FAITHFUL IN A YEAR OF UNCERTAINTY

2020 Annual Review
Dear friend of World Vision,

As I reflect on the past challenging year—dominated by the global COVID-19 pandemic and turmoil here at home—I am struck by the tremendous generosity of our supporters, the faithfulness of our staff, and God’s goodness to us as we turned to Him in utter dependence.

In such times of trouble, it’s clear that our Lord is not only a God of the good times. He is a God for all times. He never stops working in our lives, inviting us to align our hearts and plans with His. And His special concern for the poor and vulnerable never changes.

Early in 2020 when the pandemic hit, that same concern compelled us to immediately launch our first-ever global emergency response, and the largest in our 70-year history—including robust relief programs in the U.S. Thanks to our steadfast partners and supporters, this response led to our highest annual revenue ever, $1.2 billion—meaning $95 million more than in 2019 to serve vulnerable children and families in the name of Jesus.

The impact we have had together over the past year is nothing short of miraculous, made possible by our trust in the Miracle Worker. Consider the impact represented by these achievements through our global COVID-19 response at the close of our fiscal year in September:

• Every 60 seconds, we helped nearly 180 people survive, recover, and rebuild from the effects of the pandemic.

• Every 12 seconds, a person got cash and vouchers, helping vulnerable families pay for immediate necessities like food, rent, and medicine.

• We worked with 20 new pastors and faith leaders every hour to spread factual information about COVID-19.

• We provided protection and support to a new child every second of every day.

I’m especially encouraged by our response in the U.S. For decades, we’ve lived into our calling to support local churches as they minister in their communities—and in 2020 we took that commitment to a new level. Hand in hand with a network of over 1,300 U.S. churches, as well as schools and other local partners, we delivered nutritious food, hygiene and protective items, educational resources, and other essentials to families in need across the country, bringing hope to 6.7 million children and adults.

It can be said that 2020 put hope itself to the test. But the hope of Christ overcomes, and we are bearers of that hope. That’s why I choose to look back on this year as a time when thousands of child sponsors faithfully and often sacrificially cared for children, and when Americans gave so that families near and far wouldn’t go hungry.

Thank you for bearing witness to the hope of Jesus through your generosity this past year, despite so many challenges. The gratitude I feel echoes Paul’s words in Philippians 1:3—“I thank my God every time I remember you.”

God bless you.

THE PANDEMIC

You’ve seen it on the news, or experienced it yourself: long lines at food banks, rising unemployment numbers, shuttered businesses, uncertain economic forecasts. In 2020, poverty became a new reality for many.

Due to the secondary effects of the global health crisis, the World Bank estimates that as many as 124 million more people were pushed into extreme poverty in 2020.

World Vision’s own assessments in 24 countries across Latin America, sub-Saharan Africa, and Asia confirmed alarming predictions of increased child hunger, violence, and poverty as a result of the pandemic.

Poverty and hunger spread close to home, too, across the U.S. But in the face of this turmoil, one thing was constant: the love of Jesus, and the dedication of our donors and our nearly 35,000 staff around the world to extend that selfless love to others.

Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up.

—Galatians 6:9 (NIV)
As COVID-19 spread, World Vision found creative ways to help people survive, recover, and rebuild from the effects of the pandemic. In Brazil, we partnered with the Presbyterian Church of Manaus to bring aid to remote areas in the Amazon the only way possible—by boat.

The medical ship Solidarity, operated by World Vision, offered essential supplies, dental services, and healthcare to families up and down the Solimões, an upper stretch of the Amazon River—delivering:

- 1,400 food boxes
- 800 hygiene kits
- 400 Tenderness Boxes (children’s kits)
- 2,100 masks

“I prayed and asked God that one day this boat would arrive in our community. And now you are here. I’m happy, really happy.”

—Lourdes, 49, a mother in Brazil who received supplies along with treatment for a foot injury and diabetes

“We want to express our gratitude to World Vision donors—our brothers and sisters—who provided these kits for us. You sent us a love message by living out your biblical principles to love your neighbor.”

—Myron Lizer, vice president of the Navajo Nation

From here to Timbuktu (in central Mali, West Africa), World Vision has trained people to prevent the spread of COVID-19. In Timbuktu, we’ve provided tents, masks, gloves, soap, hand sanitizer, and cleaning kits to health centers and temporary clinics.

Between March and September 2020 (the end of our fiscal year), with the support of donors around the world, we:

- Reached 51.1 million people, including over 22 million children, in over 70 countries through our COVID-19 response
- Distributed 6.7 million masks and 4.3 million glove sets to health facilities, health workers, and community members
- Provided information on preventive behaviors to 27.9 million people
- Delivered 3.7 million handwashing supplies

Serving families in the U.S.

To help meet the basic needs of 6.7 million children and adults here at home who were impacted by the pandemic fallout, we distributed:

- More than 56,000 Family Emergency Kits including a week’s worth of nutritious food for a family of five, protective items, and educational resources
- 2 million Fresh Food Boxes through our partnership with the U.S. government’s Farmers to Families Food Box Program

A special thanks to the network of over 1,300 churches who have worked hand in hand with us to serve their communities.

Nine-year-old Ireen used to walk for water several times a day—often up to 6 kilometers, like millions of girls and women worldwide. But in August 2020, drillers hit water near her village in Malawi, and the entire community turned out for a big celebration. Now, with water close by, Ireen will be free to pursue her education—and walk tall on the path out of poverty. “I was so happy, like I’ve never been in my life,” says Ireen about the drillers’ success. “My prayers have been answered.”

This year tested the resilience of our staff around the world, requiring each of us to stretch, grow, adapt, and trust God more fully. Here in the U.S. and around the world, our donors, our partners, and the people we serve also persevered through the health crisis—many of them in creative and inspirational ways.

Persistence in a Bangladeshi slum

Akhi, 17, has had to adapt her whole life. After three years working in a shrimp factory to help support her family, she was too old to return to school. So, she adjusted. Through World Vision donors she received a sewing machine, fabric, and training.

But then the pandemic hit. And her booming business shut down. Rather than giving up, Akhi adapted again. She noticed that masks were expensive and unavailable for people in her community.

“I decided to make masks by myself and sell them for a low price so that poor people can afford them,” she said. “I even give masks for free to those who have no money.”

With her mother and sister, she also began to make kites for children to fly on their rooftops. “World Vision taught us to be good to our neighbors,” says Akhi’s mother, Anowara. “As World Vision’s staff told us, we taught our neighbors to wash hands with soap and running water, wear masks while they go out, and maintain social distancing.”

Akhi was recognized as a real-life hero by the United Nations. She wants to continue standing with the poor, especially girls.
In 2020, 88% of World Vision’s total operating expenses were used for programs that benefit children, families, and communities in need.
