The History of WuShock

It was in 1904 when Wichita State University was known as Fairmount College that R.J. Kirk [Class of 1907], a football manager, invented the name "Wheat Shockers" for posters to advertise a game against the Chilocco Indians.

Kirk had put the word "Indians" under the name Chilocco and a press agent for the Wichita Fall Festival, helping to publicize the contest, demanded that Kirk should produce a nickname for Fairmount to balance the poster.

In those days, when wheat was shocked or headed, the majority of the players earned a stake for college expenses by working all summer in the harvest and threshing and came back tough enough to play 60-minute games.

Although the name was never officially adopted, it caught on, was combined into one word, and survived until it was shortened to "Shockers" as Wichita State teams are known today.

The story of WuShock began in 1948. Wichita University students of the art department were invited by Kappa Pi art fraternity to compete in the creation of a design to typify the spirit of the school.

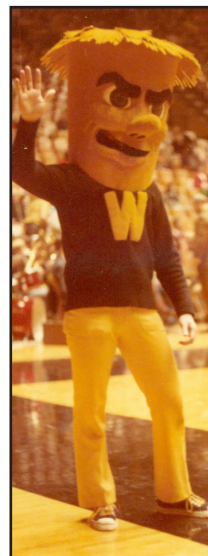

Walter Lengel's design students were given the assignment as a requirement of his class. The entries were to be judged by members of the student publications board. The contest was wide open...no theme was established.

Wilbur Elsea, a junior who had been a Marine during World War II, decided that, "the school needed a mascot who gave a tough impression...with a serious, no-nonsense scowl." And his design for the WuShock character was adopted.

WuShock got its name in another contest, which was won by freshman Jack Kersting.

But the story does not end there. Dave Johnson, a WU cheerleader, changed the mascot from ink into flesh and blood in 1954. He and members of the art department brought WuShock to life as a costume.

He has been the WSU mascot since 1948, and has been in the movies, thrown out of a basketball game, been kidnapped and has entertained thousands of Shocker fans.

Established in 1968, the Wichita State volleyball program developed into a power in the Missouri Valley Conference and has enjoyed continued success since moving to the American Athletic Conference in 2017.

Shocker teams have topped 20-wins in 20 different seasons, including a remarkable run of 15-straight from 2003-17.

WSU has made 11 NCAA tournament appearances and won at least one match in seven of those trips, highlighted by a Sweet 16 in 2012.

Shocker teams have captured seven conference regular season titles (6 MVC, 1 AAC) and four more conference tournaments crowns.

The 2008 Shockers cemented their legacy with a 29-0 regular season mark and are one of three WSU squads that have gone unbeaten in conference play (18-0 MVC), joined by the 2005 (18-0 MVC) and 2017 (20-0 AAC) teams.

All-time, the program has produced 11 All-Americans and 47 all-conference selections.

THE EARLY DAYS

Wichita State volleyball began in 1968, but its true genesis came six years later when Athletic Director Ted Bredehoft chose to incorporate the sport under the athletic department umbrella and hired Janet Pew as the program's first-ever head coach.

A 1972 WSU graduate, Pew had been a standout athlete on the Shocker volleyball, basketball, softball and field hockey teams, later earning a spot in the Pizza Hut Shocker Sports Hall of Fame. Coaching came just as naturally for her.

The 1974 Shockers got out of the gate quickly in their maiden season of varsity competition, winning their first four matches on the way to a 10-2 start. The highlight was a 2-1 victory over border-rival Oklahoma State. While the team would drop its last three matches to finish 10-5, the groundwork was in place.

1974 Volleyball Team

Pew posted another winning season in 1975 (13-12) before turning over the reins to Sharon Rauh.

Under Rauh's leadership, the 1976 Shockers expanded their schedule, going 26-17-3 in regular season play and earning a spot in the AIAW [American Association of Intercollegiate Athletics] Region IV tournament in Minneapolis, Minn. While they dropped four out of their five matches there en route to a ninth-place finish, the squad's tally of 27 victories would hold for nearly three decades as the school record.

The Shockers again topped 20-wins in 1977, capturing 14 of their first 16 matches before slumping to a 23-20-5 finish. Rauh's third-and-final season (1978) ended with an 18-22-3 record.

