" O Lady fair, I have got a gem
which gives luster bright,

Than the diamond flash from the jewelled
Crown on the lofty brow of King.

A wonderful pearl of Needing price
whose virtue will not decay,
Whose light shall be a spell to thee
and a blessing on thy way."

The cloud went off from the Pilgrim's brow as a small, meagre took He chased with gold or gems of cost, from his flowing robe he took.

"Here, Lady fair, is the pearl of price;
may it prove as much to thee.

May, keep thy gold; I ask it not;
for the word of God is free."
