

Discussion Questions

1. What geographic and environmental factors make Bangladesh especially vulnerable to climate change and rising sea levels?
2. How have individuals like Jahanara, Arif Madbor, and Rushiya Begum been personally affected by climate-related displacement, and what coping strategies have they used?
3. What kinds of community-based and technological adaptations are being implemented in Bangladesh to address the challenges of flooding, salinization, and erosion?
4. How do organizations like BRAC and Shidhulai Swanirvar Sangstha (boat schools) contribute to building resilience, and what limitations or challenges do they face in scaling their solutions?
5. What role do international funding commitments and global industries (such as garment manufacturing) play in Bangladesh's climate resilience efforts, and how are they falling short?