Finding a successor for Rauh proved difficult. Women's Athletics Director Natasha Fife needed someone who could handle both volleyball and softball coaching duties.

New hire Mary Estes immediately had her hands full. She arrived in mid-August, 1979, having missed the entirety of the recruiting process and with only eight players. Estes found three walk-ons and added Janis Krohe, who had missed the previous season because of a knee injury, to fill out her initial roster.

Seriously under-manned, WSU struggled the next two seasons. In 1979, the Shockers won only eight matches in an 8-34-3 campaign, which included a 1-15 start to the season. The 1980 campaign was even worse. After tying Wayne State in their season opener, the Shockers dropped their last 33 matches to finish up at 0-33-1.

After going 8-67-4 in her two years as head coach, Estes was out of a job, and WSU dropped its volleyball program. However, the absence was short-lived, as the athletic department reinstated volleyball after a two-year hiatus.

A NEW BEGINNING

In 1983, things got brighter as young Phil Shoemaker was hired to revive the dormant program and return it to respectability. An assistant at the University of Missouri from 1980-82, Shoemaker had helped guide the Tigers to a 26-6 record the year before taking over at WSU.

Success didn't happen overnight, but Shoemaker's Shocker teams improved little by little, culminating in five-straight winning seasons between 1988 and 1992.

The 1988 team posted a 21-14 mark and a fourth-place finish in the Gateway Conference. Second team all-conference pick P.J. Barrett became the first (and so far only) player in school history to lead the team in kills [343], digs [416] and blocks [92] in the same season. Less than five years into the job, Shoemaker became the program's all-time wins leader. A 3-1 victory over Western Illinois on Oct. 22, 1988 was his 69th as Shocker head coach, surpassing Rauh's 68.

Back-to-back 19-win seasons followed in 1989 and 1990. Shoemaker reached the century-mark on Sept. 29, 1990 against UMKC, and the Shockers finished third-place in the Gateway Conference standings.

Momentum continued into the new decade. Shoemaker was Gateway Conference Coach of the Year after leading the 1991 Shockers to 25 victories and a runner-up finish to Northern Iowa in the conference tournament. Janelle Watton [545 kills] and Yu-Chyi Yang [1,559 assists] set WSU single-season records – both of which still stand -- on their way to first team all-conference honors. Yang was later named to the Gateway Conference's All-Decade Team.

WSU competed from 1982 to 1992 as a member of the Gateway, a women's-only conference with membership that largely mirrored that of the all-male Missouri Valley Conference. Charter members included WSU, Bradley, Drake, Eastern Illinois, Illinois State, Indiana State, Northern Iowa, Southern Illinois, Southwest Missouri State and Western Illinois.

In the summer of 1992, the Gateway merged into the MVC, and for the first time WSU men's and women's sports officially operated out of the same league.

The Shockers were strong again in 1992, finishing 24-8. They took third in the MVC race with an 11-5 record and placed third again in the conference tournament.

Kristin Carr and Kori Rosenkranz were the main catalysts for the squad's success. A two-time first team All-Valley selection, Carr had 275 kills and 89 blocks, while Rosenkranz' 1,105 assists earned her honorable mention honors.

From 1990-93, the Shockers produced an unprecedented three-consecutive conference newcomer-of-the-year recipients. In 1990, Carr's 120 blocks and 267 kills earned her the award, followed by Nona Saldana [130 blocks and 201 kills] in 1991 and Rosenkranz [1,105 assists and 56 aces] in 1992.

After the success of 1992, Shocker fans would have to wait another 10 years for a winning season. The '97 season, during which WSU finished 17-17 and tied for third in the MVC standings, was the highlight of an otherwise unremarkable stretch.

Two-time first team all-conference honoree Dawn Horn was a bright spot. She still holds single-season school records for blocks [142 in 1998] and block assists [142].

