WHAT'S NEXT

- Four Mountaineers will compete at the 2021 NCAA Division I Wrestling Championships from March 18-20, at the Enterprise Center, in St. Louis, Missouri.
- Redshirt juniors Killian Cardinale (125) and Noah Adams (197), redshirt freshman Ryan Sullivan (133) and freshman Peyton Hall (165) will compete at this year's tournament.
- Cardinale, Adams and Hall each earned automatic bids based on their performances at the 2021 Big 12 Wrestling Championship, while Sullivan received an at-large selection to punch his ticket.
- The three-day event will start Thursday at 11 a.m. ET with the first round of championship competition (Session I). Wrestle-backs and the championship second round (Session II) will take place at 6 p.m. ET. Quarterfinals and the second and third round of wrestle-backs (Session III) will begin at 11 a.m. ET on Friday, followed by semifinals and fourth round wrestle-backs (Session IV) at 8 p.m. ET that evening. Medal rounds (Session V) will take place at 11 a.m. ET on Saturday, with the championship finals (Session VI) set for 7 p.m. ET Saturday night.
- Early sessions will be broadcasted on ESPNU, while second-round matches, as well as the medal round, will be shown live on ESPN2. Friday night's semifinals and Saturday's championship finals also will be broadcasted on ESPN. Live stats for all matches are available on TrackWrestling. Additionally, all matches will be shown on ESPN3 via the WatchESPN app.

LAST TIMEOUT

- Six Mountaineer grapplers finished on the podium, including two third-place finishes from Cardinale and Adams, as West Virginia completed the 2021 Big 12 Wrestling Championship on March 7, at the BOK Center, in Tulsa, Oklahoma.
- In addition, Hall placed fourth in the 165-pound bracket, and redshirt sophomore Alex Hornfeck finished sixth in the 157-pound pool.
- Redshirt freshman Michael Wolfgram also placed seventh in the heavyweight division, while classmate Anthony Carman finished eighth in the 184-pound bracket.
- As a team, WVU collected 57 points throughout the two-day event to place ninth overall.
- The Mountaineers finished the regular season with a 7-3 overall record and a 3-2 mark in Big 12 action. The last time WVU won seven or more matches was during the 2015-16 season, when the squad went 8-10.
- West Virginia ended the regular season ranked No. 22 in the final Dual Meet Rankings by Intermat and FloWrestling. Additionally, the Mountaineers received votes in the National Wrestling Coaches Association (NWCA) Top-25 Poll five times. As a team, WVU was last ranked on Jan. 14, 2016.

NCAA DIVISION I WRESTLING CHAMPIONSHIPS

- West Virginia sends four Mountaineer grapplers to the national tournament for the first time since coach Tim Flynn's inaugural season in 2019, when the squad sent a total of five to Pittsburgh.
- With four competing at this year's event, West Virginia boasts 189 national qualifiers since 1979, when the NCAA implemented the current qualification system.
- The Mountaineers have earned All-America accolades 32 times at the NCAA Championships and have posted 16 top-25 finishes at the event since 1929. The squad also boasts five individual national titles, including three-time national champion Greg Jones.
- Adams and Hall are the only wrestlers at the 2021 NCAA Division I Wrestling Championships to hail from the state of West Virginia. Adams, a native of Coal City, West Virginia, is a three-time NCAA qualifier, while Hall, a native of Chester, West Virginia, is one of 26 true freshmen competing at this year's tournament.
- Adams, a No. 2-seed in the 197-pound bracket at the 2020 NCAA Tournament, could have been standing at the top of last year's podium if the season didn't come to a complete stop due to the COVID-19 pandemic. He finished the year with a 32-0 overall record, tied for the most wins by a WVU sophomore, and earned All-America First Team honors from the National Wrestling Coaches Association (NWCA) for the first time in his career.
- Adams started the 2021 season on a seven-match win streak before he dropped an 8-7 battle to No. 14 Stephen Buchanan of Wyoming on Feb. 6 to snap his 39-match win streak at 197 pounds. Jones was the last Mountaineer grappler to win 39 or more consecutive matches, as he won 51 matches in a row from 2003-05. Despite the loss, Adams has outscored his opponents, 85-24, in dual action this season.
- The most anticipated match of the NCAA Tournament depends on what happens in the first round of the 197-pound weight bracket. With first-round victories, Adams and Buchanan will face each other for the fourth time this season. Buchanan is 3-0 against Adams on the year. The two last met at the conference championship, as Buchanan walked away with a 3-2 victory in the semifinal match.

MOUNTAINEERS ON THE NATIONAL STAGE

- As the No. 17 seed at 125 pounds, Cardinale (12-4) is slated to meet No. 16 Codi Russell (15-1) of Appalachian State in the first round. Following a quarterfinal loss at the 2021 Big 12 Championship, Cardinale maneuvered his way through consolations to earn a third-place finish in his respective bracket. The Bristow, Virginia, native finished the tournament with a team-best 5-1 record. Russell, who competed at 133 pounds the last two seasons, won the 125-pound title at the 2021 SoCon Wrestling Championship on Feb. 28. The two grapplers have not met this season.
- No. 20 Sullivan (7-3) will face No. 13 Zach Redding (10-5) of Iowa State in the first round of the 133-pound pool for the first time this season. Despite suffering a hamstring injury in the first round of the conference championship, the Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, native carries a 7-3 record into the national tournament. He earned himself a spot in the Mountaineers' starting lineup on Jan. 31 and has registered three wins over opponents ranked inside several wrestling publications this season. Redding landed on the podium at the Big 12 Championship, placing third.
- At 165 pounds, No. 21 Hall (13-4) will take on No. 12 Jake Keating (10-3) of Virginia in the first round. Hall, a native of Chester, West Virginia, earned his first bid to nationals with a fourth-place finish at the conference tournament. Keating also looks to compete on the national stage for the first time in his career after posting a runner-up finish in his respective bracket at the ACC Championships on Feb. 28. The two wrestlers have not met this season.
- No. 20 Adams (13-3) will square off against No. 24 Benjamin Smith (5-4) of Cleveland State in the first round of the 197-pound pool for the second time this season. The two went head-to-head on Jan. 23, with Adams earning an 8-2 decision over Smith. The Coal City, West Virginia, native most recently placed third at the Big 12 Championship. Smith earned his automatic qualifying spot after finishing second at the MAC Championships on Feb. 27.
