

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. What lessons from Uganda's Ebola prevention can be applied to other disease prevention efforts?
2. One key effort in Uganda has been to create a culture of disease awareness and prevention. Does that culture exist in countries that aren't on the front lines of diseases like Ebola?
3. Is there a moral imperative or other reason for wealthy countries to get involved in disease containment and treatment in other parts of the world? Why or why not?