In addition to the Shockers' on-court success during the Shoemaker era, WSU was academically inclined in the classroom. Under Shoemaker, 37 players earned academic all-conference honors, including a team-high six in 1993, and three Shockers were named CoSIDA Academic All-District VII [Barrett, 1988; Terri Brown, 1990; Michele Hallagin, 1998] with Hallagin being a repeat selection to the first team in 1999 and also becoming the first Shocker volleyball player to make the national academic All-America squad [first team].

THE CHRIS LAMB ERA:

After 17 seasons, Shoemaker resigned to take over the volleyball program at Alaska-Fairbanks.

On Jan. 18, 2000, new WSU Athletic Director Jim Schaus hired Arizona assistant Chris Lamb as the fifth head volleyball coach in school history.

Lamb's first season was a learning one for returning players and newcomers alike as the squad adapted to a new style of play. The Shockers finished 8-23 overall and 2-16 in The Valley. Jan Meloy concluded her career at WSU as the school's all-time leader in kills [1,657] and digs [1,457] which also placed her among the top-five all-time in the conference record books.

College volleyball experienced radical change in 2001 with a shift from side-out scoring to rally scoring. Helped by MVC Newcomer of the Year Sara Younes [WSU fifth recipient], the Shockers improved by three wins in Lamb's second season to 11-16 and tied for seventh in the MVC standings at 5-13.

In 2002, WSU enjoyed its first winning season since 1992, finishing 18-13 and tied for fourth in the conference [11-7]. They ranked among the NCAA's top-25 in both service aces [2.29] and blocks-per-game [2.83]. Younes continued her ascent, ranking third nationally in aces [113]. She was joined on the All-MVC first team by Jackie Brown.

The Shockers played the 2002-03 season across campus at the Heskett Center while their longtime home, Henry Levitt Arena, transformed into Charles Koch Arena as part of an extensive renovation.

The arena wasn't the only thing that transformed during that time period. A much-improved Shocker volleyball team took court in 2003, posting an 11-2 home record while reaching the 20-win plateau for the first time in over a decade. It would be another 15 years before a Shocker team won LESS than 20.

WSU took third in the MVC race at 13-5 on its way to a 21-10 record. Younes, now a junior, recorded 109 more aces [four short of her record total from the previous year and again No. 3 in the nation] and became the school's career leader in that category. She was joined on the All-Valley first team by sophomore Elizabeth Myers, who hit an impressive .375. Karen Augspurger won the Valley's inaugural Libero of the Year award.

2004 was a breakthrough year. The Shockers ripped off 13-straight wins over one stretch and claimed their first-ever conference regular season title. They also checked "MVC Tournament champion" and "NCAA tournament qualifier" off their bucket list, downing Missouri State in five sets at the Roundhouse to claim the MVC's automatic bid. The Shockers' NCAA tournament debut came in Lincoln, Neb. where they swept Nevada in the first round before falling to national power Nebraska in the Round of 32.

2004 MVC Champions

Lamb was an easy choice for MVC Coach of the Year after leading WSU to the best season in school history.

Likewise, Younes wrapped up her senior year with a collection of accolades: MVC Player of the Year, First Team All-MVC (for a third time), first team all-region and NAVC Honorable Mention All-American. She also extended her school aces record (351 in four seasons).

Augspurger achieved new single-season (535) and career (1,477) digs standards and was named MVC Libero of the Year for the second year in a row. In all, five Shockers made the first team with Younes and Augspurger joined by the trio of Lara Geer, Darci Vohs and Jen Ray.

The City of Wichita began to take notice of Shocker volleyball. Average attendance topped the 1,000-mark, and a crowd of 2,046 was the largest in program history. Both marks would be broken and rebroken countless times over the coming years.

The 2005 Shockers figured to take a step back after losing two program fixtures, Younes and Augspurger, to graduation. Instead, they took another giant step forward with a school-record 28 wins and an undefeated run through the MVC schedule (18-0).

Abby Harsh and Sara Lungren, two All-MVC freshman the season before, stepped into larger roles, and Myers enjoyed a big senior year, setting a new conference record for hitting percentage (.429) while finishing as WSU's career leader in blocks (505), block assists (460), blocks-per-game (1.24) and hitting percentage (.350).

Lamb repeated as MVC Coach of the Year and Myers was joined on the MVC First Team by Vohs, Ray and Andee Hartig.

