

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. List two ways that gender bias and poverty are intertwined in this report.
2. The practice of sex selective abortion is illegal in India but abortion itself--on demand--is legal. So how can this practice be policed to insure against the intentional termination of female pregnancies?
3. Sociologist Kaur says everyone knows that gender bias is a problem for the larger society, and that the challenge is to change the mindset of individual families. How could this change be achieved?