and we are not for a job! The point is not how much turns to the ark of God, seeking home.

Handwritten notes on a page, including a circled section and various paragraphs of text. The circled section contains the text: "(a) Don't know what meant. J. I. case. The combis were stopped. say, right." Below this, there are several paragraphs of text, some starting with "D. J. Moody" and "How to reach the masses?". The text is dense and somewhat illegible due to the handwriting and fading. There are also some marginal notes and a date "D 2/71" at the bottom right.

We need a word, a startling word
To call our workers forth
to go,
To go afield with hearts
afame,
To visit in the Master's name,
To go and seek and find and claim
The souls of men for God.
We need a word.

We need a word, a burning
word,
To cause us now to know and feel
The Scripture weight of love and care,
To make our consciences to flare,
To know 'tis ours to do and dare,
And visit men for God.
We need a word.

21

We need a word, a graphic
word,
To send us forth our task
to do,
A word of strength and charge and might,
A word for every day and night
A word with which to win the fight,
And bring men's souls to God.
We need a word.

It calls in accents clear and true:
"Lift up your eyes white fields to see,
Go out and witness there for me;
I died for all upon the tree,
Go seek lost souls for God."
We have the word.