The Shockers were heavy favorites to defend their MVC tournament title, taking 25-match winning streak with them to Northern Iowa's West Gym. After dispatching the hosts in the semifinal they suffered a stunning three-set loss to Missouri State.

A 28-3 record and the program's first top-25 ranking weren't enough to secure an NCAA at-large bid, and a dream season ended in disappointment.

The Shockers finished second in the Missouri Valley Conference in 2006, despite having no seniors on the roster. WSU (25-7, 15-3) ran its home winning streak to 31 and averaged over 2,000 fans for the first time ever.

Lungren averaged a school record 4.10 kills to secure first team All-MVC status, joined by fellow junior Abby Harsh and sophomore Angela Jakubov.

With its entire core returning for 2007, WSU won its third MVC title in four years, going 27-6 overall and 17-1 in Valley play. Lungren became the first (and so far only) Shocker to win multiple conference player of the year awards and also added All-American to her resume, while Lamb collected yet another coach of the year plaque.

2008 MVC Champions (18-0)

Four Shockers earned first team all-Valley honors including Lungren, Harsh, Tokarz and sophomore Winthrop transfer Emily Stockman.

Shocker fans twice broke the arena's single-game volleyball attendance mark. 6,024 were on hand for an opening weekend match against Kansas State, and 6,122 turned up for a key November showdown against Missouri State.

The NCAA again tweaked its scoring rules in 2008, with teams now racing to 25 points in each set instead of 30. The change was aimed, in part, at creating parity, but the Shockers were so good that it didn't really matter.

WSU rolled to a perfect 29-0 regular season record with 17 of those wins coming in straight-sets. It was the school's first undefeated regular season in any sport and the second time in four years that they had finished MVC play 18-0.

Just as they did in 2005, the unbeaten Shockers stumbled in the MVC tournament, falling in five sets to Missouri State in the semifinal round. But unlike 2005, their resume was good enough for NCAA at-large berth.

WSU split a pair of NCAA matches in Austin, Texas, downing Rice in four-sets before falling to third-ranked Texas in the second round.

The 30-2 Shockers reaped postseason awards with Stockman (MVC Player of the Year) and Kelly Broussard (Libero of the Year) joining the growing list of WSU All-Americans. Setter Mary Elizabeth Hooper was named National Freshman of the Year, and Lamb reeled in MVC Coach of the Year for a fourth time after leading the Shockers to their highest-ever national ranking (9th).

In addition to Stockman, Broussard and Hooper, Sarah McGee was named to the MVC First Team.

WSU enjoyed another successful 2009 season, finishing 26-7 (14-4 MVC) and advancing to the second round of the NCAA tournament. It was the Lamb's sixth-straight 25-win season.

Along with being named first team all-Valley and all-region, Stockman earned honorable mention All-America honors from the AVCA, making her the first two-time Shocker All-American. McGee and Hooper each made the All-Valley first team.

With nearly a decade of sustained success, Shocker volleyball had developed quite a following. WSU ranked seventh nationally in average attendance [2,892] during the 2009 season.

Despite losing five seniors, the 2010 Shockers exceeded expectations by finishing second in the MVC at 14-4 after being picked third in the preseason poll. WSU [21-8] advanced to a fourth-consecutive NCAA tournament. McGee and Hooper each made their third appearance on the All-Valley first team (joining Younes and Stockman on the list of three-time Shocker honorees), accompanied by sophomore Emily Adney, who would later join the club, herself.

The Shockers advanced to their fifth-straight NCAA Tournament in 2011 after finishing 21-11 overall [13-5 MVC]. Hooper became the first in Shocker history to earn first team all-conferences honors in all four years. WSU again averaged over 2,500 fans and finished among the top-10 nationally in attendance for a third-consecutive year.

Lamb had taken WSU to heights that would have been unthinkable just 10 years earlier, but one achievement still alluded him. Though the Shockers had qualified for six NCAA tournaments and posted four first-round victories, they had yet to claim even a set against a second-round foe. Playing on their home courts, Big 12 powers Nebraska (twice), Texas and Iowa State had proven too much to overcome.

