I Kings 21: 1-29

NABOTH'S VINEYARD

In a room in the palace of Samaria, Ahab, King of Israel, lies upon his couch, gazing at the walls, refusing to rest. What has taken place?
- disaster befallen the royal armies? News more successful. Success glorified with recent victories over Samaria.

- friends of Baal again massacred? Working of Baal reversed the fearful disaster at Canaan.

- death in the royal family? young? sons? News more alive.

- not even I Kings 20, the rebuke, the man, the.

By the word sits, joyful, resolute, crafty, cruel, beautiful, cooing with the King the cause, his sulky, pretence. All put into scene his sympathy, shown than by the fact he dared not confess for himself.

The story now told: Ahab had unwittingly - that is - but one little corner of this wretched palace in Jezreel. Working on the porch, saw the little vineyard - Naboth's. Resolved to have it, offered... to his response, indignation, refusal.

The refusal.
at first sight, answer seems laughable, reasonable, reasonable, considered, cheerful, resignation.

But no, the answer solemn, decisive, invoked the Lord name of Numbers 36: 7 could he be? He had simply put his foot to the wall and done nothing. Did remember Jezebel had asked him for the royal seal to give validity to some letter she had written in his name.

But how was he to know what was written? Of Naboth did, what a pity - but could not be helped now. As well take possession of it in evidence.
Startled. 'Hast thou killed!' > 'He killed?'
