THE TWO CLASSES

There sat two glasses filled to the brim
On an old man's table, rim to rim.
One was wine and red as blood;
One was water from the crystal flood.

Said the glass of wine to the pale brother:
<sup>As they told of his tale to me to the other:</sup>
"I can tell of Gangrene, revel and murder,
And the protector and grandest sway on earth
<sup>PROVOEST</sup>
That fell under my trick as though struck by light where? was King, <sup>an</sup> MONARCH and rule in might.

From the heads of kings I have torn the crown;
From the height of fame I have hurled men down.
I have blasted many an honored name,
I have taken virtue and given shame.
I have made the arm of the driver fail
And sent the train from the iron rail.
I have made good ships go down at sea
And the cries of the lost were sweet to me.
Ho, Ho, Pale Brother," laughed the wine,
"Can you boast of deeds as great as mine?"

Said the water glass, "I cannot boast
Of a thing dethroned or a murdered host,
But I can tell of a heart once sad
By my crystal drops made light and glad."

The Courage to Say No

You're starting, my boy,
on life's journey,

Along the grand highway
of life.

You'll meet with a thousand temptations -

Each city with evil is rife.

This world is a stage
of excitement

There's danger wherever you go;

But if you are tempted
in weakness

Have courage, my boy,
to say No!

Be careful in choosing companions.

Seek only the brave and
the true;

And stand by your friends
when in trial,

Not changing the old
for the new.

And when by false friends
you are tempted

The taste of the wine may
to know,

With firmness, with patience,
and kindness

Have courage, my boy,
to say No!
