

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. The school makes sure that all students are given a lunch, something that's not always guaranteed in schools. Why does Munyambanza say lunch is such an important piece of the day for his students?
2. The school tries to instill a sense of community in the students, especially after they've graduated. Why do you think this is prioritized, especially for a refugee community?
3. Along with poverty, many students face stigma for being refugees. How can schools like Coburwas help change the social perception of refugees?