The Bulldogs can finish anywhere from fifth to ninth with two games left in the 2019-20 regular season. One point this weekend clinches home ice in the first round of the ECAC Hockey Playoffs. Yale travels to Princeton Friday and Quinnipiac on Saturday in a pair of 7 p.m. games airing on ESPN+.

BULLDOGS

Yale is 3-1-1 in its last five outings and hoping to continue the momentum in preparation for the post season. A couple of weeks ago at New Haven, the Elis beat Princeton 5-3 after dropping a 3-2 overtime game with the Bobcats. Last weekend at the Whale, the Bulldogs celebrated senior night with a 4-2 win over Colgate. Four different players scored and Corbin Kaczperski made 33 saves. The night before, Yale held No. 2 Cornell to 23 shots on goal, including nine over the last two frames, but fell 4-0 after allowing three first-period tallies.

PRINCETON

The Tigers (4-18-5, 2-14-4) are in 11th place and know they will travel next weekend for the first round of the tournament. Princeton is 0-1-2 in its last three games and is coming off a one-point road trip to the Capital District. The Jersey Boys skated to a 2-2 tie at Union on Friday before suffering a 7-1 loss to RPI on Saturday.

QUINNIPIAC

The Bobcats are competing for a bye in the opening round of the ECAC playoffs, but will have home ice either way. Quinnipiac (19-11-2, 12-6-2) can finish anywhere from third to fifth and needs one point this week to clinch the bye. The team from Hamden split last weekend's road trip, losing 4-0 to RPI before grabbing a 3-2 OT win at Union. The Cats are 11-3 at home and have just one home conference loss (Colgate, 11.23). Their friendly confines have also helped them outscore opponents 48-24.

SERIES

Yale's first meeting with the Tigers dates to 1900, and the Bulldogs have a 144-108-10 record against the guys from New Jersey. Quinnipiac has a 23-7-5 advantage in the Yale series since the first meeting in 2006.

KEITH ALLAIN '80, YALE'S MALCOLM G. CHACE HEAD COACH

Keith Allain, the coach with the third-most victories in the history of the Yale program, whose position is named after the first captain in 1896, is the most successful Bulldog bench leader. Allain has a 2013 National Championship trophy along with two (2008-09, 2009-10) regular-season ECAC titles and a pair (2009, 2011) of conference tournament championships. His teams have also captured seven Ivy League Championships while making six NCAA Tournament appearances in his 13 seasons.

ROSTER BREAKDOWN

There are 28 student-athletes on the 2019-20 roster, including 16 forwards, nine defensemen and three goalies. The Americans come from 10 states (8 from Massachusetts), while there are seven Canadians from three provinces.

PRO PLAYERS

Twenty Yale graduates are lacing up their skates in the pros this winter. John Hayden ‘17 is with the Chicago Blackhawks, while there are four in the AHL, six in the ECHL, one in the SPHL and the rest are playing outside North America. The international skaters are in places like Switzerland, Germany, France, Sweden, Finland and Australia.

CLASS OF 2019

Three seniors from last year’s squad are playing hockey this winter, but only one took a traditional path. Joe Snively, an All-ECAC forward and Washington Caps signee, is playing forward for the AHL Hershey Bears. Sam Tucker (G) and Andrew Gaus (F) may be breaking ground for Bulldogs as grad transfers. Tucker (BU) and Gaus (Colorado College) had a year of eligibility, so they took scholarship offers to play one more season. Of course, they are working towards new degrees, Gaus for a master’s in teaching and Tucker in Metropolitan College’s graduate program for financial management. The captain of the 2018-19 team, Anthony Walsh, is back in the program as the operations director.

CLASSROOM

Yale MIH earned an NCAA Public Recognition Award for the 2018-19 academic year by having an NCAA Division I Academic Progress Rate in the top 10 percent of all squads.

COLLEGE HOCKEY BEGAN AT YALE

A group of Yale student-athletes heading to Baltimore in January of 1896 began the history of college hockey in America. It's hard to imagine that two Yale tennis players in the class of 1896 – Malcolm Chace and Arthur Foote – going to Canada for tournaments would lead to hockey coming to the U.S. While on those trips, the two Elis were exposed to a game Canadians began playing after seeing British soldiers stationed in Nova Scotia trying it.

Chace and Foote formed a Yale hockey team and arranged for its first official games on that trip to Baltimore. After facing off against the Baltimore Athletic Club on Jan. 31 (a 3-2 loss), the Bulldogs made history. The next day they skated to a 2-2 tie with Johns Hopkins in the first U.S. intercollegiate ice hockey game.

