

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. A Stanford University study of the policy during the George W. Bush administration found abortion rates actually rose when money for family planning was cut off. Do you think the results of that study should impact current policy?
2. Does the separation of church and state, a cardinal principle in American public life, apply in U.S. overseas aid policy?
3. Marjorie Dannenfelser calls the funding for services that include abortion “cultural imperialism.” How should cultural considerations play into foreign aid policy for health care?