The narrative changed in 2012. The Shockers [24-10, 13-5] finished third in a loaded MVC but still managed an at-large bid to the NCAA tournament. Playing just up the road in Lawrence, Kan., WSU overcome a 2-0 deficit to stun Arkansas, 16-25, 25-27, 25-17, 25-23, 15-10. The following day, they upset No. 20 Kansas on its home floor, 23-25, 25-16, 25-19, 25-21 to move into the Sweet 16 for the first time. Though the volleyball season ended six days later in Austin, Texas with a Regional Semifinal loss to No. 4 USC, it set the tone for what would become a memorable school year for WSU teams. That spring, the Shocker women's basketball won its first MVC title and advanced to its first NCAA tournament, and the men's basketball team advanced to the Final Four for the first time in 48 years.

Adney, now a senior, made the MVC first team for a third time. Chelsea Feekin, a junior, ranked fifth nationally in hitting percentage [.435]. Both were honorable mention All-Americans.

Though the Shockers lost a rematch to Kansas in the first round of the 2013 NCAA tournament, there were plenty of positives. A senior-dominated team finished 29-7 [15-3], swept the MVC regular season and tournament titles and made the last of seven-straight NCAA appearances.

The one-two punch of Feekin and fellow senior Ashley Andrade led the way. Feekin earned third team All-America status and finished as WSU's career leader in hitting percentage [.431]. Andrade, an honorable mention All-American herself, set a WSU season record and ranked second nationally at .468 [shattering Feekin's mark from the previous year]. The pair were easy choices for the MVC first team, joined by fellow seniors Elizabeth Field and Sam Sanders.

A rebuilding Shocker team missed the NCAA tournament in 2014 but still finished 20-10 [13-5 MVC] while laying the groundwork for another run of success. Freshman Abbie Lehman made an immediate impact with first team All-MVC honors and an honorable mention All-America nod. Junior Mary Ashton Floyd joined her on the first team. Shockers attendance surged to 3,078 [eighth nationally].

WSU moved back to the top of the heap in 2015, finishing 27-9 [15-3] while winning their 10th and final MVC regular season crown. In Springfield, Mo. the Shockers survived five-sets marathons against UNI and host Missouri State to escape with the MVC tournament championship and returned to the NCAA tournament after a one-year absence. In Lincoln, Neb. they took out in-state rival Kansas State in four sets before giving way to No. 5 Nebraska.

The Shockers [15-3] finished a game behind Missouri State in the 2017 MVC race but earned revenge by downing the Bears in the MVC tournament final. WSU again trekked to Lincoln for NCAA tournament action but this time fell in the first round to TCU, ending the year at 24-8.

A trio of Shockers made the MVC first team – senior Jody Larson and juniors Lehman and Emily Hiebert, who became the first WSU player to earn the MVC's Setter of the Year honor.

2012 Sweet Sixteen

2017 American Champions (20-0)

THE AMERICAN WAY

No one knew it at the time, but WSU had played its final MVC match. In April, 2017 -- after 34 seasons competing the Gateway and Missouri Valley Conferences -- WSU announced its move to the American Athletic Conference, effective July 1, 2017.

A 3-1 win at Temple on Sept. 22, 2017 marked WSU's first AAC action in any sport, and the wins kept on coming. A veteran squad steamrolled to a 20-0 record in league play and WSU's first conference title in the new league.

The Shockers' 28-3 record, which included a non-conference home win over No. 8 Creighton, impressed the NCAA selection committee. For the first time in its 11 NCAA appearances, WSU earned a national seed (16th) and served as a regional host site, welcoming Kansas, Missouri and Radford.

Shocker fans packed Charles Koch Arena to support the team. WSU extended its winning streak to 21 matches with a first-round win over Radford, and a program-record 7,258 fans turned up to watch them take on Missouri in the Round of 32. The visiting Tigers took three of the four sets; all of them closely contested, ending an otherwise special season.

In addition to AAC Coach of the Year, Lamb was named Volleyball Magazine's 2017 National Coach of the Year and NAVC North Region Coach of the Year after guiding his team to a 29-4 mark.