Yale quickly became one of the nation's elite teams, winning intercollegiate titles in 1899, 1900 and 1902. Until 1911, the team played its home games on outdoor rinks, including Lake Whitney on the New Haven – Hamden town line. The school opened an indoor structure at Yale Field in 1911 with the largest ice surface in the country at that time (190 feet by 90 feet). From 1914 until 1917, the team played its home games at the old New Haven Arena on the corner of State and Wall Streets.

Yale's first coach was Frederick Rocque in 1916-17, though it did not have a coach stay for more than one year until Clarence Wanamaker took over the program in 1921. That year, the Elis returned to the New Haven Arena and remained there until it burned down in 1924. Wanamaker led the Elis for seven years, including an 18-4-1 season in 1923-24 and a 14-1-1 campaign the following year. After 1924, the team played on various outdoor rinks until moving into the "new" New Haven Arena in January 1927. Wanamaker was succeeded as coach in 1928 by Larry Noble '27, a former captain who led Yale to an incredible 32-2-2 mark. Former Yale goaltender Holcomb York '17 was coach from 1930 until 1938, an era during which five Olympians played at Yale.

Yale joined the Quadrangular League in 1934 along with Dartmouth, Harvard and Princeton (now the Ivy League). The Elis won the first league title in 1934-35, compiling a 6-1 record against three conference foes.

Murray Murdoch, the first player ever signed by the NHL's New York Rangers, took the reins of the program in 1938 and did not let go for 27 seasons. He helped Yale compile a record of 278-236-20, win a Quadrangular League title in 1940, capture a Pentagonal League crown in 1952 (Army was added to the conference in 1941 and the league's name was changed as a result) and led the Blue to the 1952 NCAA Championship weekend.

The home of Yale hockey since 1958 is David S. Ingalls Rink, which was fully renovated in 2010. Three years after moving into its current home, the Elis joined the Eastern College Athletic Conference (now ECAC Hockey) in 1961 while still competing in the Ivy League.

Some of the greatest skaters in Yale history played for Murdoch (photo), including scorers like Ted Shay '52, Wally Kilrea '54 and Jack Morrison '67 (1968 Olympian) and outstanding goaltenders Gerry Jones '59 (Yale's first All-American in 1959) and George Scherer '56.

Tim Taylor signed on in 1976 for a 30-year run as head coach that brought much success to the program. In Taylor's first game, Yale defeated Pennsylvania for the school's first official Ivy win in more than two years. Taylor, head coach of the 1994 U.S. Olympic Team, went on to lead the Elis to an ECAC title along with six Ivy crowns and a trip to the 1998 NCAA Tournament. He surpassed Murdoch for the most wins in school history (337-433-55, 28 seasons) and raised the visibility of a program that had five wins combined in its two seasons before his arrival. Five Hobey Baker Memorial Award finalists played for Taylor: Bob Brooke '84, Mark Kaufmann '93, Ray Giroux '98, Jeff Hamilton '01 (twice) and Chris Higgins '05.

Today, Yale men's ice hockey is a New England institution with national prominence. The 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 squads compiled Division I's top winning percentage over that span, and then Yale soared to the top in 2012-13. Under head coach Keith Allain '80, Yale won the national championship with a 2013 Frozen Four win over No. 1 Quinnipiac in the title game at Pittsburgh before more than 18,000 fans and an ESPN TV audience. That 22-12-3 squad beat three No. 1 seeds out of the four straight NCAA wins, including West Regional conquests of Minnesota and North Dakota.

Andrew Miller '13 captained the 2012-13 Bulldogs, scored in OT against UMass-Lowell in the national semifinal and earned Frozen Four MVP honors before finishing with Yale's career assist record and being named an All-American.

Allain, a former Yale goalie, has led the Elis to two ECAC regular-season championships, two conference tournament titles, six Ivy League crowns and five NCAA tournaments (three regional finals). In 1998, just over a century after he laced up his skates for Yale, Malcolm G. Chace was memorialized when the head coaching job was named in his honor. The coaching position is funded by a gift from his grandson, Malcolm G. Chace '56.

The college hockey landscape has seen major changes since Chace led the first Eli skaters down to Baltimore in 1896. Some things stay the same - Yale's vital role in the history of college hockey and the sense of pride that every player, coach and fan feels when the Bulldogs take the ice.
