in 19 years. So much for streaks. The Griffins handed Washington U. a 79-68 loss, its first defeat since Feb. 15, 1998. It left the Bears just seven games shy of tying John Wooden's UCLA men's streak of 88 wins, the longest winning streak in NCAA basketball history.

When it came to crunch time, though, in the NCAA Tournament, Washington U. won the five games it needed to win to capture the title. After rolling past Wisconsin-Eau Claire in the first round of the tournament, 87-67, at home, the Bears held on for a 65-58 win at St. Thomas. It didn't get any easier in the sectional championship game against Wartburg College, but Washington U. shot a blistering .661 from the field as the Red and Green rolled into their sixth Final Four in the past 11 years.

Once that far, there was no way the Bears would be denied as they knocked off Emmanuel College, 78-62, in the national semifinals, and posted a 67-45 win over Messiah College in the championship game.

Washington U. returned just one starter, but fortunately for Fahey and company, it was two-time All-American Tasha Rodgers. Rodgers picked up where Fischer left off, picking up UAA and Division III National Player of the Year honors. She led the club in scoring (20.2 ppg), rebounding (7.8 rpg), field goal percentage (.593) and steals (123) and carried the club when they needed it most.

Depth was a big key for the Bears as well as they regularly went nine or 10 deep. Senior center Lindsey Merrill and fellow senior guard Sara Ettner, two potent weapons, finished their careers with a 116-4 record and four national championships.

RETURN TO GLORY: Bears Capture Fifth National Championship

After nine years, nine-straight trips to the NCAA Tournament, and two setbacks in the national championship game, the Washington University in St. Louis women's basketball team returned to the pinnacle of NCAA Division III women's basketball, capturing the program's fifth national championship with a 65-59 victory over No. 4 Hope College on Saturday, March 20, 2010, at the Shirk Center in Bloomington, Ill.

Washington University has now won a Division III record five national championships, including a string of four-straight titles from 1998-01. Washington U., who was appearing in its Division III record 21st-NCAA Tournament and record ninth Final Four, also advanced to the NCAA championship game in 2007 and 2009.

"Once you are fortunate enough to experience a championship, and then to wait nine years for another, you realize how hard, how special, how much you have to have a little luck, how fortunate you are to have that magical chemistry," head coach Nancy Fahey said. "You realize how special this is, and that is the difference this year, realizing how much things have to come together."

Graduate student Jaimie McFarlin and senior Zoë Unruh were both named to the NCAA Championship All-Tournament Team, with McFarlin claiming NCAA Final Four Most Outstanding Player accolades.

McFarlin scored 14 points with a season-high 15 rebounds in the championship win while Unruh tallied 13 points. McFarlin earns NCAA Championship all-tournament honors for the third time in her career, tying Washington University Sports Hall of Famers Alia Fischer and Tasha Rodgers for the most NCAA Final Four honors in school history.

Unruh averaged a team-high 17.3 points per game during the postseason run and on Saturday she passed Hallie Hutchens (2001-05) for ninth-place in scoring in school history. She ends her career with 1,096 points, also ranking fourth in school history with 128 three-point field goals.

En route to the national title, Washington University posted the third-best overall mark in program history, finishing the season with a 29-2 record, trailing only its back-to-back undefeated national championship seasons. The Bears went 13-1 in University Athletic Association (UAA) action for the second year in a row, capturing their 19th conference championship in the process.

The road to the national championship was not an easy one, as Washington U. was tested in each round of the postseason. After earning a come-from-behind, 81-67, win over Maryville (Tenn.) in the opening round, the Bears defeated regional host Thomas More, 80-64, for a berth into the sectional semifinals.

After surviving the frenetic pace of Mount Union College, 76-57, in the sectionals, the Bears advanced to face George Fox University in a rematch of the 2009 national championship game, with a berth into the Final Four on the line.

Playing on their home floor, the Red and Green held off the defending national champions, 59-52, setting up another rematch, this time with top-ranked and unbeaten Amherst College in the national semifinals, marking the second year in a row the programs met in the Final Four.

The Bears trailed the Lord Jeffs by double digits in the second half before McFarlin sparked a frenzied comeback with under 10 minutes to play in regulation. Washington University forced overtime then pulled away for an 86-75 win, setting up the showdown with Hope for the national title.

Guiding the Bears to the UAA and national title, Fahey earned National Coach of the Year honors from DIII News and D3Hoops.com. Additionally, senior Janice Evans was named a DIII News third-team All-American, and a Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) honorable mention All-American.

Washington University defeated Hope College, 65-59, on March 20, 2010, in Bloomington, Ill., to capture its NCAA Division III-record fifth national championship.
