

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. Are donors responsible for ensuring that their donations are used responsibly?
2. Why do you think it's taken so long for any data to be gathered on the impact of foreign aid?
3. To collect accurate data, ultra-poor groups of people were given different kinds of aid and the impact was observed. Are there ethical implications of this kind of study? What should be considered?
4. Why do you think people are skeptical of the impact of foreign aid?
5. Do you think the results of this study will change attitudes toward foreign aid? How so?