Fewer in poll believe Bible word for word

By George Gallup Jr.
and George Castelli

©1988, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

The percentage of Americans who are fundamentalists — that is, who believe that every word in the Bible is literally true — has continued to decline in recent years. Only 31 percent of Americans now believe the Bible is "the actual word of God and is to be taken literally, word for word," down from 34 percent in 1985.

There also has been an increase in the percentage of Americans who do not believe that the Bible was inspired by God, from 11 percent in 1985 to 17 percent this year.

Belief that the Bible literally is true is greatest among blacks, Hispanics, Protestants, Southerners, the separated, divorced and widowed, those over 50 and those with less than a high school education. Education is the major variable, with belief in the literal truth of the Bible decreasing as the level of education achieved increases.

William Allen White:

"Unless those who believe in a Y^m civilization are willing to sacrifice to educate ~~the~~ Y² leaders, they will find that their dream
has vanished.

"If American churchmen fail to support the work of education that turns out Y² leaders, American life under another leadership soon will lose the church."
