

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. How do you think a gender imbalance would affect your community?
2. Despite the efforts of activists, very few sex selection cases have been brought against medical practitioners, with even fewer convictions. Why do you think enforcement is so lax? Do you think stricter enforcement would help end gender bias? Why or why not?
3. Kumari says a hopeful development that is also tied to India's growing middle class is that more girls are going to school. Do you think this proves that economic gender equality results in less gender bias?"