After another standout year at Middle Blocker, Lehman took home AAC Player of the Year and earned first team all-region status for the fourth time in her career, while Hiebert was tabbed AAC Setter of the Year. The pair were joined on the conference first-team by senior outside hitter Mikaela Raudsepp and junior outside hitter Tabitha Brown [an honorable mention All-American].

The 2017 Shockers also excelled off the court, earning the conference's Team Academic Excellence Award for having the highest cumulative grade point average among the league's 12 volleyball programs. Lehman was a national finalist for the Senior CLASS Award.

WSU rebuilt in 2018 but still found its way into postseason play with a bid to the National Invitational Volleyball Championship [NIVC]. The Shockers were 14-18 [8-10 AAC] against the fourth-toughest schedule in NCAA Division I, which included five matches against AVCA top-25 opponents.

Sophomore libero Giorgia Civita was one of the bright spots, earning first team all-conference status. A native of Milan, Italy, Civita set single-season dig records (728 total and 5.78-per-set).

The Shockers were young once again in 2019 with 10 freshmen and just two returning starters, while again facing a gauntlet of a schedule. Five of their opponents were at some point ranked inside the AVCA's top-5. On Sept. 14, No. 3 Texas became the highest-ranked visiting team to play at Charles Koch Arena as part of a Shocker Classic field that also featured No. 13 BYU.

WSU finished 9-19 [6-10 AAC] but won five of its last nine matches to finish the year with momentum.

The 2020 season was upended by the COVID-19 pandemic. The American Athletic Conference postponed all fall matches until the spring of 2021, and WSU posted a 9-8 record against an abbreviated schedule. Redshirt sophomore Sophia Rohling was named first team all-conference.

Charles Koch Arena has earned a reputation as one of collegiate volleyball's best home court environments.

The building is often referred to as "the Roundhouse" due to its unique circular shape. Originally constructed in 1955, it received a $25 million overhaul prior to the 2003 season.

In the 18 seasons since the Roundhouse Renaissance Project's completion, the Shockers have won over three-quarters of their home matches (.71-.52, .767), captured seven conference regular season titles and qualified for 11 NCAA tournaments.

WSU volleyball has also ranked among the top-25 nationally in attendance in every season since the renovation, including nine years in the top-10.

The Shockers averaged a program-record 3,401 fans during the 2017 season and also played host to their first-ever home NCAA regional that year. A second-round showdown with Missouri drew a school-record crowd of 7,258.

Originally known as WU Fieldhouse [1955-64] and WSU Fieldhouse [1964-69] the arena was dedicated Jan. 17, 1969, in honor of the late Henry Levitt, a civic leader in Wichita, and a noted friend and supporter of Wichita State. The athletic complex continues to bear his name.

WSU's volleyball program moved under the umbrella of the athletic department in 1974 and home matches were played at Levitt Arena. WSU briefly dropped the sport in 1981 before reviving it two years later. From 1983 to 1990, the team played at the Heskett Center, WSU's campus physical education building before returning to Levitt in 1991.

In October, 2000, WSU athletic director Jim Schaus announced plans for an extensive arena renovation project, which would address some of the primary facility needs of the WSU athletic department. Construction began in March of 2002 and concluded a year later with the debut of the Devlin Court, the Taylor Concourse, the Aetna Multi-Purpose Facility, Geist Student Services Building, the Downing Academic Learning Center and the Via Christi Sports Medicine Complex.

In the interim, the WSU volleyball team returned to the Heskett Center for the 2002 season.

The first event played inside the newly-renovated building was the Shocker Volleyball Classic, Sep. 12-13, 2003. WSU went on to post an 11-2 home record that year.

Over the years, a number of upgrades have been made to Charles Koch Arena. In 2013, a state-of-the-art video board was installed above center court, replacing the original. The volleyball locker room and team rooms received an overhaul in 2016.

In the summer of 2020, a new 36,000 square-foot student-athlete success center, located southeast of Charles Koch Arena, adjacent to Cessna Stadium, made its debut. The brand new facility features a 2,500-square-foot study hall, tutoring rooms and a larger computer center, in addition to a new weight room and multimedia studio. WSU's track and cross country programs also have a dedicated space in the facility.
