

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. Uganda is not a wealthy country, but still welcomes a tremendous number of refugees. Why do you think the country has continued to receive refugees even though they do strain resources?
2. Do rich countries do enough to assist poor ones like Uganda to deal with refugees? What responsibility should the international community carry with regard to refugees?
3. Shaban Bantariza says that Uganda cannot bear the burden of refugees alone, and that it is a global responsibility. What should a global response entail?
4. Uganda's open-door policy places refugees in settlements with small plots of lands, and not in refugee camps. What long-term impact could this have on refugee populations?